Leaders Add $60,000,000 To Relief Bill For Buildings

U. S. Structures in Every District of Congress Voted Tentatively.

Omnibus Measure Action Next Week

Hearings Set Today on $500,000,000 Boost to Housing Unit.

By Robert C. Albright.

Authority to spend $60,000,000 additional on new Federal buildings, to be awarded in every Congressional district, was added to the Administration's spending-lending program yesterday, by tentative agreement of leaders.

The plan was outlined before the House Appropriations Committee by Rear Admiral Christian J. Peoples, director of the Treasury Procurement Division, and Representative Clifton A. Woodrum (Democrat), of Virginia, deficiencies sub-committee chairman.

Both Peoples and Woodrum earlier discussed the step-up in Federal building authority with the President at a White House conference attended by Public Works Administrator Harold L. Ickes and Works Progress Administrator Harry Hopkins.

Is Compromise Move.

A compromise on demands of House building bloc members, the increased authorization would permit construction of two new postoffice buildings over a three-year period, in the districts of virtually every member of the House, Republican or Democrat.

Only $25,000,000 was provided in the President's spending message for Federal building construction. Building bloc leaders demanded that the sum be increased so that it would "go around."

Under the compromise only $25,000,000 actually would be appropriated, to take care of projects now ready to move. But the $70,000,000 three-year building authorization approved last year would be increased by $60,000,000. This would authorize a total of $130,000,000 to be spent in the fiscal years 1938, 1939 and 1940.

Removes One "Sore Spot."

The tentative settlement, which must be approved by the Appropriations Committee, apparently removed one source of controversy that spelled trouble ahead for the President's program in the House.

Postoffice construction "back home" is sought avidly by House members of both parties, and the President's economy program last year had cut seriously into the building.

In the 1935 fiscal year, $65,000,000 had been appropriated for the local construction and $60,000,000 was appropriated in both 1936 and 1937.

Roosevelt Threats Jail Man in Tenn.

Los Angeles, April 27 (U.P.).—The U. S. Attorney's office late today issued a complaint against Keith H. Rapp, 35-year-old salesman, accusing him of writing a letter to President Roosevelt, professing "an overwhelming urge to kill you." Rapp was arrested in Memphis, Tenn., on his way to Washington.

Rapp, held in default of $10,000 bail, denied writing any letter to the President, but said he was interested in psychology and believed Mr. Roosevelt had a "fixation complex."

The complaint alleged that Rapp on April 13 told Daniel Paullo at Bakersfield, Colo., that he was going to kill the President.

The letter, written April 5, said: "This means McIntire. I have an overwhelming urge to shoot the President."

Queen Visits Mother, Who Is Seriously Ill

London, (Thursday) April 28 (U.P.). The mother of Queen Elizabeth, the Countess of Strathmore and Kinghorne, is seriously ill at her London home. The Queen visited her twice yesterday. The nature of her illness was not disclosed.

Bucharest, April 27 (A.P.).—Juan Codreanu, father of the iron guard chief, Corneliu Codreanu, was among 84 persons sentenced to concentration camps today for conspiracy against King Carol's government. Corneliu is serving a six-month sentence.

School Girls View Voteless District's Slums

Can't Decide if Capital's Alleys or N. Y. Tenements Are Worse.

Twenty girl students of the exclusive Dalton School, of New York City, figuratively threw away their Washington guidebooks yesterday and invaded the alley slums. It was a practical lesson in sociology.

Millions of school children have come to Washington to get a closeup of the machinery of Government, to see the Washington Monument and the Lincoln Memorial, the Capitol and the White House; but until yesterday none had bothered to look into the squalor and the disease-breeding slums behind the official facade.

D. C. Gets Its Say on Ballot Saturday

Washington made final plans yesterday to go to the polls, and as it did so, advocates of local suffrage pointed to two news items as evidence that the District should take a hand in governing itself:

1—Only three members of a 19-member House District Committee attended a meeting on District affairs.

Saturday's plans call for use of 63 public schools as polling places, and suffrage advocates pointed out these additional pertinent facts concerning the vote:

Polls remain open from 9 o'clock a. m. to 9 o'clock p. m.

Everyone living in the District, 21 or older, may vote, but first he must register at the voting place. Voting rights back home in the States will not be affected.

Ballot boxes will be sealed when filled and delivered shortly after 9 p. m. to 1317 H street northwest, where votes will be counted and results tabulated.

Official ballots will be printed on white paper. They will carry two questions:

1. Do you want the right to vote for officials of your own city government in the District of Columbia?

2. Do you want the right to vote for President of the United States and for members of Congress from the District of Columbia?

Little Work Is Done as House Group Falls Far Short of Quorum.

As residents of the District completed plans yesterday for a city-wide referendum to determine whether they had rather govern themselves or be governed "as disfranchised wards of Congress," the House District Committee held a regular meeting with only 3 of its 19 members present.

Chairman Palmisano, Representatives Kennedy, of Maryland, and Arnold, of Illinois, were in attendance. Three bills were rerouted to sub-committees and the remainder of the time given over to an informal discussion of a wide range of subjects—including numbers and vermin.

Earle Ousts Margiotti in Fraud Fight

$20,000 Given Leaders to Pass Beer Laws, Candidate Says.

By the Associated Press.

Harrisburg, Pa., April 27.—Gov. George H. Earle threw Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti out of his cabinet today, climax of another set-to in Pennsylvania's turbulent Democratic primary fight.

Margiotti, self-styled "middle of the road" candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, had charged that legislation was "bought" in Pennsylvania. He named prominent Democrats.

[Margiotti had charged, the United Press reported, that $20,000 had been received by Democratic State Chairman David L. Lawrence, Ralph M. Bashore, labor and industry secretary, and Matthew H. McCloskey, Philadelphia leader, for passage of beer legislation.—Editor's note.]

Insisted Grand Jury Act.

The Governor, State committee-indorsed candidate for the United States Senate, demanded evidence be given State police. Margiotti insisted on a grand jury inquiry.

An hour later, Earle, ardent New Dealer, who in 1934 became Pennsylvania's first Democratic Governor in 40 years, wrote his attorney general:

"I hereby remove you as attorney general, because you have refused to substantiate . . . the most serious charges you made last night against three of your political opponents . . ."

Herbert F. Goodrich, dean of the University of Pennsylvania Law School, was named to succeed Margiotti. He was instructed to "make such arrests and take such action as the evidence submitted warrants."

Deputies Also Ousted.

Gov. Earle then dismissed Margiotti's deputies—Norman L. Wymard and Edward Friedman—and his publicity director, Leonard L. Lindgren.

Margiotti received his notice as he was preparing a petition to the Dauphin County (Herrisburg) court asking for the special grand jury.

Earle called Margiotti to the executive mansion this afternoon and asked Capitol correspondents to sit in. Margiotti, asked for his evidence, held out for a grand jury investigation.

Earle insisted a grand jury investigation would take too much time, with the primary voting only three weeks off—May 17.

Margiotti said it was "the only orderly procedure."

His Charges Outlined.

Margiotti said the grand jury also should consider his charges that State jobholders were "maced into 3 to 5 per cent assessments of their salaries for the campaign; that WPA workers were coerced in the same way, and also Philadelphia's Mayor S. Davis Wilson's accusations about general authority contracts. Matthew H. McCloskey

Nazis Prepare To Confiscate All Jews Own

'Non-Aryans' Must Register Entire Property Under 10-Year Penalty.

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, April 27.—The German government plans to take over all Jewish property "in due course of time," a high authority said, as a decree requiring the approximately 750,000 Jews in greater Germany to register their fortunes and properties—both at home and abroad—was issued today by Field Marshal Goering.

"The decree is intended to place on a legal footing the gradual elimination of the Jew from German business life, in that he is to be assured that the properties declared are actually his and will not simply be taken away from him by unauthorized action," the authority said.

Significance was seen in a paragraph of the decree which said:

"The controller of the four-year plan (Goering) may take such measures as may be deemed fit to insure utilization of properties falling under these terms in consonance with interests of German economy."

The decree as a whole was regarded as an outgrowth of the looting of Jewish shops in Vienna and elsewhere in Austria.

Ford Is Guest Of Roosevelt; Business Feud End in Sight

U. S. Aides Ready Monopoly Data

On the Business Front.

Henry Ford, for the first time, visited New Deal headquarters yesterday when he and his son, Edsel, were luncheon guests of the President. The trend of the discussion on business conditions was kept closely guarded, however.

Alfred P. Sloan, jr., chairman of General Motors, told organized automobile dealers the industry must solve its difficulties "from within by consultation" or they would be solved "by Government edict." Page 2.

Ford at White House.

By Sidney Olson.

The country's leading rugged individualist and its foremost believer in a planned economy had lunch yesterday as all signs pointed toward a possible turning point in the New Deal's long feud with big business.

As Henry Ford lunched with President Roosevelt in the small cream-tinted family dining-room of the White House, two developments closely related to the significant visit were occurring. They were:

Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper invited the 16 leading big businessmen who pledged cooperation to the President Tuesday to submit a "concrete program" for closer working relations between Government and business.

Attorney General Homer Cummings, Solicitor General Robert H. Jackson and Justice Department aides prepared masses of data on the problem of business monopoly, which they submitted later to the President for his study before he sends his monopoly message to Congress, expected tomorrow.

Breathing Spell Near.

Washington's astute political observers, putting together the President's conciliatory tone toward business in his fireside chat two weeks ago on the $4,512,000,000 recovery program; the Ford visit and numerous small indications of a "hands-off" attitude, believed last night that at least a long breathing spell for business and possibly even an approach to business-New Deal harmony was in the making.

To other signs they added the steady progress toward a generally approved agreement among the Tennessee Valley Authority, private utilities in that area and the cities concerned, on the ultimate purchase of private power properties in the region.

TVA Director David E. Lilienthal reported to the President yesterday that "no insuperable difficulties" were to be seen in the negotiations now nearing conclusion. Removal of this "sore spot" in Government relations with utilities, particularly if the final settlement is generally acclaimed, is believed here to constitute a great advance toward joint Administration-business co-operation in battling the depression.

Secrecy Shrouds Visit.

The White House visit of Ford, the Michigan dirt-farmer's son who rode to multi-millions of dollars on the mass production of cheap transportation, was surrounded with unusual significance as a result of the fortnight's developments. It also was surrounded with secrecy, as neither Ford nor the President gave out any comment on the proceedings over the luncheon table.

However, from the train on which Ford rode from Washington

Montgomery Ex-Supervisor Found Guilty

Wife Weeps as Jury Finds P. Ray Souder Forged Relief Check.

P. Ray Souder, former Montgomery County aid supervisor, was found guilty of forgery and uttering by a jury in the Circuit Court at Rockville last night.

As the jury brought in its verdict to Judge Charles W. Woodward, Souder's wife fell into his arms, sobbing. His young daughter, standing nearby, also broke into tears.

The jury retired at 4:30 p. m. and returned at 7 p. m.

The verdict carried a recommendation of leniency. Judge Woodward declined to indicate when he would pass sentence.

After hearing State's Attorney James H. Pugh urge that "sympathy should not be permitted to stand in the way of duty," the jury was given the case.

Souder allegedly signed the name of Snyder to a check received from the county treasurer to pay for the burial of Marie Jackson, colored.

Selfish Lobbyists Defeated Offices Bill, Mead Avers

Un-American tactics "in the hands of lobbyists with their own selfish interests at heart" defeated the reorganization bill, Rep. James H. Mead (Democrat), of New York, last night told 500 persons meeting at the University of Maryland under auspices of the political science department.

Mead said he received as many messages favoring reorganization in 1932 as he received against it a few weeks ago. He charged one of his constituents sent him 200 telegrams, taking names out of the telephone book, while another used names taken from tombstones.

Mead said he received a telegram from his own address and signed with his own name asking him to vote against the bill.

He cited a teacher in his district who arranged the dispatch of a telegram that said: "Vote no on reorganization. Don't want dictatorship—the Eighth Grade."

Soldier in Va. Jailed as Baby Is Abandoned

Infant Found in Truck in North Carolina; Mother Is Missing.

A cavalryman at Fort Myer was locked up in the guard house last night as his superiors investigated the paternity of a 7-week-old baby, found abandoned in a truck near Greensboro, N. C.

The mother of the baby was mysteriously missing as officials of New York and North Carolina as well as military authorities conducted a search for her.

In New York, police identified the child's mother as Rita Lowell, 19-year-old red-head. From the young woman's foster mother they learned she had left home with the baby several days ago bound for Washington and marriage with a Fort Myer soldier.

Fort Myer authorities identified the prisoner as Arthur Addleberger, a private attached to headquarters machine gun company of the Third Cavalry.

He was held incommunicado. He had been transferred to the guardhouse from the post hospital where he had been undergoing treatment for a leg injury. Officers explained Addelberger had been kicked by a horse while on target practice at Fort Belvoir, Va.

No charges were placed against Addelberger.

In Rita's Manhattan apartment, her foster mother, Mrs. Rose Szenftner told the story of the girl she said she had adopted at 3. Mrs. Szenft-

Virginia Man, Crippled, Dies Rescuing Son

Stands Under Water, Holds Boy Up Until Help Arrives in Boat.

By the Associated Press.

Tappahannock, Va., April 27.—With a broken leg in a plaster cast, Donald Kelly's dad swam out in the Rappahannock River today and held up his exhausted boy until help came. The father, P. D. Kelly, drowned.

Donald, 16, was the only son of the 41-year-old Richmond electrician, who stood below the surface so that the unconscious boy could breathe until a boat reached him.

He reached it 300 feet from the wharf, and tired, clung for a few minutes to poles. He started to swim back, but the current was too strong and he returned to a pole. Members of the party went for a boat, and Kelly watched as the boy again tried to come to shore.

Donald was half way in when his strength gave out. His father started out after him. Somehow he swam despite the cast.

"He got me all right and pushed me up on his shoulders," said the boy later.

"He must have known at the last that he couldn't save me and save himself, too. He pushed me up and then went under."

Garner Shan't Whisper While Sen. Lewis Speaks

By the Associated Press.

Senator Lewis (Democrat), of Illinois, rebuked Vice President Garner yesterday for whispering while Lewis was making a Senate speech.

Garner was at the rear of the chamber talking with Senator Lundeen (Farmer-Labor), Minnesota. The Illinois Senator halted his speech on the Navy program and said:

"If the Vice President will please come to order."

7 Die, 10 Burned In Second Mine Blast in a Week

Pottsville, Pa., April 27 (A.P.).—Seven men died today and ten were seriously burned in the Nation's second mine disaster within a week.

Only a few days after nearly 50 died in a blast in a bituminous mine at Grundy, Va., this explosion, attributed to gas, occurred in a St. Clair Coal Co. slope 4 miles from this Eastern Pennsylvania hard coal center an hour after 600 men had begun the day's work.

Tropic Air on Peak Brings Boston Snow, Scientists Say

If lush damp air from the banana-growing tropics is wafted toward the 6,000-foot crest of Mount Washington in the wintertime, Boston is likely to have snow.

But if the frigid blasts from wastes of the polar regions blow unhindered, haughty residents of the exclusive Back Bay region may step into their limousines without losing their composure climbing over snowdrifts. For Boston will be dry.

Now if conditions on the windblown top of the mountain 200 miles to the northeast indicate that there is going to be precipitation in Boston, one further factor must be taken into account. If the temperature at the mountain is below 10 degrees when conditions are ripe, snow will fall within 24 hours in Beantown, but if the temperature is above 15 degrees, rain will fall.

Information to this effect was presented yesterday during the five hours of scientific sessions of the American Meteorological Society. H. G. Dorsey, jr., and C. F. Brooks, of Harvard's Blue Hill observatory, made the report.

The rest of the time they heard such scientific papers as "Velocity and Pressure Distributions Resulting from Lateral Diffusion in a Stratified Medium on a Rotating Earth."

Zog, Moslem, Weds Catholic; She Is Albania's First Queen

By the Associated Press.

Tirana, Albania, April 27.—King Ahmed Zog and the youthful Hungarian countess who became Queen Geraldine today established their court tonight in a palace on Durazzo Bay.

The 42 year-old sovereign and his 22-year-old, half-American bride were wildly acclaimed as they left Tirana to drive the 25 miles to Durazzo after the civil ceremony.

They were followed by a string of automobiles bearing officials and guests to a palace high up on a cliff overlooking the Adriatic Sea.

There Queen Geraldine, the former Countess Geraldine Apponyi, took up a suite of three rooms, with a balcony hanging almost over the bay.

King Zog, a Mohammedan, promised to build his Catholic bride a Catholic chapel in the palace. He also permitted her to choose her ladies in waiting from among Hungarian friends.

Auto Industry 'At Crossroads,' Sloan Asserts

General Motors Chairman Warns Rule by Edict Means 'Stifling.'

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, April 27.—Alfred P. Sloan, jr., chairman of General Motors Corporation, told the Nation's organized automobile dealers tonight that the motorcar industry "stands at the crossroads" on the question of solving its difficulties "from within through a spirit of co-operation," or from without, "by Government edict."

Addressing the closing session of the National Automobile Dealers Association, Sloan advocated a forum for discussion of policies as they affected dealer-manufacturer relationship and involved the interests of the consumer.

Assails Rule by Edict.

"Government," Sloan said, "is essential to protect and develop our civilization. But let us have government by law—thou shall or shall not—not government by edict. That means a stifling regulation—the direct road to regimentation. And when we start, there is no turning back.

"The exploitation of industry through the political consideration is damaging enough when limited to due process of law. Look at the picture today! The exploitation of industry by regimentation means the death knell of individual enterprise . . . and remember this, too. If policy . . . is unsound and uneconomic, even the all-powerful cannot make it work. And that fact is beginning to dawn on the consciousness of our people.

Discusses Problems.

"Therefore I ask you, is it better to look to the council table or to political control?"

Sloan discussed merchandising problems, "intelligent balance between dealer selling-power in any community and a properly determined sales expectancy," and the used car bugaboo.

"Many cars ought to be junked," he said, "and the dealers must junk them. Many dealers do not do their share."

Army Sees 'Great Possibilities' in Autogiro, Asks $2,000,000 for Experimentation.

The Army Air Corps is making secret tests of autogiro aircraft and sees "great possibilities" in them, Maj. Gen. Oscar Westover, chief of the corps, testified yesterday before the House Military Committee. The committee is considering a bill to appropriate $2,000,000 for such experimentation. Harold F. Pitcairn, president of the Autogiro Co. of America, said his company had developed an autogiro with all-metal body, the motor of which is behind the pilot and passengers. The rotor blades can be folded and the machine used as an automobile. Maj. Gen. G. A. Lynch, chief of Infantry, saw great value in the autogiro in controlling units on night marches, which are "going to be the rule in the future." Maj. E. N. Harmon, of the Army General Staff, said the War Department favored paying for continued tests from its regular appropriations.

A bill authorizing a $33,903,850 appropriation for 39 river and harbor projects in 14 States and Alaska was passed by the House yesterday and sent to the Senate. Authorization for Army engineers' study and survey of dozens of other proposed projects was included. Among them are the Baltimore harbor and channel project and the channel to the inland waterway from the Delaware River to Chesapeake Bay. The omnibus measure was described as the smallest in 20 years by Chairman Joseph J. Mansfield, of the Rivers and Harbors Committee. It will become effective only as future Congresses appropriate funds.

Senator Carter Glass (Democrat), of Virginia, introduced a joint resolution making permanent the authority of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation to purchase bank assets or make loans to insured banks for facilitating merging and consolidation of banks. Under present law the authority expires July 1.

Proposed construction of a bridge across the Delaware River near Wilmington, Del., was opposed before a House Interstate Commerce sub-committee by Maj. Gen. Julian L. Schley, Chief of Army Engineers. The War Department, he pointed out, has consistently opposed bridges across streams leading from oceans to industrial centers, and in the case of the Delaware, the location of the navy yard at Philadelphia added gravity to the proposal. Erecting the bridge might seriously impair the navy yard, he said.

Accumulated royalties from naval oil reserves, amounting to $29,000,000, will go to the reclamation fund under an amendment to the Interior Department appropriation bill, approved by both House and Senate. The amendment does not apply to future revenue, but only to that accumulated to date.

U.S. Should Get Ready for War, Pittman Avers

That Is Only Way to Keep Peace, Administration Spokesman Says.

By the United Press.

Senator Key Pittman (Democrat), Nevada, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and foreign policy spokesman for the Administration in Congress, declared yesterday that the United States must prepare for war as the most effective means of preserving peace.

Addressing a Veterans of Foreign Wars delegation which presented Congress with petitions signed by about 4,000,000 persons demanding the Government "keep America out of war," Pittman indorsed President Roosevelt's super-Navy program as a peace insurance policy.

The petition was given to Pittman by Scott P. Squyres, of Oklahoma City, V. F. W. commander-in-chief.

Seek U. S. Control.

Representing the Ladies Auxiliary of the V. F. W., National President Luarie M. Schertle, of Oakland, Calif., declared that "a moral uprising" among the women against wars for profit was developing.

Other developments concerning national defense included:

1. President Roosevelt signed the largest regular Navy appropriation in America's peace-time history, providing $546,868,494 for the fleet in the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Vandenberg Asks Limit.

2. Senator Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan, said he will introduce an amendment to the Navy expansion bill to limit battleship tonnage to 35,000 tons instead of the presently proposed 45,000.

3. Senator Holt (Democrat), of West Virginia, blocked Administration attempts to limit debate on the bill which leaders had hoped to bring to a vote tomorrow.

4. Senator Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, charged the Navy bill enactment will mean creation of a new foreign policy of "bluff and bluster" that might lead to war, and urged the United States to withdraw from the Philippine Islands and the Far East as soon as possible.

Would Kill Profits.

5. A Senate bloc, representing more than one-fourth of the entire membership, jointly introduced a measure to take the profits out of war by means of steeply graduated taxation.

Meanwhile, Senator Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, chairman of the Naval Affairs Committee, and Representative Carl Vinson (Democrat), of Georgia, head of the House Naval Affairs Committee, introduced a $28,751,000 public works authorization bill at the suggestion of Secretary Swanson, providing for drastic strengthening of Pacific defenses.

Strengthened Wage-Hour Bill Will Go to Committee Today

With odds heavily against action this session, a resurrected and strengthened wage-hour bill will be laid today before the same House Rules Committee which last session denied it right of way.

Chairman Mary T. Norton, of the House Labor Committee, will state the case for her rewritten wage "floor" and hour "ceiling" measure. Chairman John J. O'Connor of the House Rules Committee said his group would vote on a rule in the next 48 hours.

Despite renewed pressure for action by labor organizations, so slim were the prospects of Rules Committee approval that talk of petioning the measure out of committee by 218 House signatures was revived. This, too, was a forlorn hope in a session that has but a month to go.

Green Supports Bill.

Meantime, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, wrote all A. F. of L.-affiliated organizations to get behind the measure which he called a "federation of labor bill." At the same time he bitterly criticized John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization for "supine willingness . . . to accept any form of wages and hours legislation."

Republicans hold the balance of power in whatever action the Rules Committee may take on the wage measure. Four "switches" are needed to change the 10-to-4 alignment against the bill that existed formerly. There are just four Republican members, and all remained closed-mouthed yesterday. Only one of these—Representative Joseph W. Martin, jr., of Massachuzetts—is known to favor the principle underlying the new "escalator" measure.

Of the six committee Democrats who originally opposed a wage-hour bill report, only two are considered as even fair prospects by supporters of the measure, and a switch by even one Democrat appeared doubtful. Only four Democratic votes, led by Chairman O'Connor, were certain for the bill.

League Urges Petition.

As committee burial of the bill again threatened, Labor's Nonpartisan League released a statement urging Congressional friends of the bill to start circulating a petition to force House action. To date, House leaders and Representative Norton herself have opposed the petition method. They forced the bill to the floor last session by petition and it was promptly recommitted. Mrs. Norton yesterday was noncommittal on petition proposals, but pointed out that this course would delay adjournment if it were attempted.

The Labor Committee's new bill would place an immediate bottom of 25 cents an hour on wages, without sectional differentials. This minimum wage would be increased 5 cents an hour each year until an ultimate floor of 40 cents an hour was reached in three years. Hour provisions provide a 44-hour week the first year, working down to a 40-hour standard ceiling in two years.

"The significant, sound feature of this legislation is reflected in its provisions for a foundation for wages below which no employer can go, and a ceiling for hours above which no employer can require his employes to serve and work," Green said in his letter to A. F. of L. officials yesterday.

Opposed Last Measure.

He asked A. F. of L. organizations to "write and wire immediately" to members of Congress in support of the new bill. Green's organization obtained recommittal of the last wage-hour measure, opposing it because it permitted sectional differentials and allowed for administrative discretion in fixing wage-hour limits. The C. I. O. supported the former bill as well as the present one.

Mexico to Reduce Tariffs Affecting American Imports

By the Associated Press.

Sumner Welles, Undersecretary of State, said yesterday Mexican Ambassador Francisco Najera had assured him Mexican tariffs would be materially reduced, probably May 1.

Mexican tariffs were jumped in January in some cases as much as 200 per cent, the increase affecting principally United States exports.

SEC Quiz Told Whitney Made First Slip in '26

Misused 200 Shares of Father-in-Law's Stock, Accountant Says.

By the Associated Press.

Richard Whitney made illegal use of customers' securities "as far back as 1926," an accountant told the Securities Commission yesterday.

J. P. Lyss, assistant chief accountant investigator for the commission, testified at the commission's inquiry into the failure of Whitney's New York Stock Exchange firm, March 8, that examination of records showed Whitney, now serving a prison sentence for misappropriation of customer's securities, had illegally hypothecated 200 shares of Corporation Trust Co. of New York in 1926.

Lyss said the stock had been taken from the estate of George F. Sheldon, Whitney's father-in-law, and used as security for a loan from the Mechanics & Metals National Bank of New York, which later merged with another bank. He did not disclose the size of the loan. Also taken from the same account, he said, were 43 shares of Corporation Trust Co. of New Jersey.

Asked by John F. Davidson, SEC counsel, whether this was the first time Whitney had illegally used customers' securities, Lyss said, "I think that's as far back as we have positive proof."

Lyss also testified that Whitney, in 1937, pledged "worthless" assets for loans totaling $435,000 which he obtained from five big New York banks.

Joint Committee Lays Groundwork For TVA Inquiry

By the Associated Press.

A joint Congressional committee laid some of the groundwork yesterday for an investigation of the Tennessee Valley Authority, but members said only preliminary work would be undertaken before adjournment of Congress.

The committee elected Senator Donahey (Democrat), of Ohio, chairman and Representative Mead (Democrat), of New York, vice chairman. After authorizing Donahey to select a secretary and voting to request the General Accounting Office for its records on TVA, the committee recessed indefinitely.

Deferred until later were questions of policy, including the subjects to be covered by the inquiry, the time and place of hearing and the number of investigators to be employed.

United Jewish Appeal Rally Held by Youths

Catholic U. Maps Golden Jubilee

Trustees of Catholic University, holding their ninety-ninth annual board meeting this week, have appointed three new members to the committee arranging the university's golden jubilee next year. The appointees are William L. Galvin, of Baltimore; William H. Albers, of Cincinnati, and Theodore F. McManus, of Detroit.

Archbishop Curley, who also is chancellor of the university, presided. New board members present were the Most Rev. Thomas J. Walsh, Archbishop of Newark, and the Most Rev. John A. Floersh, Archbishop of Louisville.

At the same time was announced appointment of an administrative committee which will supervise awarding of the university's 70 fellowships and scholarships. The group includes Roy Joseph Deferrari, secretary general, chairman; the Very Rev. James Marshall Campbell, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences; Anthony James Scullen, dean of the School of Engineering and Architecture; the Right Rev. Francis J. Haas, dean of the School of Social Science; the Very Rev. Ignatius Smith, dean of the School of Philosophy; Martin Rawson Patrick McGuire, dean of the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences; the Very Rev. Robert James White, dean of the School of Law; Sister M. Olivia, dean of the School of Nursing; the Rev. Joseph N. LaRue, procurator, and Arthur J. Harriman, secretary.

Hoffman Seeks Data on Income Of Miss Perkins

By the United Press.

Representative Clare E. Hoffman (Republican), Michigan, last night demanded that the Senate Lobby Investigating Committee inquire into income tax returns of Secretary of Labor Francs Perkins and James Roosevelt, son and secretary of the President, to ascertain the sources of their outside income, if any.

Hoffman was aroused when newspapers in Amarillo, Tex., charged that during a recent Southwestern tour, Miss Perkins "boycotted" that city because an organization she was to have addressed refused to pay her several hundred dollars.

Miss Perkins was not available for comment, but a Labor Department spokesman said she had delivered a limited number of lectures for fees, "possibly seven or eight." He emphasized that it was common practice among Federal and Congressional officials to lecture for remuneration before admission-paying audiences.

Hoffman did not explain why he thought James Roosevelt's tax returns should be examined. Representatives Hamilton Fish (Republican), New York, President Roosevelt's home Congressman, made similar demands in the House last winter.

President Roosevelt's own story of his Administration

THE PUBLIC PAPERS AND ADDRESSES OF

Franklin D. Roosevelt

TO the many people in Washington and elsewhere who are vitally concerned with the past and future course of President Roosevelt's Administration, these volumes will be of the utmost importance. To an unprecedented extent, they reveal history-in-the-making.

Here is the answer to those who ask, "Where is the Administration taking us?" Here is the complete philosophy behind gold sterilization, governmental reorganization, the resettlement projects, the T. V. A., the P. W. A., the neutrality act, the armament program. On these and literally hundreds of other subjects which have involved administrative action, here is quickly accessible data—not only the important "public documents" themselves, but the President's latest and most authoritative views on them.

What President Roosevelt has done has been to take the reader behind the scenes during his career as Governor and President. It is a candid picture of the past five years, in the President's own words—all his messages, state papers, his most important campaign speeches, the Fireside Chats, the principal Press Conferences. Especially important are the Notes and Commentaries which he has added to them, written especially for these volumes.

Only a small portion of the new and original material written by the President for these volumes was published in magazines and newspapers.

These volumes unquestionably belong with the small shelf of primary source-books in American history. But their significance, to every one living in America today, is much greater: they are a day-to-day record of events which have profoundly affected our lives.

Each volume contains a portrait of the President, taken at the period concerned, and each contains a separate Introduction by the President. The volumes are completely cross-indexed. The regular edition, cloth, $15 for the set of 5 volumes boxed. Special, limited edition, bound in leather, $50 the set.

We invite you to come in NOW to see these volumes. They are unusually handsome and will be a real addition to any library. Or use the coupon below.

Dietz, 32 Pals Dismissed on Gaming Charge

Ruling on Wire Tapping Ruined Case, Pine Advises Court.

Dismissal of an indictment charging Abe (Jew Boy) Dietz and 32 cohorts with conspiracy to violate the gaming laws was ordered in District Court late yesterday when David A. Pine, United States Attorney, stated that in view of court rulings suppressing evidence that was to have been used in the trial, the Government had no case.

Justice Joseph W. Cox yesterday upheld motions that virtually invalidated the case against Dietz and his associates. Many of the motions related to the suppression of wire-tapping evidence which the United States Supreme Court recently held could not be used under the specific terms of the Federal communications act which forbade the use of intercepted interstate messages without the consent of either the sender or the receiver.

Justice Cox previously had ruled that use of the wire-tapping evidence could be prohibited and that all testimony predicated on that testimony should be suppressed. Yesterday, in ruling on other technical motions filed by attorneys in the case, he upheld the contention that the indictment had been faultily drawn.

Pine's Statement.

The statement by United States Attorney Pine asserted:

"This case cannot be successfully prosecuted without the introduction of evidence secured by intercepting telephone communications within the District of Columbia. Mr. Justice Cox has ruled, in sustaining motions to suppress, that such evidence is inadmissible under the Federal communications act. The Government cannot appeal from this ruling. The case is now at issue and must be tried or otherwise disposed of. Since it cannot be successfully prosecuted under the aforesaid ruling, the case is therefore nolled."

Dietz, whose real name is Pilisco, and his associates were indicted for conspiracy to violate the gaming laws. They maintained offices in the Albee Building and the Printcraft Building from which they sent to numerous places in the city late and up-to-the minute race track information.

At the time the raids were heralded as being crushing blows against gaming in the District, though no gaming charges were ever proferred.

Most of the testimony compiled by the Government was based on wire tapping, which was thrown out. Other associated bits of testimony were indirectly connected with the wire tapping and were likewise outlawed.

The raid against the Dietz outfit was one of a series in which police raided some 60 establishments in an attempt to stamp out gaming. The entering of the "nolles" brought an end to the case against Dietz and his associates. They were engaged in a lawful dissemination of track information, Attorneys Harry T. Whelan and William B. O'Connell asserted.

A. F. of L. Protests Labor Act Setup

American Federation of Labor protests against administration of the Wagner labor relations act by the National Labor Relations Board were resumed yesterday.

As William Green, A. F. of L. president declared the act was being administered "very, very badly," Joseph A. Padway, A. F. of L. counsel, told a House judiciary subcommittee that "all hell will break loose" if Congress passes unchanged the bill denying Government contracts to concerns which fail to abide by the Wagner act. The Federation insists that Federal courts, rather than the NLRB, shall determine whether a contractor has violated the act.

Telegraph Rates Will Not Increase

The Federal Communications Commission denied yesterday an application by the principal telegraph companies for a 15 per cent increase in domestic rates.

The companies were Postal Telegraph-Cable Co., Mackay Radio & Telegraph Co. (California), Mackay Radio & Telegraph Co. (Delaware), the Western Union Telegraph Co., and R. C. A. Communications, Inc.

Women Urged by O'Connell To Wage Fight on 'Indecency'

By the United Press.

Boston, April 27.—William Cardinal O'Connell, Archbishop of Boston, today urged Catholic women to war on indecent dress, plays, movies, books and magazines.

"Now the world is being flooded with what can only be called dirt, 'filth in every form,'" he told the Second Diocesan Congress of Catholic Women.

"There must be abnormal brains that conceive all this stuff, they must be insane, diabolical. We find it on the stage and in picture books. A woman who can sit through that stuff shouldn't go to church."

He urged a boycott on movies. "Don't go near the movies, the talkies," he said. "You must do without them if you want to save your soul."

The Cardinal condemned the "perfectly foolish fashions put into the world by people you wouldn't receive socially."

"Why do you follow them?" he said. "Because you're weakminded. Haven't you any ideas of your own?"

Just as there is "something queer in being an effeminate man," his eminence said, it is "equally queer to find a mannish woman. There is something abnormal in a woman attempting to dress up in men's clothes."

"When a woman dresses like a man, I can't see any excuse whether it's at the beaches or somewhere else. To my mind it's abhorrent."

The Cardinal believed that woman's "first and principal place" was in the home.

"Don't let modern pagan ideas shatter that ideal," he said. The modern woman is supposed to do everything but stay in the home. It's false; don't be deceived by it."

The congress adopted resolutions deploring the tendency of modern women to ape the immoral, indecent dress of movie actresses," and the decadence pervading the fine arts.

Mrs. Charles Feehan, president of the League of Catholic Women, yesterday criticized sharply the divorce views of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt. This will be answered by the First Lady at Symphony Hall here Friday night, a White House secretary at Washington indicated.

Lack of Funds Forces FBI to Curtail Activity

Bureau to Dismiss 74 and Give Month's Furlough to 670 Agents.

J. Edgar Hoover said last night that crime fighting activities of the Federal Bureau of Investigation will be drastically curtailed within the next few days.

At least six field offices will be closed, he said, 24 special agents and over 50 clerks here and in the field will be dismissed.

A shortage of operating funds, Hoover declared, already has forced him to close field offices in Hartford, Conn., and Phoenix, Ariz., and dismiss 20 employes of the local bureau.

The FBI, Hoover declared, faces a deficit of $107,083 in the $6,000,000 Congressional appropriation for the fiscal year 1938, which ends June 1.

In order to slash expenses, he said, the entire bureau staff of agents will be compelled to take furloughs during May and June. Half of the force of 670 G-men will be furloughed next month and the other half in June.

The bureau's training program will be eliminated because Hoover has no money with which to finance agents' transportation from the field to the Department of Justice school here.

"It is a tragic problem," Hoover said last night, "but I can see no other way out. We already have more work than we can handle and we haven't even money to keep up with current activities."

A total of 10,198 cases are now being investigated, Hoover said, and 8,298 others are "on the shelf" awaiting attention.

4 Found Dead in Plane Which Crashed in Gale

Visalia, Calif., April 27 (AP).—Joseph E. Elliot, superintendent of the Sequoia National Forest, said today a ground crew reached the wreckage of an airplane which vanished with four Visalia residents Monday, and that all were dead.

The plane, piloted by Dr. O. N. Lambert, was en route from Death Valley to Visalia when it disappeared in a storm. The others aboard were his wife, Mrs. Carolyn Lambert, her mother, Mrs. Frank Blain, and Miss Dorothy Davis, Dr. Lambert's office nurse.

Negotiations With Japan Met Only Rebuffs, Soviet Announces

By the Associated Press.

Moscow, April 27.—Soviet Russia tonight announced a deadlock in efforts to compose troubled relations with Japan. A communique declared the Soviet had appealed to Tokyo to meet them half way in settlement of nearly a dozen disputes which have increased friction in recent months.

The announcement disclosed that Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Slavutsky visited Foreign Minister Koki Hirota in Tokyo April 4, proposing five concessions from Japan in return for a similar number from Russia.

Hirota countered by further Japanese demands and a refusal of part of the Soviet program, the communique said.

Russia asked:

Release of the steamer Kuznetstroye.

Release of four Soviet citizens aboard the motorboat Dalles which was blown ashore to the Manchukuo on the Amur River in a storm.

Immediate payment of the $1,450,000 due Russia March 23, from Manchukuo as part of the purchase of the Chinese-Eastern Railway.

In return Russia promised:

To release eight Japanese held in reprisal for the Wimpel's detention.

To release Japanese fishing boats in custody.

To favorably consider Japan's claims to concessions on Sakhalin Island, where the Japanese seek to build an oil pipeline.

Hirota replied with demands for immediate signing of a new fisheries agreement, and refused to consider return of the Russian planes, release of the motorboat, or the railway claim.

On the latter point he referred Russia to Manchukuo.

Soviet authorities said negotiation of a fishing treaty would require some time.

The communique said:

"We are waiting for a definite answer from Japan on the proposals formulated by us. In case of a favorable answer we are ready to specify concessions which we consider possible on the basis of existing agreements."

Publicity Drive Slated to Force Prison Reform

Campaign to Get Under Way in Fall to Improve District Conditions.

Representatives of the Federation of Women's Clubs, the League of Women Voters, Board of Trade and other civic bodies yesterday pledged aid to the corrections committee of the Council of Social Agencies in a publicity drive to force the District to adopt prison reforms recommended by the Prison Industries Reorganization Administration.

Vincent Saccardi, chairman of the committee, called for a "fight for this to the finish no matter how long it takes," at a luncheon meeting also attended by prison authorities and welfare workers of the District Jail.

To Use All Mediums.

"We will use press, radio, forums and other methods to bring District residents a true picture of the shocking conditions of our penal institutions and an understanding of the recommendations contained in the report (of the administration)," Saccardi declared. He said the drive would be launched early in the fall.

Ray L. Huff, superintendent of District penal institutions; Capt. Thomas Rives, superintendent of the District Jail; Dr. James A. Nolan, director of the Washington Criminal Justice Association; Howard Gill, Dr. Gustave Peck and Miss Margaret Collins were some of the penal experts who attended.

Youth, 18, Held On 19 Charges By Grand Jury

The District grand jury yesterday indicted Francis A. Chase, colored, 18, on 19 charges of joy-riding, grand larceny, housebreaking and larceny and housebreaking.

Among 67 indictments were one against Margaret Long, colored, who was reported by four junior day detectives, who noticed her throwing papers from a handbag, later identified as coming from the home of Miss Betty Hammer, 603 North Carolina avenue southeast.

Those indicted were: Richard E. Shelton, nonsupport; Francis Wheeler, Harry Clemons, Douglas Gaither, John T. Dillard, David Curry, Claude Hall, William O. Davis, joy-riding; William H. Holt, Larry R. Wilcox, Warren Johnson, Vernon Wood, Albert R. Jones, Lloyd Walker, housebreaking; Lloyd Walker, Vernon Wood, Albert R. Jones, robbery; Richard Cummings, receiving stolen property; George F. Washington, housebreaking; Wallace Mitchell, robbery; Pedro Lucas, assault with intent to commit robbery; Thomas Dawkins, assault with intent to commit robbery; Elizabeth Mason, violation of the liquor taxing act; Howard T. Ferguson and Jeff Histon, violation of the Harrison narcotic act; Howard J. Mutchler, violation of section 73, Title 18, U. S. code.

Women Voters Urged to Save Our Democracy

Mrs. Meyer Asserts Best Defense Is to Improve 'U. S. System.'

Special Dispatch to The Post.

St. Louis, Mo., April 27.—"The best way to defend democracy throughout the world is by making our own system an outstanding success," Mrs. Eugene Meyer, wife of the publisher of The Washington Post, advised the National League of Women Voters here tonight.

Democracy must arm to defend itself, she said in an address at the thirteenth convention, but the most effective offensive it can adopt is "a reassertion of our faith in the power and dignity of the human spirit."

Pointing out that "nobody is going to love democracy on an empty stomach," Mrs. Meyer urged immediate solution of the unemployment problem as an essential step in the rehabilitation of the American system.

Must Stop Extravagance.

"We must stop Government extravagance and put relief under nonpartisan control," she went on. "We must fight political corruption and inefficiency throughout the country, for we cannot afford either one of them."

She litsed improvement of the Civil Service, "a positive stand on foreign affairs," and "expansion of free educational facilities" among other requirements for the survival of democracy.

"We must reinvigorate democracy to a point where its innate strength will once more triumphantly assert itself," she declared.

"We must live it with renewed conviction and intelligence, not only for the sake of our own future, but to help preserve the ideal of political and spiritual freedom throughout the world."

Referring to the American people as "the living embodiment of the theory that progress is a human and not a racial destiny," Mrs. Meyer paid tribute to President Roosevelt for "his respect for the rights of the comman man" and "his liberal attitude toward the political outcasts of Europe."

The convention will elect national officers tomorrow. Miss Marguerite M. Wells, of Minneapolis, today was nominated for re-election as president, and Mrs. Harris P. Baldwin, of Washington, first vice president, also was presented for re-election.

Other officers who probably will be re-elected are Mrs. Paul Eliel, of Stanford University, California, secretary, and Mrs. La Rue Brown, of Boston, a director.

New Nominees.

New nominees today are Mrs. Donald Hutchinson, of New York, for second vice president; Mrs. Walter Fisher, of Winnetka, Ill., for treasurer, and Mrs. Ruric N. Smith, Tulsa, Okla.; Mrs. George Gellhorn, of St. Louis, and Mrs. Elliott Corbett, of Portland, Me., for directors.

Speakers who addressed the delegates earlier today were Alvin H. Hansen, professor of political economy at Harvard University, and Herbert Emmerich, associate director of the Administration Clearing House.

Hansen urged that "an earnest desire to find and execute constructive programs of economic adjustment" supplant the current opposition for reform. "This we have a right to expect of the active elements of the community—business and labor leaders, members of the professions and women of the Nation," he declared.

Stressing the importance of administrative efficiency, Emmerich told the women that "the old tradition favoring amateur administrators and professional politicians" should be abolished.

"The public and the elected Legislatures are more interested in policy and program than they are in administration, except that when they are irritated by excessive delay or blundering by an official," he said.

"Public interest in new legislation is focused on the objectives, not on the mechanics by which it will be enforced or administered."

Father Murphy's Rites Are Today

Requiem mass will be solemnized in Dahlgren Chapel at Georgetown University today at 8 a. m. for the Rev. Francis Fay Murphy, S. J., professor of economy and sociology, who died Sunday in West Palm Beach, Fla.

The celebrant will be the Rev. James T. Sweeney, S. J., vice provincial of the Maryland-New York province of the Society of Jesus. Interment will be in the college cemetery.

Father Murphy's body was brought to Washington yesterday. The requiem mass will be preceded by the office of the dead at 5 o'clock this afternoon in Dahlgren Chapel. Members of his family who will attend the funeral include his father, Daniel K. Murphy, of Utica, N. Y.; two brothers, George Murphy, of Utica; the Rev. Brother Donation Joseph, of Providence, R. I., and two cousins, Miss Gertrude Fenner, of Baltimore, and Sister M. Rosa, of Providence Hospital, Washington.

Funeral Rites For Catherine Curtin

Requiem mass for Catherine Curtin, 10-year-old daughter of James Clinton Curtin, foreman of the Washington Times Press Room, and Mary Caldwell Curtin, will be held at 10 a. m. today at St. Gabriel's Church, Grant Circle. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Catherine, a fifth-grade pupil at St. Gabriel's parochial school, died early Tuesday. Besides her parents, she leaves a brother, Joseph, 13, and a sister, Mary Theresa Curtin, 4. They live at 518 Varnum street northwest.

3 Hurt in Truck-Automobile Crash

Three persons were injured when a light sedan (left) telescoped into the cab of an eight-ton truck last night at First street and New York avenue northeast. A Robert Thomasen, 27, driver of the sedan; his father, William Thomasen, both of 149 U street northwest, and Mrs. Amie Thomasen, the driver's mother, were taken to Sibley Hospital, where the men were released after treatment for back injuries. Mrs. Thomasen suffered head injuries. The truck driver, R. C. Baker, 31, of Auburndale, Fla., was uninjured.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

New York Grand Opera Company presents Puccini's "Madam Butterfly" in Constitution Hall Wednesday night. The cast:

Cio-Cio San ..... Rose Tentoni
Pinkerton .... Armand Tokatyan
Sharpless ..... Joseph Royer
Suzuki ..... Grace Angelau
Goro ..... Carlo Lodovici
The Bonzo ..... Nino Ruisi
Prince Yamadori
Abrasha Robofski
Conductor: Pietro Cimara

Despite the scenic makeshifts to which patrons of opera in Constitution Hall have become accustomed, a creditable performance of Puccini's "Madam Butterfly" was given last evening by a company recruited from the artistic staff of the Metropolitan. In fact, the merits of the presentation were such that one regrets that a larger audience did not witness it, for every role was in experienced hands, the orchestra was adequate and effective as well, and the action as well timed and smooth as though it had been taking place on an equipped stage.

Rose Tentoni, making her first appearance here, impressed one with the purity and clearness of her voice which has a steady tone and accuracy of pitch. Its range was fully proportioned to the demands of the music, and there was no weakening of the timbre in the high tessitura. Her characterization was carefully studied, and her imitation of gesture and demeanor as convincing as an Occidental can achieve. Those who have seen Tamaka Miura in the role knew that only a Japanese singer is an ideal Cio-Cio San even though the voice may fall short of perfection.

Although Armand Tokatyan's tenor was not all that could have been desired in sweetness and plasticity, he sang his lines with a robust surety and dramatic emphasis. Joseph Royer was a poised and capable Sharpless, albeit a little rough in tone, and the Suzuki of Grace Angelau, whose voice is well colored, was a balanced impersonation. Carlo Lodovici did an excellent piece of work as the fussy marriage broker, Goro.

As usual, the orchestral finale of the first act was completely overwhelmed by the applause following the duet. Had Puccini known American audiences better, he could have prepared a special version for this country, stopping with a full chord, but he was writing for Italians, who love music more than vocal feats. The iridescent color of that finale is not a thing to be shattered by clamor, but that is what generally happens to it.

It is recorded that Puccini once remarked that he never listened to his operas with pleasure, with the possible exception of the last act of "La Boheme." But when it was a question of "Madama Butterfly," he said, "Yes, the whole opera both interests and entertains me. I am conscious that in it I have written the most modern of my operas." He would not have said this had he lived to hear "Turandot."

"Madama Butterfly" is modern in that it realistically employs Japanese folk flavor and in that the whole-tone scales and harmonic sequences have a Debussyan reflection. But it is not the modernity that gives the opera its charm; rather is it the power of suggestion and the peculiar exotic aroma, combined with the dulcet quality of the melodies.

J. Franklyn Viola presents Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Gondoliers or the King of Barataria," in the Rialto Theater. The cast:

Luiz (His Attendant) ..... Harrison Fuller
Don Alhambra Del Bolero (The Grand Inquisitor) ..... William Danforth
Marco Palmieri ..... James Montgomery
Giuseppe Palmieri ..... John Eaton
Antonio) ..... Walter Bach Francesco) (Venetian Gondoliers) ..... James Allison
The Duchess of Plaza-Toro ..... Anne-Yago
Casilda (Her Daughter) ..... Kixie Theide
Gianetta ..... Kathryn Reece
Tessa ..... Dean Dickens
Fiametta) (Contadine) ..... Frances Baviello Vittoria) ..... Gertrude Waldon
Giulia ..... Eleanor Gilmore
Inez (The King's Foster-Mother ..... Marion Ross
Conductor: Max Pichandler.

The Rialto on Venice's Grand Canal last night seemed more crowded than the Rialto on Ninth street. This was Washington's loss, for "The Gondoliers" is certainly one of the most tuneful of the whole series which Gilbert and Sullivan gave us.

"The Gondoliers" is Gilbert in his stride and Sullivan at his best. Here he is making fun of no one else's melodies, but spinning light ones for himself. "When a Merry Maiden Marries," "Take a Pair of Sparkling Eyes" and the Gavotte at the finals are as pure delight as is found in Sir Arthur's scores. "Dance a Cachuca, Fandonga, Bolero" is as modern as today, and in the entrance of the Duke and his suite as well as Giuseppe's song at the beginning of act two, we have true Gilbertian patter.

Finch Expects 100,000 Voters, 90% for Ballot

Suffrage Leader States Colored Will Never Dominate D. C.

A "minimum of 100,000" voters will go to the polls on Saturday on the question of local suffrage, Wilbur S. Finch, president of the Citizens Conference, predicted last night.

Finch expects 90 per cent to indorse local suffrage. He said he based his figures on reports from the 63 precincts and from personal comments throughout the city.

Other developments yesterday included a radio speech by the conference president in which he said that "Washington can have no Negro mayor;" a flood of 200,000 sample ballots, posters and street-car signs was being prepared for appearance today; rules for voting and suffrage were announced; detailed plans for a torchlight parade were formulated by the Junior Board of Commerce.

Balloting Secret.

In his talk over WJSV, Finch quoted population statistics to show that colored persons will not dominate Washington elections.

Balloting will be secret, according to the ten rules released yesterday by William Mondell, in charge of precinct organizatoin. Last night Mondell re-emphasized that voting Saturday will not jeopardize voting rights in any of the 48 States.

An invitation to civic, fraternal and patriotic organizations to participate in the torchlight parade was given last night by the Junior Board of Commerce. The parade will form at John Marshall place and C street northwest, march up to Thirteen-and-a-half and E streets northwest, and disband for a rally in the park at Fourteenth and E streets. Organizations planning to march in the parade are asked to call the Junior Board at District 3535.

Three Prizes Listed.

The junior board added that three prizes will be awarded during the celebration: $10 for the best political speech on suffrage, limited to 2½ minutes; $5 for the best poster, slogan or placard; $5 for the best costume or stunt.

At a luncheon of the organization, scheduled for the Annapolis Hotel at 12:15 today, Congressman Jennings Randolph will be the principal speaker. Plans will also be discussed for "shock troops" of volunteer workers to get voters to the polls; precinct captains needing volunteers are asked to call Charles F. Smoot at District 5500.

S. J. Dean Funeral Set for Tomorrow

Spencer Joseph Dean, 57, watchman at The Washington Post for more than 20 years, died last night in Providence Hospital after an illness of six months. Pneumonia was the immediate cause of death, although Mr. Dean had been suffering from arthritis complicated by heart trouble and a fractured rib suffered in a fall last year.

He was the father of ten children, the eldest 34 years old, the youngest, twins, 10.

Mr. Dean came to Washington from his birthplace, Mechancsville, Md., when he was 17. His home was 143 E street southeast.

He was a member of the Holy Name Society of St. Peter's Church, where funeral services will be held at 9 a. m. tomorrow. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Beatrice Dean; daughters, Helen Beatrice, the eldest child; Erma, Mildred and Marie, and sons, Elmer, Joseph Spencer, Chester, Raymond and the twins, Warren and Gilbert. All live in Washington.

Mrs. Heath Follows Husband in Death

Mrs. Clara C. Heath, wife of Howard V. Heath, World War veteran, who was found dead a week ago in Rock Creek Park, died Tuesday at her home, 1321 Twenty-first street northwest. Although in ill health for several months, death was believed due to the shock of her husband's death.

Mr. and Mrs. Heath had lived here for 12 years. Her husband was a clerk in the Library of Congress. She was a native of England. Funeral services have not yet been completed, but plans are being made for her burial beside her husband in Arlington Cemetery.

Mrs. Julia L. Hastings Rites Set Tomorrow

Services for Mrs. Julia L. Hastings, of 521 Fourteenth street northeast, will be held in Arlington Cemetary tomorrow at 1:45 p. m.

Mrs. Hastings, who died Tuesday at the age of 83, was a lifelong resident of Washington and the widow of Silas W. Hastings, Civil War veteran.

Building-Loan British Chief Talks on Plans

Tells Convention Here How Co-operation Furthers Housing Program.

Co-operation of large building organizations with the societies which lend money for home purchases, is largely responsible for Great Britain's home building upturn promoting its economics recovery, Sir. Harold Bellman, English building society leader, informed American building and loan men yesterday at the Mayflower Hotel.

Addressing more than 200 representatives of associations in the District of Columbia and 11 States composing the Southeastern Conference, United States Building and Loan League, Sir Harold, president, International Congress of Building Societies, told how the British housing plan had been advanced.

20-Year Loans.

Chairman and managing director of the Abbey Road Building Society, of London, a $250,000,000 institution, Sir Harold explained that loans run for 20 years, or sometimes even longer, if there are wide margins of security. Costs are kept down and when 90 per cent loans are made they are on properties with maximum costs of from $1,500 to $1,750 and where borrowers have unquestioned credit character and loan performance.

Sir Harold will speak again tonight at a banquet at the hotel in his honor by the United States league, and at which Edward C. Baltz, of this city, league president, will preside. Chairman John H. Fahey of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, Vice President Thomas S. Holden, of F. W. Dodge Corporation, and Senator Robert J. Bulkley, of Ohio, will talk before the main address. Directors of the national league meet today and conference officers will be elected for the next administrative year.

Sees Ten Good Years.

This country may look forward to a period of substantial building for possibly ten years, the meeting was informed yesterday by Lowell J. Chawner, of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, who said the number of new units added during this period might average 600,000 annually. He described as a national need in this field, a five-room house costing $25 to $35 a month. Comparison of nearly 40 years' statistics disclosed that trends in building are influenced by ownership, construction and financing costs, he added.

Discussing the downward trend of return on capital as reflected in bank-deposit rates, Government bond yields and the policies of numerous savings, building and loan institutions, Carl J. Bergmann, local building association executive, said the choice among most managers now is whether they will maintain dividend rates at existing levels, which in some institutions are almost as high as before the depression, or whether there will be a general planing to a maximum around 3½ per cent.

A. D. Theobald, Chicago, recommended to individual associations apportionment of one-fourth of 1 per cent of assets annually for advertising, preferably through newspapers. Mr. Theobald is director of education and research, American Savings and Loan Institute.

9 D. C. Citizens On Vocational Education Unit

School Board Picks Three Groups — Employers, Employes, Housewives.

Nine Washington citizens were appointed by the board of education yesterday on an advisory committee for vocational education.

The committee, of which Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent, is to be executive chairman, will assist the board in developing its vocational education program and advise it in forming policies governing vocational training as part of the board's efforts to co-operate with the George-Deen act, which provides Federal funds for vocational education.

The committee personnel was chosen from employers, employes and homemakers. The nine members appointed are:

Employers: Herman Carl, president of Call Carl, Inc.; John H. Hasley, general manager, Palais Royal Store; Charles H. Fearing, business manager of the Washington branch, North Carolina Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Employes—D. C. Dow, Plumbers Local Union, No. 5, and a member of the Board of Plumbing Examiners for the District; C. F. Preiler, business manager of the Electrical Workers Local Union, No. 26, and president of the Washington Building Trades Council, and Hilyard R. Robinson, architect employed in the United States Department of Interior.

Each group includes two white members and one colored. Each member will serve for a one-year term, and is eligible for reappointment.

The board authorized occupancy of the Truesdell School addition as soon as it has been inspected by the committee on buildings, grounds and equipment, and approved by the District Commissioners.

The annual schoolboy patrol parade was set for Saturday, May 7. Child Health Day, May 1, will be observed in the schools this week. Summer school will open July 5.

Cleveland Man Still Charged In Parsons Case

Attorney Not to Return, His Sister Says, and Can't Forfeit Collateral.

Although recent traffic troubles of Representative Claude V. Parsons (Democrat), Illinois, were ended yesterday by Corporation Counsel Elwood Seal, Albert B. Nesbitt, Cleveland attorney, must still face a conviction in charges growing from the same accident.

The attorney was driving an auto which figured in a collision with Parsons' car last February. Nesbitt was charged with failing to give a hand signal. In ordering dismissal of charges against Parsons, Seal told his Police Court assistant:

"If, in the Nesbitt case, Mr. Nesbitt desires to forfeit, I think you should recommend to the court that this be done."

In an uncontested case, a forfeiture is carried on the records as a conviction.

However, neither Parsons nor Nesbitt posted bond on the charges, so there will be nothing for Nesbitt to forfeit.

Miss Margaret Ellis, of 2603 Connecticut avenue northwest, sister of Nesbitt, said last night her brother had decided to "wash his hands of the whole thing" and would not return again to Washington. Nesbitt was called here as a witness against Parsons twice previously. Both times the case was postponed.

Scientists Plead For U. S. to Lift Spain Embargo

President Urged to Act to Thwart Fascism; Fleming Honored.

Eighteen of the country's leading scientists, including two Nobel Prize winners, yesterday asked President Roosevelt to lift the arms embargo against Spain, thereby "performing a great service both for science and for democracy.

The move was considered significant in the field of science because American scientists have generally remained silent in discussions of political or international problems. They condemned spread of fascism.

All signers of the letter are members of the National Academy of Sciences, the nation's foremost scientific body. Although the academy's name was not mentioned, the letter to the President was circulated at the academy's annual meeting which concluded yesterday.

"As citizens of this country, but primarily as scientists," they wrote, "we are concerned about the spread of fascism throughout the world. It has been the experience of science that authoritarian governments create a climate in which the search for knowledge cannot proceed and in which scientists cannot function.

True for All People.

"We therefore seek the preservation in our own country of that democratic tradition which has allowed science to advance. And, since learning knows no national boundaries, we seek also the preservation or extension of democracy in other lands. What is true for scientists is true also for all men and women who want freedom to improve their lot."

The arms embargo proclaimed in May, 1937, was invoked to protect the peace of this country, they said.

"Today is is clear that, whatever its nature in May of 1937, the war in Spain is now a war of invasion and conquest. There is reason to doubt that the embargo now protects the peace of the United States. On the contrary, it may jeopardize that peace by encouraging the Fascist nations to proceed with their use of war as an instrument of national policy.

"We believe that giving the Spanish republic an opportunity to defend their country more effectively against the spread of fascism would be to act in defense of world democracy and American freedom.

Notables Sign Plea.

Nationally and internationally famous scientists to sign the letter were Harold C. Urey, professor of chemistry, Columbia University; Harlow Shapley, director, Harvard Observatory; Arthur H. Compton, professor of physics, University of Chicago; F. R. Moulton, permanent secretary, American Association for the advancement of Science; J. McKeen Cattell, science editor; Edwin G. Conklin, professor of biology, Princeton University; George H. Parker, professor of zoology, Harvard University; Edmund W. Sinnott, professor of botany, Columbia University; Sewall Wright, professor of zoology; Robert S. Mulliken, professor of physics, University of Chicago.

F. K. Richtmyer, dean, graduate school, Cornell University; S. A. Mitchell, professor of astronomy, University of Virginia; Charles A. Kraus, professor of chemistry, Brown University; Oswald Veblen, professor of mathematics, Institute for Advanced Study, Princeton University; S. Lefschetz, professor of mathematics, Princeton University; Arthur B. Coble, professor of mathematics, University of Illinois, and J. F. Ritt, professor of mathematics, Columbia University.

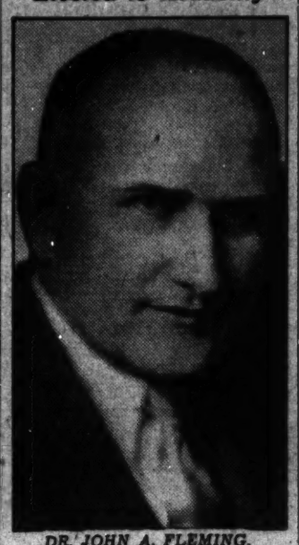
District Man Honored.

Fifteen new members, the maximum number allowed in one year, were elected to the academy yesterday. Dr. John A. Fleming, director of the department of terrestrial magnetism, Carnegie Institution of Washington, was the only Washingtonian.

Others elected were Carl D. Anderson and Theodore von Karman, California Institute of Technology; Walter H. Bucher, University of Cincinnati; Edward A. Doisy, St. Louis University; Warren K. Lewis, Massachusetts Institute of Technology; William deB. MacNider, University of North Carolina; Carl S. Marvel and Worth H. Rodebush, University of Illinois; Theophilus S. Painter, University of Texas; Lewis J. Stadler, University of Missouri; George W. Stewart, University of Iowa; Louis I. Thurstone, University of Chicago; Marshall H. Stone and Simeon B. Wolbach, Harvard University.

Two new members were elected to the council of the academy for three-year terms. They were F. K. Richtmyer, dean, graduate school, Cornell University, and F. D. Merrill, of Arnold Arboretum, Jamaica Plains, N. Y. Four new foreign associates were also elected.

Elected to Academy



DR. JOHN A. FLEMING, director of the department of terrestrial magnetism, Carnegie Institution of Washington, who yesterday was one of 15 scientists and the only Washingtonian elected to the National Academy of Sciences.

Ford Lunches With Roosevelt; Feud Near End

Ford

of New York after the conference, there came a report that the luncheon discussion was marked by something of a debate over the President's spending program, between the motor manufacturer and Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the board of governors of the Federal Reserve System. Eccles was said to have read to Ford a prepared statement upholding the spending-lending program to restore prosperity, but the latter was reported to have expressed doubt that the Federal Reserve head knew what he was talking about.

Asked last night if he would confirm the report, Eccles refused to make "any comment whatever" on the White House conference. He said that if any statement were made it would have to come from another source.

At two minutes to one p. m. Ford, in the huge black seven-passenger Lincoln sedan, which is the official car of Attorney General Cummings, swung up to the front door of the White House, the one-and-one-quarter-inch-thick bullet-proof glass windows rolled down for ventilation in the sunny afternoon.

The magnate, Edsel Ford, his son; William J. Cameron, the short, plump radio spokesman for Ford, and Major Henry Cunningham, of Washington, head of Ford's Alexandria agency, left the car here. Cunningham was in charge of Ford's arrangements.

Luncheon Served Inside.

G. Hall Roosevelt, Mrs. Roosevelt's brother, who arranged the meeting, greeted the guests at the door as they were whisked past 200 hand-clapping spectators and two score newspapermen and photographers.

Luncheon, originally planned for the south portico, was served instead in the small family dining room because of a reported chill in the air, a chill which was not discernible to the perspiring newspapermen who kept a two-hour vigil at the entrance.

The scene of the luncheon is a simple room, not ornate in furnishings, with only four major objects in it—a portrait of John Tyler when he was Vice President; a hand-made silver ship model about 3 feet in length, made by the Mohawk Indians and presented to President Ulysses S. Grant, a Portuguese wine chest and a mahogany Duncan Phyfe dining table.

Another Talk Is Held.

After nearly an hour the group adjourned upstairs to the President's oval study, which formerly was the executive office of the mansion, for another hour's talk.

On leaving, the slender, graying, stooped industrialist, who was dressed in a gray suit, white shirt and maroon tie, waved his hands, palms out, in a negative gesture, at the horde of newsmen who asked comment as he rushed to his car.

"We don't do that," he said.

A reporter asked if the luncheon was pleasant.

"Sure," he said, and the car rolled away to Union Station, where he left for New York for an appearance tomorrow at a dinner of the American Newspaper Publishers Association. On his train he took two Washington correspondents for Detroit papers, Jay Hayden, of the Detroit News, and Clifford Prevost, of the Detroit Free Press.

"Country Is All Right."

En route to New York he told newsmen on the train that "the country is all right and will continue to be all right as long as the people continue to think."

He said payment of an annual wage had not been discussed, and that he had not proffered advice to the President on the depression's problems. Stressing the personal nature of the visit, he said he had not seen Mr. Roosevelt since the latter was Assistant Secretary of the Navy "nearly 20 years ago."

A Consistent Opponent.

The 75-year-old multimillionaire has not been to the White House in this Administration, and has been one of its most consistent opponents, particularly in its attempts to regulate business. He refused to hang out a Blue Eagle, symbol of the now defunct NRA; he bitterly opposed the undivided profits tax, of which only a shred remains in the new tax bill, and he has fought all moves tending toward unionization of his vast industrial empire. For the latter, he is now in the toils of the National Labor Relations Board, with a lengthy court fight over its findings ahead.

G. Hall Roosevelt said after the luncheon that "nothing in the conversation smacked of commercialism. It was all just a family conversation. There was very little economics in the discussion."

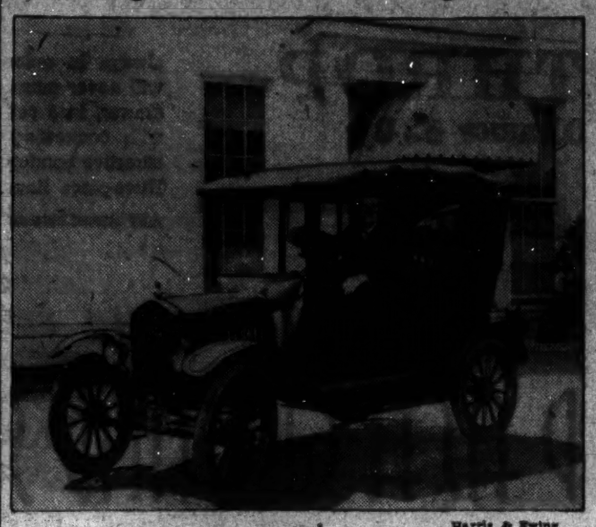
Secretary Roper, meanwhile, praising the attitude of the 16 industrial, banking and insurance executives who signed an unsolicited pledge of support for the Administration in its fight on the depression, said he would try to arrange a conference of these leaders through his Business Advisory Council, to which some of them belong.

Arnold, Cohen Present.

At the afternoon White House session on the monopoly message, Thurman W. Arnold, Assistant Attorney General in charge of anti-trust cases, and Ben Cohen, one of the President's advisers on legislation, were present with the President, Jackson and Cummings.

After Ford's arrival yesterday morning he motored about the city sightseeing and then visited the Navy Department offices he shared with his friend, the late Thomas A. Edison, during the World War, when Ford built 60 Eagle boats—patrol craft and submarine chasers—for the Navy, six of which are still in service. He was greeted by Edison's son, Charles, now Assistant Secretary of the Navy, and Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations.

Vintage Ford Misses Seeing Maker



Harris & Ewing.

Ernest Franke, retired Washington baker, of 1366 C street southeast, drove this "late 1921 model" Ford around the White House many times yesterday, hoping to show Henry Ford how well the aged equipage still ran. Franke was disappointed, as White House guards waved him away, but he maintained stout allegiance to the Detroit billionaire, because, he said, "My speedometer broke after it reached 500,000 miles, and so I don't know how far this thing has gone, but it's a-plenty."

Gen. Reisinger's Wife Sues for a Limited Divorce

Brig. Gen. Harold C. Reisinger, of the United States Marine Corps, who was recently placed on the voluntary retired list, was sued in District Court yesterday by his wife, Mrs. Daisie Reisinger, 2123 California street northwest, for a limited divorce on the grounds of separation and desertion.

According to the complaint, Gen. Reisinger will receive pay of $625 a month until May 1, at which date he will be retired and will receive $375 a month. The bill asserted the Marine officer deserted his wife in August, 1932. Married in 1904, the couple have no children.

Gen. Reisinger was ordered retired after charges had been brought against him in the Marine Corps.

Farmers Indorse 'Mushroom Revolt' On Crop Control

Macomb, Ill., April 27 (U.P.).—Farm delegates of six States tonight indorsed the Corn Belt Liberty League's "mushroom revolt" against provisions of the Federal Government's crop control program.

More than 3,000 farmers, most of them from Illinois, but with delegations also representing Ohio, Indiana, Missouri, Iowa and Minnesota, jammed the Macomb Armory and overflowed into the roped-off streets, where a heavy rain was falling.

Delegates reaffirmed a resolution passed at the organization meeting a week ago, protesting to President Roosevelt provisions of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

Earle Dismisses Atty. General In 'Fraud' Fight

Democratic finance committee chairman, holds almost $10,000,000 of them.

Earle and Charles Alvin Jones are the candidates of the State committee for United States Senator and Governor, respectively. Another faction is backed by United States Senator Joseph F. Guffey and John L. Lewis, with a ticket headed by Mayor Wilson for United States Senator and Lieut. Gov. Thomas Kennedy for Governor.

Interference Charged.

Pittsburgh, April 27 (A.P.).—Mayor S. Davis Wilson of Philadelphia tonight charged Gov. George H. Earle was attempting to block investigation of charges by ousted Attorney General Margiotti that legislation was bought for cash, and asked a grand jury investigation.

At the same time Wilson demanded that Earle resign as Democratic national committeeman, David L. Lawrence as State chairman, Ralph Bashore as secretary of the State committee and Matthew H. McCloskey as chairman of the finance committee. Earle was not named in Margiotti's charges.

Meanwhile ten former WPA supervisors began new jobs today after their transfer or demotion from the supervisory positions because they were "actively engaged in campaigning for the Jones-for-Governor ticket," WPA Director James R. Kesner announced here.

"The WPA will continue to transfer and fire men if we catch them engaged in political activity—and that goes for both sides," Kesner said.

Expert Is Quizzed In Bennett Trial

A day long examination of a New York City jewel expert yesterday marked the trial of Eula Mae Bennett, her husband, James Bennett, and David Pinas, who are charged with transporting into the District stolen jewelry worth $6,600.

The expert, William H. Perry, estimated the jewels to be worth $6,781.50, while the indictment alleges $6,600 and the law requires a valuation of at least $5,000. The defense is expected to oppose strenuously the valuation placed on the jewels by Government experts.

Judge Joseph Buffington Retirement Set May 14

By the Associated Press.

Judge Joseph Buffington, senior member of the Third Circuit Court of Appeals, has notified superiors here he intends to retire May 14.

Memorial Dedicated.

Prince Frederick, Md., April 27 (A.P.)—A handsome memorial window has been dedicated in St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal Church here in memory of the late John Brown Gray, well known Calvert County attorney, who died last August, and to his wife, Mrs. Kate Laveille Gray, who died in 1916.

mized testimony of Walter G. Blackburn, FBI handwriting expert. Oxley asserted highly paid auditors and experts had "hounded" Souder, who had lost his job and was "without funds to hire experts for himself."

Throughout the session, Souder's wife, son and daughter sat beside him. The trial began Monday.

Denies Forgeries.

Earlier in the day, Souder, who faces 66 indictments involving about $3,000, took the stand in his own defense. Under direct examination, he said he had not forged any signatures to relief checks issued from his office. He said he had cashed some checks given him in repayment for loans.

Souden denied he had received the check for the Jackson burial, or that he had asked Snyder to inform the State's auditor that the check had been received.

Families of Dead Miners Receive Compensation

Richmond, April 27 (A.P.).—Chairman Parke P. Deans, of the Virginia Industrial Commission, said today officials of the Red Jacket Coal Mining Co. had notified him that they were beginning payments under the State compensation law to dependents of the 45 miners killed last Friday in the explosion that wrecked the Keen Mountain Mine, near Grundy.

The company already has paid funeral expenses, Deans said, and had informed the commission that in practically all cases the dependents would receive the maximum payments of $14 a week for 360 weeks.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys—How To Get Happy Relief

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait. Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills. Adv.

A rare treat—now you can see it!

The Dance of The NAVAJOS

To the Indian, his dances are his prayers. And he guards his dances sacredly. It's a treat for an outsider to see these ceremonies, on or off the Indian reservations. Yet for the Fifth Annual National Folk Festival, the famous Navajo Indians are going to bring you their age-old ceremonies and famous songs which will be a treat you will never forget. They will do the "yei be-chai" dance . . . the skip dance . . . the round dance . . . the feather dance . . . and the fire dance. In addition to these dances, many unusual pieces of Navajo silverware will be exhibited during the Folk Festival.

Sudeten Union Is Inevitable, Nazis Declare

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, April 27.—A German cabinet member told the Associated Press today that union of Czechoslovakia's Sudeten Germans with Germany "is inevitable and the only question is whether it can be done without shedding blood."

"If shots should be fired in connection with the Czechoslovak problem, the first will not come from Germany, but from Poland," he added, without elaborating his point.

"There are some 80,000 Poles in eastern Czechoslovakia in the region near the Polish frontier.

"Don't Care for Bloodshed."

"We firmly believe the Sudeten question will be settled between Germany and the Czechs without application of warlike measures, because Sudeten Germans simply will demand to join their natural fatherland."

These Sudeten Germans live in the horseshoe-shaped mountainous region which circles the western half of Czechoslovakia, jutting into Germany.

"If the Czechs realized that France and England do not care to squander the life blood of their soldiers for a foreign state, the Czechs, too, would settle matters with Germany by ceding the Sudetic regions," the official said.

Leader Appointed.

One significant development of the day was the announcement that Hans Krebs, formerly of Iglau, Czechoslovakia, had been given the rank of Nazi gauleiter (district leader).

He was given no gau, or province, to administer, but the general deduction was that his job soon would present itself—that of gauleiter for the Sudetic German region.

Anglo-French Talks to Begin.

London, April 27 (AP).—France's premier and former minister arrived today to pool plans with British ministers for building a bulwark of friendships as a shield against German expansion.

Premier Daladier and Foreign Minister Bonnet were met by Viscount Halifax, foreign secretary.

With Prime Minister Chamberlain they will open formal talks tomorrow on how to turn the new Anglo-Italian pact into a triple tower of strength overshadowing the Rome-Berlin axis.

Most important topics were the situations in Czechoslovakia and Spain, Anglo-Italian and French-Italian relations, the war in the Far East, the forthcoming League Council meeting May 9, when Britain intends to seek recognition of Italy's conquest of Ethiopia, and widespread mutual defense problems.

Japanese Open New Drive Into Moslem China

Chiang Calls Upon Sons of Prophet to Fight Invaders.

By the Associated Press.

Shanghai (Thursday), April 28.—Japanese forces have launched a drive into Mohammedan northwest China, where Gen. Chiang Kai-shek has called upon Chinese sons of the prophet to rally to his standard.

The new drive, in the direction of Outer Mongolian spheres of Soviet Russian influence, apparently is designed to sever the ancient silk caravan routes which have been used to bring Russian war supplies to Chiang's armies.

In the southern Shantung Province area of major hostilities, Japanese told of minor advances against the Lunghai Railway, vital east-west communication line through the center of the unconquered portion of central China.

Shanghai found new British-Japanese tension relieved today with the release of the British steamer Tungwo, which had been halted by Japanese on complaint that a Chinese passenger had fired a pistol at a Japanese soldier.

It had been understood a British gunboat was ready to effect release of the vessel by force, if necessary.

In the campaign into Mohammedan northwestern provinces, Japanese reported capture of Anpei, in Suiyuan Province, 50 miles northwest of the previous limit of their drive. The new battleground was within 100 miles of Outer Mongolia, sphere of Soviet influence.

It was believed Japanese might attempt by political intrigue or otherwise to set up in Ningsia, Tsinghai and Western Kansu provinces a buffer area through which Russian war supplies to China would flow with difficulty.

but crowds remained to see the procession leave the capital.

Mountain-top criers spread the news that Albania had its first Queen. They shouted the message across valleys to peasants who rely almost wholly on their voices for word from the outside world.

The wedding ceremony, in the half Oriental, half European atmosphere of the Tirana palace annex, was performed by Heqmet Delvina, vice president of Parliament.

Two hundred guests, including the brides' mother, Mme. Gladys Stewart Girault, were present.

Egypt Premier Forms Cabinet After Quitting

Cairo, Egypt, April 27 (AP).—A new cabinet was formed today by Mohammed Mahmoud Pasha, whose resignation as premier was accepted last night by young King Farouk, with whom he had differed over the composition of the government.

The new cabinet represented a victory for the King's insistence on a coalition of its 13 members. Only 6 belong to the premier's Liberal party. Mahmoud had planned to form a Liberal Party cabinet, which he held justified by the victory of his following in recent elections.

Britons Resign Selves to Taxes For Army, Navy

But Laborites Assail Levy on Tea; Markets in London Higher.

By the Associated Press.

London, April 27.—Business and the public today seemed resigned to paying for Britain's war preparations, as debate in Commons on the budget-boosting taxes on incomes, tea and oil, gave laborites and liberals an opportunity to criticize Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's "realistic" foreign policy.

The sharp increase in the tax on tea came in for especially rough treatment by laborites, who claimed the poor would bear the brunt of it.

Laborite W. W. Stokes, manufacturer of shells, charged that armament manufacturers were making a profit of at least 20 per cent.

Markets responded to the budget figures better than had been expected. Many shares, including oil and gold stocks, closed higher.

The new taxes amount to 12 cents a pound on tea, 18 cents a gallon on gasoline and marked jumps in income tax rates.

Meanwhile Great Britain and Poland signed an agreement providing limitations for individual warships and for the exchange of naval building information.

Nazis Prepare To Confiscate All Jews Own

Berlin

prompted by the government's desire to possess complete information concerning the location of Jewish capital, so that the real owners thereof can be identified readily and protected against any illegal actions.

Being able at any moment to place a finger on any spot where Jewish fortunes or properties are located, significant enough in itself, acquires additional meaning in the light of an editorial published in Das Schwarze Korps, organ of S. S. troops, which often correctly forecasts intended anti-Jewish legislation.

Written before the decree was in print, the editorial said numerous Vienna Jews were trying to get to Berlin on the assumption that the worst there was over and life would be easier for them.

"On the contrary," said the newspaper, "we must force Jews to remain at their parasitical posts until their money is gone.

"We must persuade them by all means that they cannot remain in the Reich and that it is better for them to pay the flight of capital tax today than to be shipped off tomorrow or the day after to Palestine or Madagascar—a solution which will come about sooner or later as soon as some other nations wake up to common sense."

Foreign Jews Must Register.

The decree provided that in greater Germany (Germany and Austria) all German Jews must register and evaluate their entire German and foreign holdings, provided they exceed 5,000 marks ($2,000).

Foreign Jews living in Germany must register their German possessions, and sale or rent of Jewish business undertakings must be reported. Registration of the properties must be completed by June 30.

It was recalled that Goering, in a recent Vienna speech, prepared his new subjects for some drastic action intended to break what he termed Jewish hegemony in the business affairs of Austria.

Gentile partners in mixed marriages are affected by the rule.

Severe penalties, in extreme cases ten years in the penitentiary and confiscation of property, are threatened for noncompliance or faulty or incomplete declarations. German Jews abroad are not exempt.

There are many special rules affecting real estate or land owned or leased with Jewish participation.

The Nazi press interpreted the decree as "the first step toward complete exclusion of Jewish interests from German economic life. The measure will furnish the exact basic details for planned Aryanization and it places every movement of Jewish capital under control until the Aryanizing process is completed."

Geneva, April 27 (U.P.)—The World Jewish Congress said tonight that an appeal to foreign governments is under consideration in an effort to prevent Marshal Goering from seizing the German fortunes and property of Jews who have left the Reich.

Franco Seizes Loyalist Base in Teruel Heights

Varela's Troops Take Key Stronghold to Relieve Pressure on Flank.

By the Associated Press.

Hendaye, France, April 27.—Gen. Jose Varela's insurgent troops suddenly smashed through government defenses north of Teruel today and seized Escorihuel in the Pobo Mountains, which command Teruel.

The village, 20 miles north of Teruel in eastern Spain, was the government's key stronghold in the Pobo range, from which is dominated the Alfambra and Seco river valleys.

Loyalists Reported Withdrawn.

Varela, acting on reports the government defense chief, Gen. Jose Miaja, had withdrawn troops and artillery batteries from the sector to defend Castellon de la Plana, quickly sent veteran insurgent forces to the Alfambra Valley.

Insurgent warships and bombing planes hammered steadily at the government's east coast defense lines today, but Gen. Aranda's ground forces were able to make little headway in their drive toward Castellon.

Catalan Strife Resumed.

Warfare broke out again on the north Catalonian front just below the French border. The government pounded insurgent positions with artillery fire and made slashing guerrilla attacks.

The government indicated its offensive tactics were designed to relieve the "lost" Forty-third Division, isolated in the high Pyrenees.

Cat Pays for Crime.

Marion, Ohio, April 27 (AP).—Tommy, a big gray cat held captive in city prison for two weeks on suspicion of having attacked a small child, was executed today by gas.

Japan Releases U. S. Man Jailed As Flier for China

Yokohama, apan, April 17 (AP).—The local prosecutor announced tonight he had decided not to prosecute Elwyn Gibbon, American aviator, after a conference with the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court.

No announcement was made of the time of Gibbon's release. He has been held in jail five days on suspicion of having participated in Chinese bombing attacks on Japanese troops. He was taken off the liner Empress of Asia while en route from China to the United States.

'Capt.' Shorey to End 31 Yrs. as U.S. Employe

"Captain" G. Leyburn Shorey will retire today from the Commerce Department, where he has served 31 years, it was announced yesterday. A native of Baltimore, he started work as clerk in the department in 1907. Two years later he became captain of the watch, relinquishing the position in 1916, but retaining the title so far as his associates were concerned. For the past eight years he has worked in the office of the chief clerk. He and his wife live at 4809 Iowa avenue northwest.

Britain Faces The Issue.

To cover part of the increased expenditures necessitated by huge armaments outlays, the British basic income tax rate in the intermediate and higher brackets has been raised to 27½ per cent. That rate has never been equaled in peace times and was only slightly exceeded during the World War.

Looked at from the British viewpoint it is undoubtedly discouraging to face the prospect of additions to income taxes and increased duties on articles of general consumption just for the sake of cutting down a deficit contracted for no social purpose. And even with additional taxes, the British budget will be unbalanced during the current year. Probably $450,000,000 will have to be borrowed to finance the armament program. The sacrifices that have been made since the war to achieve and maintain a balance in the public accounts have certainly not been in vain. But they deserve to be better rewarded.

From our standpoint, the British record is both a good example and a salutary warning. The good example is provided by the spectacle of a courageous government forcing a disciplined body of taxpayers to contribute a large proportion of their incomes to the support of the public services. There is no attempt to conceal from the people the extent of the burden entailed by heavy government spending. Nor is it proposed to transfer that burden entirely to the shoulders of future generations.

This Spartan attitude is due in good part to the fact that Great Britain has already raised her debt to a dangerously high figure, and has quite thoroughly exploited taxable sources of income. As a result, no attempt is made to dodge the tax issue. The great middle classes must just grin, if they can, and bear it, while the people in the lowest income groups also contribute large sums, both directly and indirectly, to the exchequer.

The warning conveyed by this showing is that we, too, must some day face a reckoning. Government spending must either be reduced or the people with small incomes in this country must be resigned to paying far heavier taxes. That reckoning, moreover, cannot be long delayed if the Government credit is to be preserved. As yet no practical politician would suggest levying a tax of over 25 per cent on the income of Americans in the lower income groups. And this lesser willingness to incur the sacrifices required to cover expenditures is a factor to be taken into account in contrasting our budgetary position with that of the British.

One of the reasons why Britain's credit has remained strong in face of heavy obligations is that she has a reputation for resolution in taxing, and her people have been disciplined to respond. Our financial strength, measured by these intangible tests, is far inferior to that of the British. That knowledge is a further warning against continuance of spending policies which raise our debts and add to the burdens of the future.

Leaping Before Looking.

Approval of an initial outlay for construction of the Gilbertsville dam came at the end of a month's intensive lobbying in which the Administration appears to have been more effective than public utility interests and TVA foes. Pressure from lobbyists was not the only factor, however, which caused the House to change its mind after twice voting to deny funds for this costly project.

The vote of 159 to 152 for funds for Gilbertsville came just after the House had rejected for a second time the Senate's patronage scheme under which all officials in the Government's independent agencies drawing salaries of $5,000 or more would require senatorial confirmation. Since these items are in the same bill, some Congressmen probably thought their opposition to the patronage grab would be strengthened if they yielded on the TVA dam.

Probably the opposition was also weakened by the President's spending program. The mere prospect of an enormous fund in the hands of the Executive just prior to an election tends to enhance his influence over some Congressmen. A number of votes also appear to have been changed by the President's specific request for $37,000,000 for flood control. Several members of the House previously fought this $112,000,000 project in the Tennessee Valley with the standard argument that any money available for flood control should be spent in other parts of the country where needs are more urgent.

None of these considerations weakens the case for objection to starting this immense dam at the present time. Congress is about to undertake a far-reaching investigation into the activities and policies of the Tennessee Valley Authority. Out of this probe it is hoped that a more definite national power policy will emerge. Some amendments to the TVA act may be found desirable. The course which that agency has followed, over the vigorous protest of Arthur Morgan, its former chairman, may be substantially altered.

It is impossible at this time to see how the Gilbertsville dam will fit into the new policy which ought to evolve from this inquiry. Even now its desirability has been extensively questioned from the viewpoints of flood control, navigation and generation of power. Nothing could have been lost by delaying work on the dam until these controversies can be satisfactorily ironed out. As matters stand, the House has joined the Senate in a policy of spending first and investigating afterward.

All In One Boat.

The voluntary pledge of co-operation given to the President by a group of outstanding leaders in the fields of finance, industry and insurance is not to be regarded as a change of attitude. Carefully scrutinized, the statement is seen to be simply an affirmation of views which responsible businessmen have at all times indorsed. It is obviously to the advantage of those heading our commercial institutions to do everything in their power to hasten recovery. When leaders of this type have criticized the Administration in the past the shafts have not been aimed at Mr. Roosevelt's objectives but at particular proposals which in some instances have seemed to run counter to those objectives.

Charges that representatives of business—especially big business—have tried to sabotage the recovery program in order to defeat Administration reform measures obviously demand chapter and verse substantiation. Businessmen are necessarily interested in the success of the concerns which they manage. Only a rare specimen would dare to advocate economic suicide in the hope of forwarding a posthumous political victory. Nevertheless, by constant harping on the theme of business recalcitrancy, spokesmen for the Administration have unquestionably aroused popular resentment against industrial leaders.

On a number of past occasions the fog of misunderstanding and antagonism has been momentarily dispelled by overtures either from the Administration or from representative business groups. But ground gained has heretofore always been lost by the injection of new causes of discord, frequently in the form of experimental legislation more calculated to injure business than to improve the well-being of any section of society.

These rifts did not seem to matter very much so long as there was belief that New Deal methods would achieve recovery. When flushed with a conviction of success—"We planned it that way"—the Administration was less concerned about the misgivings of business. While industry was expanding and profits mounting, business leaders in turn were less concerned to establish friendly relations with the Government. But the smashing impact of a severe and unexpected depression has brought to all a keener realization of the mutual dependence of business and Government. The chastening influence of disappointed hopes and frustrated plans now affords the basis for really constructive co-operation, along genuinely helpful lines.

The opportunity, however, will not be translated into achievement merely by formal promises of support, or by occasional visits to the White House like that of Henry Ford. These outward signs of amity are important only because they signify a desire on the part of representatives of government and business to establish more effective working contacts with each other.

What is needed is a frank and continuous interchange of views with the intention of evolving a positive program of action. As the statement transmitted to the President says: "Wide but honest differences of opinion exist as to ways and means, but surely no one can doubt that the goal which every citizen desires to reach is to advance national income to a point where employment and prosperity can be widespread."

President Roosevelt has invited business to co-operate to attain this goal and the response is encouraging. Numbered among the industrial and financial leaders who have come forward with offers of support are men exceptionally well qualified to make constructive suggestions for speeding recovery without sacrificing established reforms. Hitherto these leaders have been pilloried as unfriendly critics when they disagreed with Administration policies. In the future, perhaps, their advice will be considered without prejudice in the reasonable belief that it is offered in good faith, with no ulterior motive except the general welfare.

Defining Aggressors.

It is not precisely clear what purpose was intended by the Scott resolution, requesting the President specifically to advise the House of Representatives whether "any nation or nations during the last few years have violated treaties to which they and the United States are signatories."

It is possible to surmise, however, that the move was intended to place the Administration clearly and categorically on record in opposition to all recent acts of military aggression, including Germany's absorption of Austria and not excepting Italo-German military intervention in Spain, on the side in rebellion against the only Spanish government recognized by the United States.

If that was the case the Scott resolution failed of its purpose. The Department of State has reiterated previous definitions of Italy (in Ethopia) and Japan (in China) as violators of the Kellogg-Briand Pact, noting again that Japan has also violated the Nine-Power Treaty. But beyond that it refuses to go. In the case of the German annexation of Austria this caution was inevitable, since the Administration has already formally recognized the union. And in the case of the Spanish civil war it is by no means clear that intervention has violated any treaty, however deplorable the partisan activities there sponsored by the Italian, the German or the Russian governments.

The omission of Germany from the list of defined treaty breakers will, therefore, occasion no surprise. Mr. Welles' letter shows the Government as standing on the record of the two formal instances when we have felt it incumbent to protest flagrant treaty violations. It is not stated that this exhausts the list of violations. And it is clearly indicated that the Administration is prepared to extend its indictment further, if what the Acting Secretary calls "the circumstances of the occasion" make this advisable.

Architects And The Memorial.

The growing criticism of the design proposed for the Thomas Jefferson Memorial is now sustained by the authoritative voice of the American Institute of Architects. Meeting in convention at New Orleans, the institute has resolved that Congress should be guided by the advice of the Fine Arts Commission in the question of design. Inasmuch as the commission has repeatedly objected to the recommended sketches, the A. I. A. by clear inference disapproves the contemplated pantheon.

As for the site, the architects wisely refrained from expressing an opinion on a matter with which only a few could be familiar. They urged only that the word of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission be followed. Since the park and planning commission has already agreed to the new Tidal Basin location, doubts on this point might seem to be disposed of. It should be remembered, however, that the commission merely acquiesced on the site. It might be much happier to approve a spot away from the crowded Potomac Park neighborhood.

Besides the Anacostia Heights alternative, advocated by Senator Thomas, and the Lincoln Square proposal of Senator Lonergan—both members of the memorial commission—there is a growing school which advocates location of the memorial on the west bank of the Potomac, in Jefferson's native State.

On the opposite page today Mr. Morley Jeffers Williams, who is a close student of the L'Enfant Plan, presents historical as well as aesthetic arguments for building the memorial and its approaches as an extension of the Mall. Such a solution would meet the criticisms to which the Tidal Basin is peculiarly vulnerable. And it would also accord Virginia an appropriate share in this permanent tribute to her illustrious son.

The A. I. A. does not insist upon an architectural competition to determine the design. This is quite in keeping with the institute's conservative tradition. However, virtually every other group or individual interested in the memorial has seconded the proposal in the Keller bill. That open competitions are effective is admirably testified by the several excellent designs recently acquired by the Federal Government for the decoration of public buildings. In this connection, too, it is interesting to note that Cuba, in planning an elaborate memorial to Jose Marti, has announced an inter-American competition for the design.

Representative Boylan has fairly said that most public buildings and memorials draw criticism on their first announcement. The intensity and insistency of the outcry against the Jefferson Memorial plans, however, indicate that cranks and disappointed interests are a small minority of those protesting on this occasion. A large portion of unbiased public opinion is very deeply disturbed by the memorial commission's recommendations. In these circumstances, new consideration of the whole problem seems plainly in order.

Sex Rivalry.

There is a charming feminine touch in Mrs. Eudora Ramsay Richardson's determination to prove, by walking from Charlottesville to Richmond, a distance of 65 miles, that a woman is as good as a man. Of course she doesn't have to prove it. Every intelligent man would admit the fact in advance, just as he would agree that a poet is as good as an athlete.

But while man concedes, the feminist continues to look on his concession with suspicion. Herein is, perhaps, some significance. It may be she thinks he has his tongue in his cheek. And so she seeks to prove that the poet (to continue the previous figure) can throw the wrestler.

Man, the poor logical boob, has the foolish logical notion that if Mrs. Richardson and her fellow hikerettes make the marathon it will simply prove that they are able to walk 65 miles. Indeed it would prove very little more than that if they broke all previous records.

Women as strong and brainy as men? Yes, indeed. Stronger and brainier. That is to say, some women are stronger than some men and some women are brainier than some men. And women are taller and heavier and older than men, by the same token.

Meanwhile the majority of women, busily endeavoring to lay bricks in the Temple of Civilization, remain entirely willing that man should continue to carry the hod.

"The depression exists only in the minds of the people."—Jesse Jones. Don't you believe it. The minds of the people aren't anything like that deep.

Symposium On Suffrage

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In view of the District suffrage poll set for next Saturday, I desire to supplement the able letter from Mr. John Hadley Doyle published in The Post on April 22, in which he presented some arguments against local suffrage.

An interesting point made by Mr. Doyle, a former journalist who lived here at the time, is that of the 44 members of the District House of Delegates 29 were colored.

I find that the act of June 20, 1874, (18 Stat. 116) which abolished the so-called Territorial form of government authorized by the act of February 21, 1871, was the bill H. R. 3680. In making the committee's report to the House on this bill Representative Wilson of Indiana said in part: "I only referred to these matters for the purpose of showing the House that the law has been no restraint upon these gentlemen who have been running the government of the District of Columbia for the last three years. The expenses have by the manner in which the government has been administered been most inordinate." The clerk of the House read from the committee's report that the "total burden (of debt) upon the property of the District of Columbia was $20,916,008.07, and that this did not include the sums required to carry on the ordinary functions of government after July 1, 1874."

Mr. Wilson said further: "The District is in a sense utterly bankrupt. I regret to say it, but they have no means wherewith to carry on the government any longer. Their treasury is utterly exhausted. They have no money with which to meet their current expenses, much less to pay their debts. The employes of the District have been unpaid, many of them for 12 months past." Cong. Rec. June 17, 1874, pp. 5119-20, 43rd Cong. 1st Session.

It is remarkable how many local residents do not know that the District ever had the right of suffrage. The comparatively few who do know the dismal failure of this experiment argue, as Mr. Doyle points out, that things now are different; that a better class of citizens are among us and that they could be trusted to act differently.

The census of 1930 showed the population of the District to consist of 354,801 white and 132,068 colored persons, or approximately 73 per cent white and 27 per cent colored.

With a view of comparing criminal conditions now with those when the District had the right of suffrage, I called at the Police Department. I found that the statistics of arrests for the 1870's were not available, but was told that for the last few years at least, notwithstanding the 27 per cent colored population, there have been more arrests of colored persons for the more serious offenses, such as crimes of violence, than of white persons for such offenses. In view of the generally good reputation now of the "old-time" colored person, I cannot help believing that the colored population in the 1870s was less given to crime than the colored population now is.

Another important consideration is that as adult women may now vote the colored voting strength would be relatively double what it was in the 1870's. Of course, this is equally true of the white population, but the colored population would undoubtedly show a much larger proportion actually voting than would the white population. It is also to be considered that the number of colored Government employes who vote in the States is negligible compared with the number of white Government employes who vote in the States. It is practically certain that the ratio of white in the District to the white adult population would be much less than the ratio of colored voters in the District to the colored adult population of the District, and that the colored population would at least hold the balance of power.

It is also practically certain that with District representation in Congress that body would be no more willing to increase its contribution to the District's expenses than it is now.

After extensive reading and careful consideration of the question from many angles my conclusion is that it would be safer to urge an extension of the powers of the District Commissioners and the placing of the District employes on a strictly civil service basis than to urge the granting of the right of suffrage.

HENRY A. HAYWARD.
Washington, April 24.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am looking forward to voting for District of Columbia representation and suffrage as it will be my first vote ever cast. Though an Illinoisian, I have lived in the District 40 years and am a taxpayer. I trust we will in this way be able to have a voice in setting our taxes and in influencing the National Government.

MARY LOGAN TUCKER.
Washington, April 23.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your well poised editorial inviting comment from all opposed to fastening upon this beautiful city a city council, a group of ward leaders, a political boss with a machine, is the reason for this protest. The world knows of Tom Pendergast, of Kansas City, likewise Pat Nash, of Chicago, also Frank Hague, of Jersey City, not to forget Jim Curley, of Boston.

Who are they that want suffrage for the District? The same as those who profit from invisible leadership in all cities. Those who are clamoring noisily today for suffrage will be shrieking for its repeal within a year after its first experiment.

EDWARD MONTGOMERY.
Washington, April 24.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Being deeply interested in the welfare of this city, and satisfied that those who are working so diligently for suffrage for the District of Columbia do not understand the situation entirely, I submit the following:

Senator Joe Blackburn, now deceased, told me that he was on a committee in 1879 which made a survey of the District of Columbia for the purpose of fixing the taxation rate. That committee decided that property in the District was equally owned by the Government and by the citizens, so a tax rate of $1.50 was fixed, property assessed at its full value, and the amount that provided was to be the amount of the Government's portion to be paid for the support of the District.

Some years ago agitation was started relative to votes for the District and against the unfair taxation. I warned some men with whom I discussed the matter that the city of Washington was the cleanest city in the country, and that the taxation was fair, and that if they were wise they would leave things as they were. But the agitation continued.

Local organizations, individuals, and even newspaper men continued the agitation and became critical of Congress; in fact, they were very severe in their attacks upon members of Congress, especially the chairman of the House District Committee. This resulted in Congress passing a law making the citizens of the District pay 60 per cent and the Government 40 per cent of the city's upkeep.

Again I spoke to a number, suggesting that they had better let things rest, for even then the citizens of the District were in better shape than any of the other cities throughout the country. The agitation, however, became more violent and persistent, resulting, as we all know, in a flat contribution on the part of the Government.

Now, the agitation continues. I do not believe that the Government pays its just proportion of the taxes here in the District, nor do I believe it will until the people of the District of Columbia adopt a different attitude altogether toward Congress.

One or two Representatives in Congress from the District would be of no benefit; in fact, they would be more liable to antagonize the other members of Congress than to win their support.

The part of wisdom would be for the people here to appeal to the generosity of Congress and speak of the pride that the whole country should have in the Capital City of the Nation, instead of harping continually upon the treatment that the Government is giving them, and accept with good grace what it is doing. Such a policy would be much better than that of continued criticisms and complaints against Congress.

Maybe it does not occur to the people what an election in the City of Washington would mean and how it would upset business for two or three months before and after the election, and how it would stir up animosities, and even racial feelings.

It must be remembered that a very large proportion of the white residents of the city claim their homes and vote in the States, while a very large proportion of the colored population have their homes here and would vote here.

Neither has it occurred to many that the commission form of government is now being adopted by many of the towns and cities in the United States, and wherever adopted it has proved more satisfactory than other plans.

Not many, I presume, remember the time that Washington did have suffrage and a mayor, which was so corrupt and left the city millions of dollars in debt, besides a lot of scandal and charges of graft.

The people of the District had better think twice before they change the kind of government that they now have. INTERESTED.
Washington, April 23.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: District suffrage deserves the serious thought of every resident. It was a worry for our forefathers from accounts of the Congressional investigation hearings about 1874, which every voter should go to the library and read to learn the true facts of graft, riots and dishonesty that caused votes to be denied the District of Columbia. Christianity has not improved the present generation.

Washington now is a peaceful, prosperous city. Has a low tax rate, good water, sewers, streets and parks with no hint of graft in the management of the city. Property is valuable and the residents have more than their quota of civil service positions. JOHN RIGGLES.
Seabrook, Md., April 25.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As a delegate to the conference for suffrage for our city, I was astonished at the Central High School meeting on April 22 to find that not all of the organizations represented are really for suffrage, as the discussion about our resolution or declaration of principles has shown.

Why don't those delegate that are opposed to suffrage stay away and let the hundreds of honest, earnest people go ahead with this most important task? I admire the initiative, hard work, and sacrifice, especially of our chairman Mr. William S. Finch and his co-workers for their courage and sincerity.

Let those that are opposed do what they may outside our ranks. Our job is to get the greatest number of Washington citizens out to the polls on April 30, and show Congress and the people of the United States that we are in dead earnest to become full-fledged Americans. Everyone 21 years old, men and women, out to the polls on Saturday! Americanize Washington!

SAMUEL SHINBERG.
Washington, April 25.

Jefferson Unrecognized.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I wish to join Mr. Edward Raoul, whose letter you published April 25, in questioning the design selected for the new Jefferson nickel. No one would have recognized the Thomas Jefferson represented in that design. Must we completely discard and abandon the picture of Jefferson that we have carried in our minds for the past 100 years, and which has found a place in our histories and on our currency?

If the committee of award has gone haywire in this instance, it will not be the first time that such a thing has happened. We have painful recollections of the miserable daubs that have won recognition in our art galleries. Some years ago, some one conceived the idea that the real Lincoln looked like a half-witted countryman, and there was no lack of people who were ready to accept the monstrosity. I do not say that the nickel design is a monstrosity, but I do say that it seeks to impose upon us a new and inferior Jefferson.

C. V. BURNSIDE.
Washington, April 25.

The Post Impressionist

Of A Bootleg King.

It may have been an April fancy, but I was certain the paunchy man with the brief case I spotted in the corridors of the old House Office Building was George Remus.

"George," I called, "wait a minute."

But already he was swinging out into the spring sunlight. I felt he was trying to escape me, to run away. That was silly of him, I knew. All I wanted to do was to shake hands with him and ask him if he still lived in the ivy castle in Cincinnati and ate cold boiled ham after he swam in the pool that the millions he made in the early days of prohibition catering to the Nation's thirst bought him.

For George Remus was the predecessor of Al Capone. He ruled the liquor syndicates of the Middle West with a mailed fist. He was the king of Flask and Bottleland in an era now forgotten. He was the ambassador of John Barleycorn, who had been but recently exiled from the United States in the burst of morality that followed the World War.

"George, come back," I yelled. But when I looked out of the door the paunchy man was gone. He may have stepped into the gold and green afternoon and swung into a nearby bar.

* * *

My mind went back to an afternoon five years before, when I first had seen George Remus in Washington.

"Tell no one I am here," he urged, his blue eyes blazing. "I am just a spectator. Tell nobody you have seen me. I want to get out of the spotlight, you see. If it had not been for the unfortunate woman—"

By that he meant Imogene Remus, who is dead. She is dead because George Remus shot her in a most spectacular fashion, confessed, qualified as his own attorney, pleaded insanity, proved himself insane and then emerged from a State insane asylum months later, after having proved himself sane again.

When prohibition came seriously, George Remus became an autocrat. Rum-running was more difficult in the early 1920's than it was in the days of Al Capone, who succeeded paunchy George. The public still believed in the Noble Experiment.

But George Remus' trucks beat trails from Canada with hidden rum. They came from Mexico, from the Gulf. Controlling the empire was the little Chicago lawyer. He was Caesar, and somehow he began to resemble Caesar. He neither smoked nor drank. His blue eyes bored like augers. Because he knew the law he managed to avoid the police. His empire was absolute.

Imogene Remus was always at his side. A virtuous family man, house proud and a burgher at heart, George Remus cherished his wife. He built for her a castle in a far suburb of Cincinnati—and his German ancestors, who were peasants, would have considered themselves fortunate to serve there as serfs.

"A man's home," repeated George Remus of summer nights, "is his castle, you know. I really got a castle, haven't I?"

He surrounded the mansion's grounds with barbed wire. He hired guards. He continued to prosper, until, about 1925, there was no one who could estimate accurately how rich the caliph of the Kingdom of Rum actually was.

However, even when the bad days descended on him, I have seen him light a friend's cigar with a dollar bill.

* * *

Probably the regard of George Remus for Imogene was his downfall. At any rate, Imogene it was who furnished a prohibition officer with valuable information which led to George Remus' arrest and the term he served in Atlanta.

With George safely behind the bars, Imogene moved to a fashionable apartment hotel. Here she lived in the grand manner.

One morning ten years ago she stepped from the elevator to the door of the hotel and took a taxi for the city. It was early, and thousands of cars were jamming the streets. When the taxi reached a bluff, overlooking the Ohio River, on a main thoroughfare, another cab crowded it near the cliff.

George Remus climbed from the cab to the running board of the other taxi. He fired three times. Then he stepped into the crowd, gun in hand, still smoking. When the police arrived, he handed them the gun and said:

"The poor, unfortunate woman, I did it, of course."

All the public sentiment in the world wasn't enough to convict Remus. As his own attorney he reached heights of oratory. Women wept. The law was bent in two. Whatever the prosecutors needed they had, but George Remus the lawyer proved George Remus the client insane. The jury, of course, was agreeable, and off to the institution he went, only to return months afterward and become a rich, unhappy hermit in the great castle on the hill.

* * *

"The unfortunate woman used to test the water of the pool with her pretty toes here," George Remus told me one day long ago. "Then she used to dive and splash . . . she would be like a mermaid."

There was no doubt about it. Imogene Remus was dead and the husband who paid in prison for the silken sheets she slept between was glad.

Maybe I didn't really see George Remus yesterday. Maybe he is dead himself. I haven't heard.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler.

WPA In Florida.

Tampa, Fla.

THE POLITICIANS of the WPA have just got away with something in Tampa which is so raw that if it were not a matter of record you might not believe it could happen even in the United States.

PEGLER

A WPA employe served as foreman of a local grand jury which indicted nine politicians, all city and county officials, in connection with the traditional spring anti-gambling crusade. He was promptly fired from his WPA job on the ground of "no dough." He smelled a rat and reported his disposal to the court immediately. Within two hours the head of the local WPA office reinstated him without explaining where he had suddenly raised the money for a salary which had been lopped off so short a time before.

The local court thought this looked like political intimidation of a grand jury after it had been dismissed, so the new grand jury began an investigation. There is a WPA man on the new grand jury, too, and it might cramp a grand juror's style to reflect that a member of a previous grand jury had lost his WPA job after bringing in indictments against politicians.

• • • •

THE NEW grand jury summoned R. J. Dill, the State administrator of the WPA, and he refused to discuss the case on the ground that a State agency has no right to investigate a Federal agency. He cited a letter from Harry Hopkins authorizing subchiefs of the WPA to release ballyhoo without restriction, but forbidding them to testify in regard to matters of an official or confidential character. The WPA protects its secrets. If it should accumulate felonous secrets it can protect them, too.

Mr. Dill was cited before the local court and the local United States attorney won a decision for him based on Federal statutes and decisions of the Federal Supreme Court.

So now grand jurymen have no protection from the political machine which represents the New Deal in Florida. If a grand juror has a WPA job he may lose it. If he is a contractor or is engaged in any line of business which is controlled or touched by any Federal agency the politicians of that Federal agency can ruin him. If he even works for a firm which is beholden to a Federal agency for favors or for its fundamental rights his boss may be forced to fire him or take the consequences.

The moral effect of this decision on future grand juries in cases involving politicians or their friends need not be speculated upon.

In this case one of those indicted is J. R. McLeod, the sheriff, who formerly had charge of the WPA in Tampa. He succeeded Dill, the present State boss, when Dill was promoted to his new powers and immunities. Later on McLeod was appointed sheriff, and now a WPA man has had the gall to indict him.

• • • •

THE VICTIM is Carl Thoner, a former newspaper photographer. Thoner's job is to take pictures of WPA projects. He is not strong physically and naturally is much upset because now he is doubly guilty of lese majeste. He not only indicted nine politicians but blew the whistle on the local WPA boss when he was fired. Thoner didn't know he was doing wrong. He just figured a grand juror was supposed to do his duty and never thought of the possibility that a man could be "canned" for that. There are still some citizens as naive as that.

Now, under the court's ruling, he can be fired again. This time for good. The local court can do nothing to protect him or punish anyone.

Thoner was fired by J. D. Brotchie, the present local WPA boss, who supposedly acted on instructions from Dill, phoned from Miami. About the time of this telephone call Dill was conferring with the indicted Sheriff McLeod, his old colleague in the WPA, but within two hours, as the smell began to spread over Florida, Thoner was reinstated.

The new grand jury and the court naturally wanted to know what Dill said to McLeod and vice versa and what considerations prompted Thoner's dismissal and reinstatement. Dill said it was none of their business. The WPA in Washington wired the grand jury that, inasmuch as Thoner was reinstated the case wasn't worth bothering about. That wire ignored the question of intimidation of a grand jury.

The Florida WPA belongs to Senator Claude Pepper, a candidate for re-election, whom Jimmy Roosevelt, the selfless secretary with the passion for anonymity, recently blessed for re-election with the indorsement of the New Deal.

Senator Pepper hasn't said a word about the case. It's in the bag.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Mother And The Public Relations Man.

("Mother Hires Press Agent in Battle with Boy."—Headline.)

Mother:
Oh, wondrous is a mother's love—
How sweet a thing to see!
Especially when it's put forth
With good publicity.

Press Agent:
Say, wondrous ain't the half of it—
The dictionary gives
At least 5,000 words, I think,
As hotter adjectives.
"Colossal!" That's the word for it—
"Gigantic" is good, too;
"Titantic" ought to do for some,
But not, I think, for you.

Mother:
My heart beats for my little boy—
I would not do him dirt;
I'd rather die ten thousand deaths
Than see my baby hurt.

Press Agent:
Ten thousand deaths? That's piker stuff!
A billion deaths you'd die;
They don't cost any more from me,
So why should you be shy?
Suppose I say a trillion deaths?
Let's get this over right;
Those headlines weren't big enough
For me the other night.

Mother:
That youngster is my joy and pride,
Also my pride and joy,
I want the world to know just how
My heart beats for that boy.

Press Agent:
A mighty organ is your heart,
So let the papers know!
I call its beat stupendous, as
In headlines I can show;
In fact, you have a superheart—
The papers I could fill
With stories of this heart of hearts—
In fact, I think, I will!

Mother:
I love him with a burning love,
And painful is his loss;
And love like mine can never die . . .
Can you put that across?

Press Agent:
A burning love? Don't minimize!
It fills me with despair;
Your love is like Chicago's blaze—
Nine fire trucks are there!
The flames are spreading very fast,
Oh, hear the engines pump!
The smoke is choking me to death—
I think we'd better jump.
(They jump.)

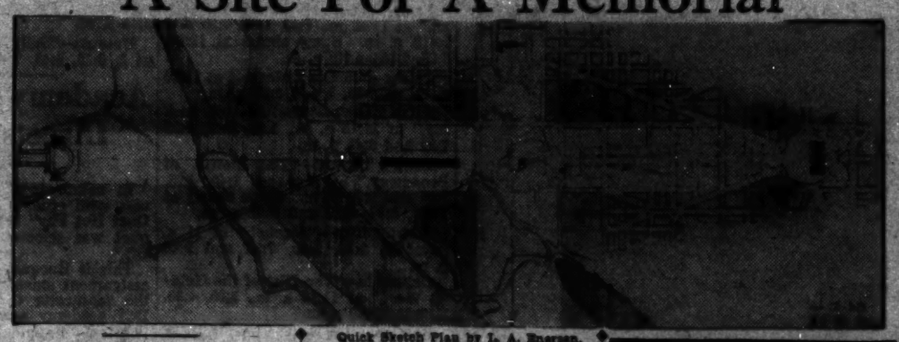
A Site For A Memorial



Quick Sketch Plan by L. A. Emerson.

Architect Urges West Bank Of Potomac In Mall Line.

The following article will appear shortly in the May issue of the Magazine of Art, the editor of which has kindly granted permission for this prepublication. The author is director of research and restoration at Mount Vernon and is an authority on eighteenth century landscaping and architecture, particularly in the City of Washington and the Old Dominion area.

By Morley Jeffers Williams.

THE PROPOSAL to place a memorial to Jefferson south of the Washington Monument on the White House axis has been attacked on many grounds. All to date have missed the fundamental point that the original planners contemplated no such obstruction. Much has been said about the sacredness of the L'Enfant plan and years of effort have gone into bringing the Mall into conformity with that document. From an inspection of the early plans it at once becomes obvious that Washington and L'Enfant considered the Mall to be the lesser of the two great vistas. Important as has been the rescue of the Mall, how much more important is it that the integrity of the plan be preserved with respect to the great north-south axis.

The choice of site for the new Federal City was left to the first President. Records show that Washington gave personal attention to the task and that he and L'Enfant collaborated in fixing the parti.

The Times and Patowmack Packet for the twentieth of October, 1790, tells us that "President George Washington viewed the country adjacent to the Patowmack in order to fix upon a proper situation for the Grand Columbian Federal City."

Washington Conferred With L'Enfant On Site.

WITH REGARD to the site chosen for the President's House, L'Enfant wrote Washington on the twenty-second of June, 1791, that it was "situated on that ridge which attracted your attention at the first inspection of the ground on the west side of the Tiber entrance" . . . and "ten or twelve miles down the Patowmack front it will see (over) the town and harbor of Alexandria." Again he wrote that it would "stand to the view of the whole city."

If the object were simply to place the house on a height, better sites could have been chosen. The high ground extends all across the city, and at Twenty-fourth street, in particular, is much more prominent. What is important is that the point selected is at the center of a great river vista, which extends southward over the water for 13 miles and finally touches the Maryland shore below Fort Washington.

The early maps invariably demonstrate that the south view was to be kept open and that the Mall was of secondary importance. On one the Mall is greatly reduced in width, a number show it interrupted by cross streets, and none suggest that it was ever intended to cross the White House axis.

In those early days the convenient mode of travel was by water. Visitors to the Federal City, and particularly those from foreign countries, arrived by boat. This is significant. On rounding the bend in the river just above Mount Vernon, one saw, miles off, at the end of an almost artificially straight course of the river at the heart of the new city, the home and offices of the Chief Executive. It will be difficult to find anywhere a more dramatic spot, Louis XIV with all the magnificence of Versailles could do no better.

Mount Vernon Plan Included Long Vista.

TO USE WORDS from Washington's own vocabulary, this was designed in the grand manner. Washington's treatment of his own property proves that he was quite aware of the value of such views. There he cut one vista to a distance of four miles, or, until limited by the topography. If further proof is needed it can be found in the authors which he studied.

Jefferson, too, was aware of the necessity of keeping the view south from the President's house unobstructed. In 1807 a road was built along the south boundary of the house grounds. Correspondence tells us that it was depressed and so screened by mounds and a low ridge that it could not be seen from the house.

No published map before 1850 shows any interruption of the view. In that year the first indication of the Washington Monument appears, but to one side of the axis. The following year a circle was shown which gave the first indication of the thought that led finally to the development of the present ellipse. Andrew Jackson Downing was responsible for the circle and in suggesting it he completely missed the simple grand conception in his zeal to impose the then current landscape style.

White House Demands Potomac River Outlook.

IF THE IDEAS of Washington and L'Enfant are sacred, the view south of the White House should be kept open. The river view exists and cannot be ignored. As a further consideration property along the river is passing into the hands of the Government at an increasing rate. While the areas are outside of the District, the uses pertain to the Government of the United States. The river must, and will eventually, be thought of in relation to development within the District, and the river view will assume an importance greater than that which the Mall now possesses, and as great as was intended by the original designers.

This last may possibly be considered as a modern adaptation or interpretation of the old plan, but one that was provided for in 1791.

The Mall development, like that southward along the river, cannot be arbitrarily kept within the political boundaries of the District. On paper the west end of the Mall is at the river's edge. Actually it is not here, but at the crest of the rise beyond the river. From wherever viewed, the Capitol, Monument, Lincoln Memorial or Constitution avenue, the view goes through. And the eye searches in vain for the terminal structure that is not there. If an adequate and significant site is required for a memorial to a great man, whether Jefferson or someone else, what better could be found?

West Bank Location Extends Mall Naturally.

THE SUGGESTION of placing the Jefferson Memorial in the Tidal Basin seems to have been prompted chiefly by a desire for symmetry about the Mall axis. The site across the river extends the Mall to its natural end and achieves a similar symmetry about a more important axis. From this new point is to be had one of the finest views of the Capital City. Washington is rare among the great cities of the world in that it is so beautiful and yet offers so few vantage points from which large numbers of people can conveniently see and comprehend.

The reasons, practical, sentimental and esthetic, for keeping the south vista open are numerous, and there are as many which call for a recognition of the fact that the Mall cannot be made to halt at the river, but does in fact extend beyond.

Alley

here Sunday, led by Dr. Treadwell Smith, instructor in social studies, and Mrs. Carey Rosett, expert in modern European history. They visited Mount Vernon and Arlington, then called on Mrs. Roosevelt at the White House. They visited the Supreme Court and the Capitol. They talked to Bruce Barton, who represents their silk-stocking district in Manhattan; Representative Maury Maverick, of Texas; Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, and other notables.

Told What Is Done.

Yesterday's tour grew out of a talk between Dr. Smith and Mrs. David Cushman Coyle, chairman of the committee on government and economic welfare of the League of Women Voters, and a leader in the fight to improve conditions among Washington's "submerged third."

John Ihlder, executive officer and secretary of the Alley Dwelling Authority, talked to the Dalton girls at a luncheon in the headquarters of the American Association of University Women. He told them what the ADA is doing to rid the city of ramshackle alley dwellings and to provide decent low-rental quarters in their place—all on a pay-as-you-go basis.

Then the girls went to the headquarters of the Council of Social Agencies, where they were shown how disease and poor housing have a direct relationship. Tuberculosis, for example, is rampant in the slum areas.

Blagden's Court, within the block bounded by Ninth and Tenth streets and M and N streets northwest, was the first alley visited by the students. They were astonished by the small rooms. Next they went to Neal Place and then to Logan Court, otherwise known as "Washerwoman's Row," located a short distance from the Capitol.

See Model Area.

The tour, which was in charge of James Ring, administrative assistant to Ihlder, came to an end at Hopkins place, once a squalid area known as London court, now a model community of neat, white dwellings that rent for as little as $13.55 a month. Named after the late Mrs. Archibald Hopkins, who spent a life time crusading against the alleys, Hopkins place was the first remodeling project undertaken by the Alley Dwelling Authority.

At the conclusion of the tour the girls were divided as to which was the most frightful—New York's tenements or Washington's alleys.

Besides Mrs. Coyle, the members of her committee which made the tour were Mrs. Robert Randall, Mrs. Alexander W. Hawes, Mrs. Colin Whittaker, Mrs. Thomas Austern and Mrs. E. Isaacs.

War System

By Barnet Nover.

The Piper Must Be Paid.

FOR THE FIRST TIME since the World War and the period immediately following, Britain's budget is to be in excess of £1,000,000,000 ($5,000,000,000).

This is a staggering sum judged by any standards, even including our own. And despite the jacking up of income tax rates even beyond their present fantastic levels and the addition of new levies on gasoline and tea, there is no possibility that the budget will be completely balanced.

Virtually all of the British naval building program scheduled for 1938-1939 will be met by borrowing in accordance with the practice ushered in last year. Thus Great Britain will go into debt, on its defense account, to the tune of £90,000,000 this year and possibly more. For if there is one thing certain in this world of uncertainty it is that the present race in armaments is only in its developing stage.

There is a limit, however, to the amount that can be raised by taxation, even given the most self-sacrificing spirit in the world, without crippling the economic system.

• • • •

AFTER YEARS of heroic effort, therefore, in which she, alone of the great powers had managed to pursue the straight and narrow course of financial orthodoxy, Great Britain, too, is being forced onto the road of deficit financing.

The last time this happened in Great Britain was during the World War when every combatant nation, in order to achieve victory, abandoned all thoughts of a pay-as-you-go system. But today Great Britain is not at war. She has not the slightest desire to go to war. Indeed, to avoid war the London government, under its present leadership, has been prepared to make the most far-reaching concessions. Nevertheless the British, like all other peoples, peaceful and militaristic alike, find themselves engulfed in the war system which today rules the world.

• • • •

THE FINANCIAL dangers of this situation are too obvious to require much comment. Obviously the British are well aware of them. Not otherwise would they be prepared, as they clearly are, to pull their belts still another notch tighter in an effort to pay for the rearmament program through current income as much as possible. But the struggle to preserve a balanced budget is unmistakably a losing one.

In the case of France that has been pointedly brought out in the events of the past two years, when one government after another has been unhorsed by fiscal crises which, were it not for the rapidly increasing costs of rearmament, could have been handled with relative ease.

And other nations are in the same boat, although in the totalitarian states, the budgetary unbalance is kept from prying eyes by strict censorship and the financing of rearmament is achieved through a process of lowering the standard of living which, in democratic lands, might not be tolerated.

• • • •

THE POLITICAL and social consequences of the present war system in which the nations of the world are engulfed may prove, in the long run, no less dangerous and disturbing than the financial consequences are already proving to be.

In Great Britain the financial pressure created by rising defense needs is certain, soonor or later, to be reflected in pressure to cut governmental costs in every dispensable category—education, public health, social services of every kind. Governmental expenditures for such purposes have been showing a tendency to go up during recent years in Great Britain and other democratic countries.

In 1928, British expenditures for purposes other than debt service and defense amounted to 6.9 per cent of the national income, according to figures compiled by the London Economist. Last year, despite a marked growth in income and a sharp decline in unemployment the percentage had risen to 9.1.

• • • •

IN FRANCE long fought-for social reforms, secured after the Popular Front victory of 1936, are now in danger of disappearing as a result of the direct and indirect pressure of rearmament needs. France has been forced to consider the idea of exchange control to prevent the further flight of capital abroad.

And in every country, as the threat of war grows, and the pressure for an increased measure of defense mounts, totalitarian devices are being adopted to make possible resistance to the totalitarian fund.

The stronger and more powerful nations, particularly those like the United States which are relatively remote from the danger zones, may manage for some time to preserve their basic liberties even while plunging more and more into war preparations. The weaker and more exposed powers, however, are likely to sacrifice liberty for safety, though probably without achieving the latter. The pressures upon them both from within and without are mounting.

In war time democratic rights are everywhere suspended. And to an increasing degree the world again finds itself, except for actual combat, in the grip of a war system.

The Ice Patrol

From the Portland (Me.) Express.

International Safeguard.

A little white vessel is feeling her way around the fog-shrouded Grand Banks of Newfoundland to hunt—of all things—for icebergs. The little ship will remain at sea until late July, the symbol of one league of nations which has functioned without a hitch for nearly a quarter of a century—the International Conference for the Safety of Life at Sea.

Born of the Titanic disaster April 14, 1912, the sea-safety conference met in London in the fall of 1913, and on January 20, 1914, 14 nations signed a pact by which they agreed, among other things, to establish and maintain a continuous patrol of the area of the North Atlantic most endangered by bergs during the ice season. The conference requested the United States to undertake the management of the ice patrol, with each contracting power agreeing to bear a proportionate share of the cost.

• • • •

PUTTING TO SEA annually by the middle or latter part of March, the Coast Guard ice-patrol cutter scouts for ice in the wide and foggy area over and near the Grand Banks; it collects information on the location of bergs and broadcasts its findings to warn all ships approaching the danger zone, sending out its information four times daily; in addition, it keeps track of every approaching vessel between the fifty-fifth and forty-third meridians and furnishes each of these ships any special ice information requested.

Thanks to the ice patrol, the Grand Banks have seen only one Titanic disaster. No one can say how many lives have been saved with the Coast Guard doing its job out there in the cold and fog of the North Atlantic steamship lanes.

More Censorship

The ways of the European censor are often hard to understand. Mickey Mouse was banned by a censor because in a comic strip he was suspected of encouraging revolution. Imagine that! Now it is the turn of Popeye the Sailor. The German censor denies the hospitality of the Reich to an animated cartoon which shows the adventures of Popeye and a parrot he picked up on his voyagings. No reason is given. It is hard to think of one.

Popeye is Aryan, if anything. The racial ideal of Hitlerism cannot possibly be threatened by his doings. Probably he is better known than any sailor since the days of Capt. Noah. Well, anyway, more people have seen him in one way or another than ever saw Columbus, or Magellan, or Cartier, or Nelson, or Farragut, or Dewey. One so famous as he at least deserves an explanation from any censor who presumes to cast him out.

It has been suggested that the censor does not object to Popeye himself but only to the parrot that accompanies him. If that be the correct interpretation of the incident, the decision must have been based upon one of two grounds, or, possibly, upon both. Parrots believe in free speech, and freedom of speech is not tolerated in Germany. Or if Popeye's parrot became popular throughout Nazidom, it might encourage new importations of parrots, thereby increasing the liability of the populace to an epidemic of psittacosis. If neither of these theories fits the case, we just can't think of another.

Leaders Enrich Recovery Plan By $60,000,000 for Buildings

Spend

But in his 1938 budget message, the President trimmed the item to $22,000,000. Trouble was averted at that time by a House compromise authorizing a $70,000,000 three-year program under a plan to award each member a postoffice during that period.

The further concessions made yesterday would increase this to two buildings in each district during the three years without adding to the immediate cost of the President's program. Admiral Peoples told the committee no more than the $25,000,000 asked by the President actually could be put to work in the next year.

Lewis, Green to Testify.

Representative Woodrum predicted last night that House hearings on the President's $4,512,000,000 relief and pump-priming program would be concluded next Monday. John L. Lewis, of the Committee for Industrial Organization, and William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, will wind up testimony.

An omnibus bill, including everything except highway, CCC and flood-control funds, will be reported to the House later next week. Leaders have not yet decided whether to run the gantlet of the House Rules Committee for a special rule or call up the measure under the general rules of the House. The latter course would subject legislative features to points of order that might riddle the bill. The bill might be called up under a suspension of rules, but that would take a two-thirds vote of House members.

Other Developments.

Other developments yesterday:

Public Works Administrator Ickes completed testimony on the PWA's role in the program, under close cross-questioning by committee Republicans—John Taber and Robert L. Bacon, of New York.

Representative Earl C. Michener (Republican), Michigan, said thousands of circulars were being distributed in New York by the Communist Party, asking workers to write letters in support of the spending program. Michener took the floor in answer to an unsigned letter read Monday by Majority Leader Sam Rayburn, charging large corporations were organizing to defeat pump-priming.

Chairman Henry B. Steagall, of the House Banking Committee, scheduled hearings today on the new Wagner-Steagall bill to increase the United States Housing Authority capital by $500,000,000, and to drop requirements that cities put up 10 per cent of slum-clearance costs. Administrator Nathan Straus will testify for the bill.

SEC Congratulated.

President Roosevelt wrote members of the Securities and Exchange Commission a congratulatory letter on recent steps taken to simplify procedure under which small business enterprises may raise funds. The letter, read by Chairman William O. Douglas at the Yale Club, said the commission was "to be congratulated for taking these steps in the interest of small established enterprise in need of capital financing."

Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, addressed letters to banks and bankers throughout the United States inclosing application blanks for new RFC industrial loans. He wrote bankers that "Congress has authorized the RFC to meet whatever legitimate demand there is for credit that is not available on reasonable terms, and we wish to do this in cooperation with the banks."

The Navy Department sent Congress a request for $28,751,000 for new building construction operations at various stations. New authorizations asked included $8,485,000 for a drydock at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, and $5,000,000 for a Naval air station at Kodiak, Alaska. Chairman David I. Walsh of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee, and Chairman Carl Vinson of the House Naval Committee, introduced bills.

Calls Spending "Failure."

Senator Josiah W. Bailey (Democrat), of North Carolina, in a speech at Chicago said public spending was "a self-confessed failure" and declared:

"Ye have a choice to make in America and we must make it now. We will either depend upon private enterprise or Government spending. We cannot depend upon both."

In Columbia, S. C., Joseph B. Keenan, assistant to Attorney General Cummings, declared Government spending for public works should be viewed as "capital assets" which, "added to rather than diminished the public wealth." He said PWA spending could not be called "boondoggling or a waste of money."

Following yesterday's White House conference on the public works program, Representative Woodrum told reporters:

"Three things will be stressed in formulation of the legislation, namely, to use no more funds or credit than is absolutely necessary to get the building program under way quickly; to select approved public works projects that can be gotten underway immediately, and to select types of projects widely distributed that will be permanent public improvements."

In the House yesterday Representative Michener renewed the Republican attack on Rayburn's statement Monday that big corporations were organizing to deluge Congress with "propaganda" against the spending program. Rayburn exhibited an unsigned letter making the charges, a letter Minority Leader Snell declared was "inspired."

Michener said that since Rayburn displayed concern over propaganda against the program, he wanted the country to know the origin of propaganda in behalf of the spending. He read a letter from John C. Starne, of New York, inclosing circulars Starne said were being distributed in New York parks and along the waterfront.

The circular, signed by the New York State Committee of the Communist Party, requested workers to write letters to the President, to members of Congress and to labor organizations in support of the spending plan. It also asked readers to "Join the Communist Party."

Later, Representative Taber charged letters he had received indicated that "employes and beneficiaries of the WPA have been instructed by their superiors to write letters and have been given the form of them." Taber also charged that the unsigned letter read by Rayburn was "planted by those who are pulling off propaganda in favor of the spending bill."

Bills sent on to sub-committees were those which asked that research assistants be provided by District public schools, that an additional Police Court judge be permitted, and that florists and horticulturists be required to incorporate.

One of the chief arguments used by District leaders in their fight for the local ballot has been that members of Congress are not and by the "very nature of things cannot be" sincerely interested in local legislative problems.

Nine New Directors For Family Service

Election of nine new members to the board of directors of the Family Service Association, 1022 Eleventh street northwest, was announced yesterday. They are Dr. Walter Boyd, Kenneth Brooks, Mrs. George Barnes Galloway, Mrs. Spencer Gordon, Benjamin Thoron, Harry S. Wender, Robert Graham Wilson, G. Howland Chase and George El Hamilton, jr.

Parole Board to Hear McNeil Application

Benedict M. McNeil, convicted of fraudulent financial manipulations of the new defunct Park Savings Bank and twice denied a parole from Lorton last year, will appear before the parole board tomorrow along with 22 other inmates.

McNeil, former assistant cashier of the Park Savings Bank, was sentenced to a term of eight months to four years in April, 1936. He was indicted with Robert Stuntz, who later committed suicide.

Boys Plan 'Clean-Up' Of Temperance Court

A squad of colored boys from the Second Precinct Police Boys Club and Cardozo High School will "cleanup" Temperance Court northeast this afternoon as part of the Junior Board of Commerce "Clean-up Washington" campaign. The boys are under junior board leaders and John L. Young, of the Boys Club. The area is situated between Twelfth and Thirteenth and T and U streets northwest.

Gaumont British Has New Outlet On Screen of Belasco Theater

'To the Victor,' Starring Will Fyffe, Early Booking on Lafayette Square; Old Showman Returns; Notes of the Theater.

IT COMES to light, in a roundabout sort of way, that the Belasco Theater will provide a new first-run outlet for Gaumont British Pictures in the National Capital. Not for all of them, perhaps, but for a considerable proportion of the product released locally by Joe Kaliski, manager of the GB Exchange.

BELL.

What Alfred Hitchcock did for the Scottish moors in "The 39 Steps," Robert Stevenson seems to have done for the "border country" in "To the Victor." This picture deals with the shepherds of the famed Cumberlands and is based on Alfred Ollivant's best-selling novel of "Bob, Son of Battle."

In making the picture, the producer went in for rigid realism. This entailed a joust with the most capricious weather conditions to be found anywhere on the face of the globe where a picture might be made. The film was made almost in its entirety on actual location, with the result that the startling beauty of the countryside that inspired Coleridge and Wordsworth and Shelley and Keats now is presented on the screen for the first time.

Two months were required to get the desired effects for the camera lenses. The company deemed themselves lucky to have achieved their aim in eight weeks of variable weather, low-hanging clouds and dismal days.

"To the Victor" has Will Fyffe as its star. Mr. Fyffe will be remembered by veteran theatergoers as a former vaudevillian who attained almost the success in this country that was registered by the venerable Harry Lauder. He has not been seen here for many seasons, his last booking, at Loew's Capitol I believe it was, having been canceled at the last minute for unavoidable reasons.

"To the Victor," incidentally, was screened yesterday afternoon for the press and will be an early presentation at the Belasco.

• • • •

To provide a little of the stimulus popularly referred to as "umph" for the new drive on Gaumont British product—which never has received quite the local recognition it has deserved—an old-time Washington showman has returned to town and a few days ago stopped by this desk to say "hello." He is W. A. V. Mack, at one time associated with the Harry M. Crandall enterprises in this city, and a man who knows his way around. It was nice to see him again and learn that he will be here a matter of weeks, rather than days. Jack Thoman, manager of the Belasco, had him in tow. One suspects that the Belasco will take a brace, as the saying goes, under Jack's direction.

• • • •

Something more or less important seems to be "on the fire" with regard to the impending visit of that talented young Paramount actress, Olympe (O-Lamp) Bradna to the Capital. In addition to the recent letter from Rufus Blair, on the West Coast, there comes one now from C. N. Odell, attached to the New York or Times Square, office of Paramount.

Mr. Odell—who recently was here as a sort of major domo of that Paramount sales convention at the Shoreham—has this to say about O-Lamp: "Miss Bradna is a lovely, sweet girl—just 18, in fact—and she will be willing to co-operate in every way to make her visit a successful venture. She is to make personal appearances in 11 cities, but Washington, of course, is most important."

Mr. Odell has a true line on the perspective of his tour.

• • • •

Miss Bradna, by the way, will make her Washington appearances in conjunction with first local showings of "Stolen Heaven," in which she is costarred with Gene Raymond. It would be nice if Gene would come along, too, and bring his wife, Jeanette MacDonald, with him. But I presume there is practically no valuable result to be attained by reaching for the moon.

• • • •

The vagaries of Washington's taste are still a bit of a puzzle. "Three Waltzes," for some unknown reason, did not appeal to the amusement inclinations of the resident populace, but "Yes, My Darling Daughter," this week's attraction at the National, is barging along at a break-neck pace.

Tuesday night's attendance considerably exceeded Monday night's opening and the prospects for the week are that this slightly daring play will run up one of the impressive grosses of the year. "Yes, My Darling Daughter" is an amusing and a thoughtful comedy, even if not a completely defensible one, and would be even better if the cast would buckle down to business.

There are one or two members of the acting ensemble—principally one—who seem to feel that they can hasten that final curtain and get out on the street a little earlier by giving their lines a reading gaited to a streak of lightning.

• • • •

Allan Jones, as already has been intimated here, accompanied by Mrs. Jones (Irene Hervey), will leave Washington tonight immediately after the last performance at Loew's Capitol for Chicago and from there will proceed directly to the West Coast and more work before the cameras. His visit has been in the nature of a personal triumph. I hope his next picture will be as successful as the last few in which he has appeared. When I told him that a young friend of mine was one of his most ardent admirers—she is only 13 or 14—and had so wanted to meet him personally, but by an ill turn of fate and health was confined to Wardman by an attack of the whooping cough, he at once wanted her phone number so he could express his thanks for her interest. That is the kind of fellow Allan Jones is. No wonder everybody likes him.

Harry Anger, just back from New York, has a new idea for a stage revue at the Earle. It is something along the lines of "new faces," those odd things that the screen always is seeking, too.

Mr. Anger has it in the back of his head that a stage show presented by performers never before seen in Washington should make a hit. Undoubtedly he is right. But where is he going to find all of these strangers? Maybe I can help a little. I hope so, for several reasons.

Some weeks ago I made mention in this space of a barytone never heard by a Washington audience who has a voice that deserves to be. This might be just the spot for him and his vocal chords. Something might come out of this thought. And then, again, something might not. You know how "show business" is. Or do you?

Perpetual-Nemesis Note.

Added to New Stage Bill at the Earle

DANZI GOODELE, one of the varieties' better dancers, who joins Al Pearce and "His Gang" for their stage appearance as headline attraction at the Warner Brothers' Earle Theater for the week beginning tomorrow. The Post's New Yorker

By LEONARD LYONS

New York, April 27.

WILL DURANT, author of "The Story of Philosophy," has devoted the past five years to writing "The Story of Civilization"—a job which will require 20 more years of work . . . "The way things are happening in the world now," a friend consoled him, "you'll have to keep making constant changes in the book" . . . "Oh, no," Durant replied, "the way things are happening today, the only change I'll have to make is in the title of the book. I'll call it 'The Story of Civilization—Remember?' "

NOW THAT THE LUNACY COMMISSION has found Robert Irwin sane, those missing records— vital to the case, and which the commission never saw—have been found . . . Mae West is having movies made of the crowds battling to buy their way into Loew's State to see her this week. She wants to take those pictures back to Hollywood and show them to any officials who might wish to impede the continuance of her film career . . . The recent reports of a new rift between Roosevelt and Garner didn't result from the pump-priming plans, but related to the reorganization bill. The President had been told that Jouett Shouse, of the Liberty League, fronted for Garner in organizing opposition.

DARRYL ZANUCK just sent a new director to New York, to take location shots for his new movie, "Ellis Island" . . . Gregory Ratoff had been sent here earlier this month to take the pictures—which were to be used in connection with a June setting . . . The photos he took, however, can't be used for the movie. Ratoff had arrived during the recent freak snowstorm. And all the film he brought back showed people wearing overcoats.

THE JEAN HARLOW HOUSE, where her husband, Paul Bern, shot himself, has three figures carved into the woodwork at the foot of the stairway. Youngster of Four Makes Film Debut

Alan Perl, 4-year-old son of a Beverly Hills pharmacist, who was a child player in silent films, followed in his father's footsteps by embarking on a motion-picture career as the son of Luise Rainer and Melvyn Douglas.

The boy, who has had no previous dramatic experience, was chosen from a group of candidates because of his general resemblance to Miss Rainer in features and coloring.

Brought to the set by his mother, Mrs. Lloyd Perl, Alan clinched Director Richard Thorpe's decision to give him a chance when he appeared entirely willing to accept Miss Rainer as a screen mother, playing and chatting gaily with her on the floor of a nursery set for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "The Toy Wife," story of New Orleans.

Academy Winner Directs 'Pay-off'

In acknowledgment of his success, with other editions of "Crime Does Not Pay" series, Harold Bucquet was selected to direct "Pay-Off."

This is Bucquet's first directorial assignment since "Torture Money," the featurette that won him the 1937 academy award for the best two-reel motion picture.

"Pay-Off" is the case history of a bank-robber mob. It follows the gang from the crime until their capture. Bernard Nedell, Horace McMahon, George Lynn, Phil Terry and Bernadene Hayes are featured in the production.

Aviation Epic Heads New Bills In Playhouses

'Test Pilot' Will Present Star Cast at Palace; Other Programs.

One of the greatest pictures ever made dealing with the topic of aviation will be enjoyed by Washington theatergoers, when "Test Pilot" opens on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater tomorrow. It 's a new approach that is made in this subject to the dramatic possibilities of flying. The stellar roles are played by Clark Gable, Myrna Loy and Spencer Tracy, with Lionel Barrymore leading the support. There are many others in the cast who add to the effectiveness of a picture which both literally and figuratively belongs in the first flight.

• • • •

Gracie Allen, George Burns, Martha Raye and Bob Hope head the cast of "College Swing," the Paramount production which will comprise the chief screen feature of the bill opening tomorrow at the Earle Theater. Edward Everett Horton, Florence George, Betty Grable, Jackie Coogan and John Payne are foremost among the supporting cast in this lively musical item. On the stage, the bill will be headlined by Al Pearce and his radio artists, well known over the C. B. S. networks. This unit embraces a little bit of everything in the way of entertainment, from droll comedy to spirited dancing and lilting song.

• • • •

Deanna Durbin, that youthful star with the mature voice, will occupy the screen at RKO-Keith's for the week beginning tomorrow in her latest vehicle from the Universal Studios, "Mad About Music." This third hit out of three releases for the prodigious Durbin is said to be the best of the trilogy. Gail Patrick, Arthur Treacher, Herbert Marshall, William Frawley, Elisabeth Risdon, Nana Bryant and many more make up the stellar cast assembled in Miss Durbin's support.

• • • •

That hardy old perrenial that has been running for something like five years in New York will make its reappearance on the stage of the National Theater for the week beginning next Monday night. That would be "Tobacco Road." On this occasion there will be seen a new Jeeter Lester in the person of John Barton, uncle of the possibly more famous Jim, who is playing the same role on Broadway. The cast also will include Leora Thatcher, Patricia Quinn, Pitt Herbert, Kay Thorne, Sondra Johnson, William Bishop, Lillian Ardell, Dick Lee, Walter Ayres and Rhett Townes.

• • • •

Sylvia Sidney, Fred MacMurray and Henry Fonda will be seen again in the leading roles of "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" on the screen at the Metropolitan Theater for the week beginning tomorrow. This gorgeous Technicolor production has been reissued in response to public demand for another release of this popular story, executed in natural color photography that takes rank with the most artistic ever shown.

• • • •

At Loew's Capitol Theater for the new week beginning tomorrow, the major film attraction will be "Her Jungle Love," in which Dorothy Lamour and Ray Milland are the co-stars, with Lynne Overman leading the support. Also important in the supporting cast are the late Jiggs, famous chimpanzee actor, and a lion cub that almost steals the show. On the stage, Norma Talmadge and George Jessel, in person, will headline the bill. This will mark the first appearance of these artists in Washington in several seasons. They will be surrounded by a group of clever specialists.

• • • •

The new bill at the Trans-Lux Theater, beginning tomorrow, will be featured by "Natural Wonders of the West," a travel subject; 'White Magic," an epic of skiing; "Hawaiian Holiday" and other featured short-reels. The bill will be based, as usual, on complete newsreel coverage of the world.

• • • •

Exceeding the number available in previous seasons, there are 57 amusement devices available to patrons of Glen Echo Park this year. The free-admission amusement center, about to enter its third week, will have Ralph Webster and his celebrated orchestra as the principal dance offering in the Spanish garden ballroom the impending seven days.

• • • •

"Lucrezia Borgia" continues the foremost film feature of the bill at the Belasco Theater throughout the current week. It will be followed by "To the Victor," starring Will Fyffe and John Loder, with Margaret Lockwood in the principal feminine part. This is an Alfred Mitchcock production, released through Gaumont British.

• • • •

"The Charm of La Boheme" is scoring this week at the Little Theater, with Jan Kiepura and Marta Eggerth in the stellar singing roles. When its run is completed, it will be succeeded by another notable offering the identity of which will be announced in due course.

• • • •

Hinda Wausau will return to Washington on Sunday to assume the role of the star in the new burlesque attraction to be presented in the Gayety Theater. She will be supported by Nadine Marsh, Estelle Montillo, Vickey McNeeley and Evelyn Brooks, on the distaff side, and by Bimbo Davis and Johnny Barry in the chief comedy parts.

In Hollywood

With HEDDA HOPPER

Hollywood, Calif., April 27.—So many people have been Keeler conscious lately. Where is she? What's she doing? When's she coming back to the screen?

HEDDA HOPPER

Sure I'm talking about Ruby. You didn't think I meant a cure, did you—or did you? All right . . . all right, I won't do it again!

After pro-found snooping—my but it's hard to dig information out of R K O — you'd think they were guarding state secrets—I discovered Ruby has been making tests with that grand director, Rowland V. Lee, for "Mother Carey's Chickens." And by the time this reaches print she'll probably be signed, sealed and delivered.

After Ruby's enormous success in "42nd Street," she got literally carloads of fan mail. Built her salary to nearly $5,000 per week, she did. Yes, she did. People actually do get that money. I've never seen it, but they do.

Then suddenly—poof! She disappeared for a year and a half. Naturally, we were curious to know why.

Ruby's such a sweet, natural, happy wife, mother and daughter. Those things don't usually make headlines. But they sure hold the public's fancy. She has two of the prettiest legs and ankles here. And while massaging the dance floor at the Troc the other night to Garwood Van's swell music, other paying customers sat down and watched. Incidentally, my son Bill, who's fully grown, announces that show over the air every Thursday. And he, too, may be scratching among the chickens with Ruby. And how happy I'd be to have Al Jolson jealous.

When Barbara Stanwyck started "Always Goodbye" at Twentieth Century-Fox, she was overwhelmed by the number of telegrams received, saying: "Happy that you're happy in a job again." Not from stars. But from grips, electricians, still men, gas station wipers—you know, those boys that service your car and do everything but run ribbon through your lingerie.

When the actors put on a party it usually means that, plus. When they let in the writers and directors, anything may happen. It did—at the Tri-Guild Ball at Cocoanut Grove. Which gave us an exciting night.

Mary Boland took me. And why they don't get her to write dialogue, I'll never know. Every time she opens her mouth, out comes wit comparable to Dorothy Parker's. I asked her why she didn't make it pay. Mary said, "Oh, I'm too lazy to write." Write—nothing. All she has to do is talk.

It pains me to report that the two outstanding girls were both "furriners." They entered together. What an entrance! Came hours late, when everybody else had started to wilt. That blonde hair of Marlene's and black of Hedy LaMarr's, with young Doug and Reggie Garnder as background, weren't what you might call a handicap.

Both wore white, Hedy's modest square neck, outlined in black chantilly lace and a tight necklace of diamonds and chinchilla bolero jacket. Marlene's oversized white fox cape gave the rest of us a twinge. Up 'till then we thought we looked pretty good.

Mrs. Gary Cooper wore a section of a crystal chandelier on top of her head. Gary wore a boil on his neck. Happy withal.

Dolores Del Rio must have got into the wrong party. She thought it was fancy dress. Looked like a Christmas tree, sprinkled from head to toe with diamond raindrops. What a godsend she would have been in the Black Hole of Calcutta! She might even have changed history.

Joan Crawford wore a gown matching her face—white. Sort of old-fashioned hoop skirt style. A bit like grandmother's wedding dress. Two cabbage roses in her hair. And dancing with a handful of white orchids and Cesar Romero.

On the way out, Franchot, still with his German haircut, stopped to congratulate Bill Robinson, the most talented colored gentleman since Bert Williams, who carried his talent in his throat. As you know, Bill's is in his feet. Bill stopped the show, as he usually does.

Our local 400 was represented by Bernadine Murphy and Princess Pignatelli, who came in street clothes. Wonder what would happen if our Hollywood beauties went to one of their soirees in street clothes?

The entertainment put on there couldn't have been bought at any price. The whole evening was something to be proud of. Too bad we have to wait a year for another.

Proves Hero.

Peace Committee Forms in District

Formation of a "Washington Keep America Out of War" committee was announced yesterday. Headquarters were established at 1707 H street.

Sponsors include Stephen Rauschenbush, former investigator of the Senate Munitions committee; Jacob Baker, president of the United Federal Workers of America; Representative Knute Hill, of Washington; Senator Gerald P. Nye, Senator Bennett Champ Clark, Powers Hapgood, director of the United Shoe Workers of America; Abraham Harris, professor of economics, Howard University.

Also Aaron Sopher, artist; Rev. Bradford Bayliss, Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church; Mrs. Fred J. Libby, Mrs. Dfi Butler Pratt, Benjamin Marsh, Dorothy Detzer, executive secretary, Women's International League; John Carmody, Rural Electrification Administration; Fred Libby, National Council for the Prevention of War; A. J. Kennedy, international president, Lithographers Union, and Miss Jeanette Rankin.

Faculty Gives Reception.

Jersey Gets Archbishop.

Newark, N. J., April 27 (AP).—The Most Rev. Thomas J. Walsh today became Archbishop of the newly created Roman Catholic province of Newark, embracing all New Jersey.

Contract Bridge

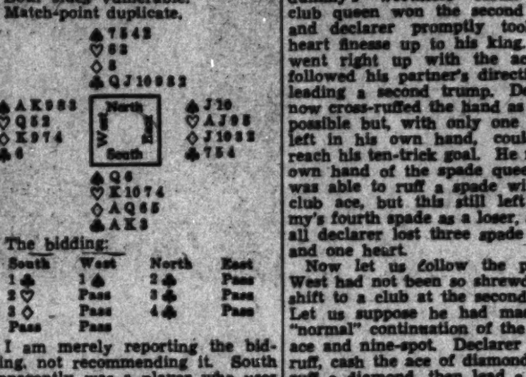
By Mrs. Ely Culbertson

Copyright, 1938, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Destroying Ruffers.

In almost every deal played at a suit contract the ruff of worthless cards either in declarer's hand or in dummy accounts for the winning of one or more tricks. It goes without saying, therefore, that the defenders' ceaseless task should be to destroy this ruffing power whenever possible. When a singleton in a side suit shows up in dummy it is of course a simple matter to lead trumps, thus attacking dummy's ruffing strength. Sometimes, however, this line of defense is not so well marked and requires imagination. Consider today's hand:

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.
Match-point duplicate.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	1 ♠	2 ♣	Pass
2 ♡	Pass	3 ♣	Pass
3 ◇	Pass	4 ♣	Pass
Pass	Pass

I am merely reporting the bidding, not recommending it. South apparently was a player who uses an artificial opening club bid. This is the only explanation that can account for his choice of the three-card club suit instead of his four-card diamond suit.

West opened the spade king and when he saw the dummy promptly hit upon the only defense that could defeat the contract. He shifted to the singleton club. The declarer's partner laughed somewhat derisively and asked: "What are you trying to do, knock out my trumps?" Obviously it looked silly to launch an attack on the six-card club suit in the dummy, but that was not West's object. What he actually was doing was attacking declarer's trump strength in an effort to prevent declarer from ruffing any of dummy's worthless cards. The club queen won the second trick, and declarer promptly took the heart finesse up to his king. East went right up with the ace and followed his partner's direction by leading a second trump. Declarer now cross-ruffed the hand as far as possible but, with only one trump left in his own hand, could not reach his ten-trick goal. He rid his own hand of the spade queen and was able to ruff a spade with the club ace, but this still left dummy's fourth spade as a loser, and in all declarer lost three spade tricks and one heart.

Now let us follow the play if West had not been so shrewd as to shift to a club at the second trick. Let us suppose he had made the "normal" continuation of the spade ace and nine-spot. Declarer would ruff, cash the ace of diamonds, and ruff a diamond, then lead a heart. East would take the ace, but no return would embarrass declarer. A club return would be won with the king. The heart king would be cashed and a heart ruffed. Declarer then would ruff declarer's last spade with his club ace, and dummy would be left with nothing but trumps.

Virginia's Spirit of Spring.

Lovely Lucy Potter, teacher in Handley High School at Winchester, Va., is shown above surrounded by sprites as she will appear today as the spirit of spring at the opening of the Apple Blossom Festival at Winchester. The pageants "Springtime" and "Springs of Yesterday" are headline events for today.

Magic Remodeling Wins Board of Trade Award

Awards to owners and architects of meritorious buildings erected here in the last two years were presented by Commissioner Dan I. Sultan last night at the Board of Trade meeting. The above is a "before" view of a residence at 1339 Twenty-ninth street northwest, owned by E. B. Burling, jr., which led to an award for remodeling after it was converted into the handsome home shown at right. The architect was George L. Howe.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Man Who 'Would Make Grand Husband,' Has One Fault; He Tells Petty Lies; Should Girl Wed Him?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have been going with a young man for four years. We became engaged a little over a year ago and are now making plans to be married within six months. He is of a nice family, has a moderate education and a job with a promising future. He is an attractive person, quite nice looking, neat in appearance and with lovely manners. He is 24 and I am 22. We are both of the same religion, have much in common and are good friends as well as sweethearts. During the four years we have known each other he has always treated me with the utmost courtesy and respect. He is always kind, generous and attentive. In every respect, save one, he is a person who would make a grand husband.

* * * *

But it is that exception that worries me.. He has a tendency to lie about trivial things, yet things that really matter to two persons considering marriage. He lies about where he buys his clothes, the price he pays for them, paying his debts, attending to matters that really should be attended to, etc. Why he should not want to tell the truth about these things is more than I can understand. And when I learn the truth about these matters the result is always a bitter quarrel, ending with his solemn promise not to lie again.

* * * *

I am beginning to lose patience, as I have talked and pleaded with him to be "on the square," and have even been very angry, but all in vain. We love each other very much and have made great plans for our future, but I am wondering if I will be happy. Could I possibly be happy with someone who is not honest with me? Can a person really love another and yet lie to them? If he lies about small things now isn't it likely he will lie about more serious things after we are married? I would be lost without him; my happiness would be gone; and yet I am wondering. Should I take a chance and hope for the best, or just what should I do? ANXIOUS.

* * * *

Sign of Immaturity.

DEAR ANXIOUS: Habitual falsifying on the part of a 24-year-old man may well be regarded with grave misgiving. It is indicative, so behavior experts tell us, of fundamental juvenility. The person who lies habitually after the age of 10 or 12 is a person who suffers from a sense of personal failure; a person who wants to be, or to appear to be, one sort of character, yet who feels in his heart that he is something quite different and inferior. Petty falsifying, the telling of so-called "white lies," is an almost universal trait of childhood, partly based on romantic imaginativeness and partly on an involuntary desire to escape the possibly unpleasant consequences of literal truth-telling. However, as the child's character matures under kindly, responsible guidance, he develops a realistic appreciation of the value to himself and the necessity to society of honesty of statement and dependability of action, and cultivates the adult habit of voluntarily adhering to the truth.

* * * *

The boy or girl who, at the age of 14, is still evading the consequences of his own actions by resorting to the expedient of lying, is regarded by behavior experts as a "problem child." His behavior is classified as "infantile;" he is diagnosed as suffering with a "sick personality." The person who fails to develop, psychologically, beyond childhood's level may be expected to lie. Whether such lagging behind, when belatedly recognized, can be overcome, is problematic. Some persons do outgrow it; others don't. To be struggling with such an area of immaturity in one's personality at the age of 24 is to be carrying a very heavy social and psychological handicap indeed.

* * * *

However, it is well to remember that whoever pries into the details of another's personal life and conduct can expect—in most cases—to be put off with a certain amount of evasiveness. This boy's parents may have subjected him, since earliest adolescence, to be a constant barrage of inquisitiveness, supplemented with alternate explosions of anger, annoyance or reproval at their findings. Your attitude toward him may closely parallel theirs. Whoever would cure the liar cannot hope to do so by challenging his lies as such. Consummate tact is required for dealing with this manifestation of immaturity.

The woman who marries an habitual prevaricator must be prepared to play the role of mother to a small boy, rather than the role of helpmeet to a responsible man. She has one chance in one thousand (or possibly less) of witnessing his conversion to truth telling; and her only hope lies in exercising infinite love and patience in helping him overcome his handicap. It is not a task to recommend to the average woman, for she will never know what she is working with. Marriage is difficult enough, in its social and economic ramifications, when both partners are completely open and aboveboard in their mutual dealings, but it becomes a heart-breaking assignment when one party is constantly in the dark concerning the other's out-of-sight actions and transactions.

* * * *

Now, to answer your specific questions: You know already that you cannot be happy in association with a man who lies to you. As for the question: Can a person love another and yet lie to them, the answer is "Yes." To the liar, his lie is a form of attempted face-saving and everybody tries to turn his most convincing false face to the person he loves and whose approval he seeks. The person who lies about small things undoubtedly would lie about big things if he thought he could get away with it. Marriage would probably create, in the chronic falsifier's mind, a temptation to tell bigger and better "whoppers," if only as a supposed means of obviating the quarrels his very lies invited.

* * * *

Should you take a chance (on marriage) and hope for the best? In my opinion, no. It is axiomatic that a man's fundamental shortcomings are not open to reform after marriage. If he is not amenable to reform during courtship, he is resistant during betrothal and adamant after marriage, as a rule. I can only suggest that you confront this man with the psychological reasons for his fibbing and give him a reasonable trial period in which to inaugurate his own reform. If he doesn't make an immediate, determined effort to master the art of truth telling, and show real progress at it, you may as well act on the assumption that his case is hopeless. Though your happiness may seem lost without him, it would be utterly destroyed in permanent union with him, unless he reforms beforehand. M. H.

Hats Transform Costume to Suit Occasion

ONE NAVY BLUE crepe frock will serve many purposes with a variety of hats as shown above. At left, worn without a jacket and with a pancake turban of burgundy carnations and a starched navy blue veil it is suitable for cocktails, teas or informal restaurant dining. At right, plus a jacket of self material and with a wide brimmed upsweeping hat of Milan straw trimmed with a navy chiffon scarf that winds around the crown and falls below the shoulder, it is an ideal business or general daytime costume. Costumes posed by Dorothy Lamour, film star.

Roast saddle of lamb Mint ice
Green pea timbles Pimiento sauce
Broiled tomato slices
Dandelion and lettuce salad with French dressing
Tray of crackers, cheese and fresh fruit
Coffee

MONTCLAIR APPETIZER.

Mix 4 tablespoons of unsweetened whipped cream with 4 tablespoons of freshly ground horseradish, 1 teaspoon of Worcestershire sauce, ½ teaspoon of salt, a dash of tabasco and ⅛ teaspoon of mustard, a little chopped parsley. Roll this preparation in strips of smoked beef. Serve on lettuce with crisp rye wafers.

Luncheon Suggestions.

Good eating for a ladies' luncheon is a platterful of dainty crab-meat sandwiches set off with a circle of crisp watercress studded with glossy ripe olives. Try it next time the bridge club meets your way. Soon as the girls come, settle them at card tables and start off with steaming cups of soup. Then pass a platter of crab-meat sandwiches, a bowlful of fresh fruit salad and cups of good strong coffee.

Hat Can Change Personality of Whole Outfit

Emphasis on Accessories Turns Attention to Double Ensembles.

By Ethel Ehlen.

The Post Fashion Editor.

YOUR CHIC is rated not according to the number of costumes you possess, but according to your own versatility in making each ensemble lead a dual or even a triple life. It is the old basic dress or suit idea again, but more popular than ever this spring because of the importance of accessories in the fashion picture.

One of the greatest transformers in this little game of quick-changing from business to informal dinner or cocktail clothes is the hat. The same costume can take on an entirely different personality by the mere changing of headgear. And, with hats so varied and diverse in shape, material and color scheme this spring, a wardrobe of chapeaux and several jacketed-frocks could see you through the season, with fashion assurance.

To be specific. Take your navy or black sheer frock which is topped by either a full-length coat or short fitted jacket. Even though it be styled to the nth degree in femininity according to the latest style dictums, when topped by a casual hat it becomes a smart costume for business, shopping or general daytime wear. The same outfit immediately takes on a formal feeling when the simple hat is substituted for a flower turban, exotic-veiled toque, or wide-brimmed hat of the portrait variety; and you are then smartly dressed for the most pretentious tea or cocktail party, or informal restaurant dining.

There is literally no end to costume transformation via the hat this year—the results depending upon your own ingenuity, and the flexibility of the budget. Another interesting thing about an extensive hat wardrobe; a new hat does wonders in rejuvenating an old costume and giving the entire ensemble a look of newness and freshness. And, incidentally, a swagger or colorful veil arranged in some novel manner, gives even an old hat the illusion of last week's latest model—that is, if the arranging is done skillfully and with subtle chic.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes

New York, April 27.

WHEN THE GREATEST Show on Earth lures you under the billowing big top, you will see the mammoth aggregation of blood-sweating behemoths. Death defying marvels of the air will continue to make a monkey of the law of gravity. The immemorial goobers and pink lemonade will be hawked. But you will see, this year, the first real transformation the Ringling-Barnum Circus has seen since the death of old Phineas T!

ALICE HUGHES

The circus has suddenly become clothes conscious! The lovely blonde ladies still wear white tights and spangles, but with a difference. For the first time in its long and spectacular history the big show has been completely reclothed by a first-rate designer, Charles LeMaire. Charlie is a Salt Lake City boy who came here 20 years ago, studied design in the dressmaking house of Mme. Sherri, and in the past decade has become famous in his field. He has dressed "The Follies," "The Scandals," and "The Vanities," and made custom-cut clothes for the swells. Now he has created over 2,000 spandy new costumes for the circus, and they help make the grand entry, or what the lot calls "the spec," the most gorgeous affair in circus annals.

* * * *

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—Fame has come to our Murray Hill igloo, and we old residents at this lower Park avenue apartment fairly drip pride. On all our 14 floors are but three children—my Martin and two small girls named Natalie and Mary Winslow, cute blonde mites. Well imagine our state of glory when their pictures appeared in no less than three local papers over Easter, snapped in their vernal finery with their pretty mama, now Mrs. Natalie Latham! We've tried to be modest about it, but think that of all the small blondes in New York, the shutters should be snapped at our two. Now we shrug off queries with "Oh, we live, you know, where the little Winslow girls live!"

* * * *

The latest word on the Wondrous Windsors (oh, you remember, David and Wallis?) is that the ducal duo will arrive in the silly old States next July, coming in by the western, or Pacific, door. Creeping in on us, hey? I have also just heard from Paris that Her Grace of Baltimore is still an elegant dresser, having been noted at the new "Bagatelle" cafe in a stunning black ensemble, trimmed with gold, by Mainbocher. Her perfect grooming seems to be Wally's strongest sartorial point. So the Californians may have first whack, and we Easterners will get what shreds and patches are left by Hollywood.

The GENTLER SEX

By Malvina Lindsay.

At The Wedding.

"Let's sit here on the outside so we can see everything. If there's anything on earth I love it's a wedding."

"Me, too. They always make me want to cry."

"What I like about 'em is they're so nice and pagan. You know weddings are just about all we have left . . . say, I wonder if Gladys'll have 'obey' and all that stuff."

"I hope so. It's so quaint. You know I may be old-fashioned, but I think the marriage service is really beautiful."

"Still that stuff about 'till eternity'—that's pretty strong, don't you think?"

"No, I think 'it's sweet and quaint—wait! There's the music! Don't you love the Lohengrin? There's no thrill like it in the world—the first time you walk down the aisle to it."

"O-oh-h! There comes Marie! What a darling dress—if it wasn't for the color."

"Green's always hard on brunettes. Say, I WISH you would look how that back is gathered. I might have my old net fixed that way——"

"Sh-h. Here's Esther! Now she should worn the green and Marie the yellow."

"Trust Gladys to watch out for that. Say, is that marquisette?"

"No, I believe it's plain net. I saw some just like it for $1.79. Did you ever see such cute little boleros?"

"They were all certainly smart to have their dresses made with jackets. They can get so much more wear out of them. Wait! There's Adele! Isn't she lovely?"

"Yes, but she ought to have practiced the wedding march more. Is that color orchid?"

"No; it's more of a mauve pink. Aren't those sleeves darling? You know I could do my organdie ones that way——"

"Oh, I WISH you would look at the flower girl! Isn't she TOO adorable! Look at that CUNNING little bonnet!"

"She's darling. Oh, I can hardly wait to see Gladys—Oh, here she comes . . . veil and everything!"

"I don't believe I'd had the nerve—say, that's a marvelous dress! Still, she'll never get any good out of it."

"Say, isn't that dress made with a redingote? . . . It is! So she can take the train part off. What a smart idea!"

"Gladys WOULD think of that. They say she marked all her things with her own initials—so if anything happened . . ."

"I like the coronet style better."

"I like the halo—still I don't suppose Gladys would dare go that strong."

"Did you ever see anything as lovely as those flowers? I DO believe they're orchids!"

"They ARE orchids."

"What on earth do you suppose that bouquet cost? Sh-h, they're going to begin. Don't they look lovely . . . like a rainbow . . ."

"Say! Who on EARTH is that man?"

"What man? They all look alike to me . . ."

"The one just stepping up."

"Where?"

"Oh, there—By Gladys . . ."

"That! Oh, that's the bridegroom."

Powder Puff Daintiness.

Watch your powder puff. You may not notice its lack of daintiness, but other people will. Besides, using a soiled powder puff is practically the same as rubbing a handful of dirt over your face. Every day isn't a bit too often to change to a fresh powder puff. When you have collected a week's supply, dip them in a thick lather of soapsuds and scrub them with a hand brush. Rinse thoroughly, roll in a towel for a moment and let them dry overnight.

Jellied Salad Plate To Be Subject of Recipe Contest

Jellied salads for cold plates were suggested by Mrs. Gertrude Gebel, 1352 Fourteenth street northeast, for this week's recipe contest. She thinks that recipes for cool shimmering salads that have flavor will be welcomed by every housewife. If you agree, then you probably have certain salads that have contributed flavor and color to the summer menu.

If these are recipes that you have served successfully, then make a selection among them and enter one in this week's recipe exchange. Five cash prizes will be awarded. The first is $3, the second $2, and there are three prizes of $1 each. To enter the contest, write out clear directions, inclose name and address on the same page as the recipe and mail to Jean Green, Post Food Editor, before April 30.

YOUR FIGURE, MADAME!

By Ida Jean Kain.

YOU ARE COUNTING ON looking simply divine when you lose 20 excess pounds. And so you will, if you slim down slowly! Reducing can make a new woman of you—or an older one. One of the worst things you can do to your looks is to reduce too fast.

Never forget that skin contraction plays the beauty role in reducing, and that with a considerable amount of excess weight the skin has been unduly stretched. This causes the skin to lose some of its elasticity.

It is the elasticity of the skin that enables it to expand and contract to adapt itself to weight change. If the weight change is gradual enough, the skin contracts beautifully, but when the reduction is made too suddenly there is no time for the skin to contract into a smooth covering and it sags into wrinkles.

The most disastrous results of rapid reducing occur when the skin has for years been adapted to excessive overweight. In such cases the weight reduction must be made even more slow than ordinarily to allow for a greater loss of the skin's elasticity.

When wrinkles follow a reducing program you may be sure that the diet has been too drastic, the reducer has taken too little exercise, and the weight has been taken off much too quickly. Usually the firm contours of the figure sag and the chin goes terracing down the throat.

This "reduced look" is as unnecessary as it is unflattering. The longer you have been overweight and the higher your percentage of excess weight, the longer time should be allowed for reduction. Another factor in skin elasticity is your age. As one grows older the elasticity decreases and after middle age a reducing program should be undertaken with caution.

A slow weight loss gives your skin an even chance, but the smart thing is to exercise and replace some of the subcutaneous fat with well-toned muscle. Exercise has a cosmetic value that is yet to be surpassed by any ointment or lotion. Regular activity tones skin and muscles, improves the circulation and tends to increase the skin elasticity. Exercise is always a beauty measure, but most of all when you are taking off weight.

With more exercise, you may find that your diet is causing you to lose faster than you should. Be sure that your weight loss for the first month does not exceed two pounds per week, for the second month one and one-half pounds per week, and in the third month drop down to one pound per week. Do

Boncescos Will Leave For Rumania May 12

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

Hails and farewells serve as excuses for more than half the parties in Washington. Comings and goings in the Diplomatic Corps are heralded over the tea cups, the dinner table and the dance floor. Announcement of a change of post usually is a signal for a flock of entertainments and departing diplomats proverbially find themselves in a whirl of parties right up to the hour of leaving.

Not so the retiring Financial Counselor of the Rumanian Legation and Mme. George Boncesco. One of Washington's most popular couples for almost a dozen years, the Boncescos could be both widely and lavishly feted if they chose. But as they see it, good-bys are too sad to be bandied about at one social event after another. "Farewell parties? We don't like them. We don't want them," has been Mme. Boncesco's reply to scores of friends who wanted to fete her and her husband during their last days in Washington. "Going away is too sad. Don't give a party for us. Let us come in to see you for a last little chat. We don't want to say good-by."

HOPE R. MILLER.

So it happens that the Boncescos now are finding themselves in a continual round of calling on their many friends . . . stopping here for a cup of tea . . . there for a small dinner . . . and then on somewhere else for a quiet evening. Mass feting at big, formal parties, at which farewells would be voiced lightly by dozens of persons they might not know well is not for them.

Since many of the friends they have made in America live in New York, the Boncescos have arranged to be there several days. They will leave Washington Monday.

Plan to Sail Thursday, May 12

According to present plans, they will sail Thursday, May 12, on the Champlain. With one or two exceptions their social calendar in New York will be very similar to the one they are observing here. Plans for big farewell parties are out of the picture. Small, informal, get-togethers with close acquaintances will occupy most of their time until their sailing date rolls around.

They plan to stop in Paris briefly to see still more friends before going on to Bucharest, where Mr. Bocesco has been assigned to duty in the foreign office. They have almost as many relatives in and around the Rumanian capital as they have friends here; so much as they dislike leaving Washington, going home to reside has its points.

Mme. Boncesco, however, already is making plans to return to America at the first chance. She hopes to come back next summer to attend the O'Hara Art School, in York Harbor, Me., where she has studied painting with marked success. She had her first lesson there after she had turned out several canvases of high quality. "But my technique—something had to be done about it," said Mme. Boncesco, who is known to her friends as "Wippy."

During their New York sojourn, the Boncescos hope to see their good friend, Katharine Dayton, the playwright, who was co-author with George S. Kaufman, of "First Lady" and whose latest play, "Save Me the Waltz," appeared here in recent months.

About The Town

With Dudley Harmon

WHERE ELSE but in our Washington would you find on the same afternoon two parties given, (a) in honor of somebody's new streamlined figure, and (b) to celebrate a friend's moving into a new house?

DUDLEY HARMON.

It would be exaggerating slightly to call Mr. and Mrs. F. Moran McConihe's affair celebrating Miss Nancy Leiter's return from a diet at Johns Hopkins a party, as they simply asked eight or ten of her close friends in for a cocktail in the garden behind their house on R street.

But it was definitely a party which Mr. and Mrs. John Caswell gave for the former Austrian Minister and Mme. Prochnik. The popular Prochniks have left the legation on Massachusetts avenue and are now comfortably installed in a house on Twenty-fourth street near the Caswells, and it was to celebrate this change of residence that half a hundred guests gathered yesterday for a cocktail or a highball.

• • • •

AS MANY people as could possibly be wedged onto a small terrace rushed for the one off the Caswell dining room. Here chairs were placed, and one could sit comfortably and gaze at boxes full of geraniums which the host had planted himself. A wandering hurdy-gurdy who planted himself strategically beneath the terrace added to the festivities.

Mme. Prochnik looked surprisingly calm for one who has been supervising moving vans. She wore a navy blue frock and a small straw hat trimmed with flowers. The charming hostess wore a bark blue skirt with a lighter blue blouse.

Senora de Espil, wife of the Argentine Ambassador, was present, which is news, as she rarely attends cocktail parties. Mr. and Mrs. Edward Pavenstedt, Arthur Krock, Blair Bolles, Mrs. William T. Mann, Comdr. Hamilton Bryan and Mrs. Edward Finkenstaedt were among those installed on the terrace for most of the afternoon.

• • • •

WE SAW ALSO, Mrs. Richard Southgate, chatting with Clarence Hewes; Mrs. Albert Dewey in a gray suit with a blouse and hat of navy blue; Frances Whitten in a black silk dress with black and white flowered sleeves and a colossal black straw hat with a rose on the brim; Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Exnicios; George Garrett, Benjamin Plunket of the British Embassy; Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert, who arrived with a little porcelain animal as a housewarming gift for the Prochniks; Miss Francesca McKenney, in pale blue; Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis, who is among the inveterate cigarette-holder users in the Capital; Mrs. Harold Hinton, Mrs. Pearsons Rust, Mrs. Emory Sands, in a pretty pink wool suit, Ralph Snowden Hill and Viscount J. H. de Sibour.

• • • •

RUSHING to half a dozen cocktail parties in one afternoon does not daunt Capital society, and yesterday many went from Caswells to the home of the First Secretary of the German Embassy and Frau Herbert Scholz. The latter was entertaining in honor of her charming and beautiful mother, Frau von Schnitzler. Mother and daughter will leave Monday for several days in New York before the former sails back to Germany. She has canceled a trip planned to Mexico.

On her return to Washington Frau Scholz will be joined by her husband, who is in New Orleans on business, and both of them plan to spend the summer here.

A quick look around the room yesterday at the party showed the following "among those present:" Mme. van Haersma de With, in a black and white print and black straw hat; Miss Marian Trumbull, in a similar color scheme; Clarence Stetson, Senator and Mrs. Arthur Vandenberg, Commander and Mrs. John Magruder (Mrs. Magruder will sail early this summer in a freighter for Europe, where she will join a schoolgirl daughter in Lausanne for a tour of the Continent); Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne, Countess van Rechteren Limpurg, Frau Thomsen and Frau Blankenhorn, of the German Embassy, and Dr. and Mrs. Kurt Hetzel.

• • • •

STILL ANOTHER cocktail party on the books yesterday was given by Miss Carolyn Chantry in honor of Miss Helen Brereton and her fiance, Robert Swezey, whose marriage takes place tomorrow.

Both Miss Brereton and Miss Chantry are "Navy Juniors;" the former being the daughter of Commander and Mrs. William D. Brereton, the latter's mother and father are Capt. and Mrs. Alan Chantry.

The hostess lokked very cool and springlike in a flowered print, while her guest of honor had chosen the very popular navy blue, with a hat to match.

Miss Marguerite Woolley, Joao de Deus Ramos, of the Portuguese Legation; William McComb, William K. Ryan, and Miss Mary Waldo, who came by plane all the way from Minneapolis, were a few of the guests at yesterday's party.

Miss Chantry will entertain at cocktails again this afternoon in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Rene Salembier, of New York, who will arrive today to spend the week-end here.

Mrs. Searles Bridge Hostess

Mrs. Ellis Searles, who lives at the Wardman Park Hotel, entertained at a bridge luncheon there yesterday in honor of Mrs. Ralph Chappell, of Indianapolis, who is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Warren, in Vienna, Va., and Mrs. William Thomas, of Stamford, Conn., who is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Lewis. The table was decorated with silver bowls containing spring flowers.

Present were Mrs. Henry Warren, Mrs. John L. Lewis, Mrs. Harold M. Stephens, Mrs. Daniel O'Connell, Mrs. Raymond Bell, Mrs. James Duke, Mrs. James G. Haskell, Mrs. A. E. Giegengack, Mrs. Harold Lafount and Mrs. John Louchran.

• • • •

C. E. Rose, who left recently for Orlando, Fla., where he and Mrs. Rose will make their home, was the guest of honor at a farewell party given Saturday by a group of his associates. J. E. Coyle and H. J. McCarthy were in charge.

• • • •

Among the guests were Mrs. J. F. Zimmerman, of Harvey, Ill., State Regent of the D. A. R.; Mrs. Robert F. Schott, delegate to the Continental Congress from Quincy, Ill.; Miss Esther Barnard, of Philadelphia, and Miss Janet M. James.

Comdr. Ellsberg Here.

Miss Gardiner To Be Honored

A group of younger members of Capital society will assist the committee at a reception for Miss Lisa Gardiner, director of the Washington National Ballet, on Monday evening at 9 o'clock in the King-Smith Playhouse and garden. The young ladies include Miss Betty Balfour, Miss Fanchon Holliday, Miss Betty Barnhill, Miss Ellison Royce, Miss Glenna Tulton and Miss Patricia Benedict.

Among those who will attend are Mr. and Mrs. David Barr, Commander and Mrs. Thomas L. Gatch, the Misses Mary and Elizabeth Howry, Mrs. George Loyd, Dr. and Mrs. James Alexander Lyon, Mr. and Mrs. Dallas D. McGrew and Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross.

On Saturday evening Miss Gardiner and members of her ballet will give a lecture demonstration in the auditorium at Greenbelt, Md.

• • • •

Mrs. Philip R. Friend, of the Sherman Hotel, Chicago, Ill., is visiting her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Philip H. Friend, of Washington.

• • • •

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Broom are at the Commodore Hotel in New York. Also there from Washington are Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Jerman, Miss Wilda M. Daish, and Miss Doris E. Strobel.

• • • •

Mr. and Mrs. Earl W. Dow, of Ann Arbor, Mich., are at the Dodge Hotel.

• • • •

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander M. Heron, of Washington, are at the Elbow Beach Hotel in Hamilton, Bermuda.

Audrey Wurdemann, who in private life is Mrs. Joseph Auslander, yesterday was elected without opposition to succeed Mrs. Phyllis Fergus Hoyt as president of the National League of American Pen Women. She was nominated by Mrs. Florence Hamilton, president of the New York City branch, and the nomination was seconded by Grace Boles, Hedge, of Los Angeles.

Miss Wurdemann, a Pulitzer prize winner, is a member of the Seattle branch, and is the first president of the league from the Pacific Coast. She has been living in New York, but expects to move to Washington in the fall as Mr. Auslander is now poetry consultant for the Library of Congress.

Other officers who will be installed at the breakfast in the small ballroom of the Willard this morning are Theodora Cunningham, of the District, first vice president; Louise Hartley Wassell, of the Arkansas branch, a resident of the District, second; Grace Boles Hedge, of California, third; May West Owen, fourth, and Clyde Burke Millspaugh, of Alabama, fifth; Clara Manderschied, of the District, recording secretary; Claudia Rice Scott, District, corresponding secretary; Mariam Needham Taft, Chevy Chase, treasurer; Lillian E. Gaddess, Baltimore, registrar; Margie E. Luckett, Baltimore, librarian; Lillian Louise Greene, Maine, historian, and Mrs. Tomas Cajigas, District, auditor.

State presidents who also are elected by the national convention and serve on the board are Miss Marguerite Merigold, for the District branch; Pearle R. Casey, Colorado; Ted Shawn Thompson, Maine; Grace Porterfield Polk, Florida; Emma Cobb Evans, Texas; Louise Worden, Maryland; Josephine Chandler Horner, Illinois; Elydia Shipman, Eastern New York; Margaret Schley, Northern New York; Glora Mae Howard, Missouri; Emma Sangernebo, Indiana; Mrs. J. B. White, Oklahoma; Mrs. H. J. Ingram, Southern California; Bernie Babcock, Arkansas; Hazel Webster Byrnes, North Dakota; Elizabeth Skaggs Bowman, Eastern Tennessee; Sarah Tillman, Western Tennessee; Mary J. Dawson, Western Pennsylvania, and Georgia C. Hyde, Wisconsin.

Poetry Banquet Features Writers

Miss Wurdemann was announced as the new president last night at the poetry banquet. The program also included the announcement of prize winners in the poetry, short story and juvenile short story contests and readings from their own books of poems by Miss Wurdemann, Francesca Falk Miller, Vivian Yieser, Laramore and B. Y. Williams. Other guests of honor included Carrie Jacobs Bond, composer and author, and Ted Malone, of the radio. Lulu Gable Giese also participated in the section of the program devoted to radio.

In the afternoon the Pen Women were the guests of Senora de los Rios, wife of the Spanish Ambassador, at a tea and musicale at the Spanish Embassy. The courtesy was extended by the diplomatic hostess through her friendship with Mrs. Tomas Cajigas, of the Chevy Chase branch of the league, who is the new national auditor. Although the absence of the Ambassador, who sailed yesterday for Spain, caused regret, the party was one of the high lights of the biennial convention.

Mrs. Cajigas made the introductions and the guests were received in the music room by Senora de los Rios, her mother, and Mrs. Hoyt.

They went from there into the patio, where a fountain played and vines and flowers bordered the way into the outer garden. The rare dolls made by the mother of the hostess, each an authentic copy of a character in a famous painting, were another point of interest.

Guests Provide Musical Program

There was a musicale in which the Pen Women participated. The piano was at the east end of the room. Above it was the flag of Spain, and at the opposite end the warm afternoon sun streamed through the long windows.

Harlan Randall sang "Memories of Spain," written for the occasion by Mrs. Hoyt, who accompanied him at the piano. Nearby sat the hostess and her mother and Mrs. Hoyt's mother, Mrs. Mary Fergus. Mrs. Myrtle Lindbeck sang Pearl Curran's "Nocturne," and "I Heard a Bird Sing," by Elizabeth Merz Butterfield. Then, by request, Carrie Jacobs Bond played her appealing song, "Make Believe," speaking the words, and concluded with "Perfect Day," which all the guests sang.

Zonta Club Names Emma Hahm Head At Annual Session

Miss Emma T. Hahm was elected president of the Zonta Club of Washington last night to succeed Miss Winifred Burwell. The election took place at the club's annual meeting after a dinner at the Grafton Hotel.

Other new officers are Mrs. Elizabeth Cox, vice president, and Miss Elizabeth Haney, Miss Mary Sigmon, Miss Clara McGrath and Miss Kathryn Fox, members of the board of directors.

Mothers Should Make Children Individuals, Says Mrs. Kipling

Home making should be the career of every mother until her children are grown and then, at 40 or so, she has time enough to make a professional career for herself if she desires. This is the opinion of a mother who has practiced what she preaches, and Gene Raymond, the film star, is one of her two successful sons.

Few of the members of the National League of American Pen Women are aware that Mrs. Mary Kipling, of California, who holds her membership as a lecturer, is mother of the popular movie star—her name doesn't tell it and neither does she. She has been taking an active part as a delegate to the biennial convention now in session at the Willard, but her identity as Gene Raymond's mother has been almost a secret.

It is part of Mrs. Kipling's plan that members of her family shall be individuals, win their own places according to their own talents, and not be helped or hindered by the others' attainments. Consequently they all had their names changed legally. Mrs. Kipling's younger son is Leonard Ames, a young band leader who is gaining a reputation for himself under his own name and not as Gene Raymond's brother. She is now lecturing on vccational training for children and the fact that her son Gene Raymond has had a steady rise in his profession merely proves that she knows something of what she is talking about. She does not trade on his reputation.

Mrs. Kipling, because her sons' talents lay in the field of entertainment, directed their education in subjects contributing to their talents in this line and gave them only six months of high school. Higher mathematics and courses in Latin, she believes, are a waste of time unless they contribute definitely to the student's future career. It should be discovered early what his interests are, and his training should all build toward their development.

The younger son, being musically inclined, was given a chance at music. His mother observed him, at the age of 10, standing before the radio when popular dance bands played, and doing a little imaginary conducting. She gave him every opportunity to hear music and become interested in the work of musicians, but did not hurry him off to a music teacher.

This is the message Mrs. Kipling is giving to women's groups in her lectures—which are her new career, now that her two sons are established in theirs. She will remain in Washington a week following the close of the Pen Women's convention tonight.

Navy Asks Fund To Establish Air Bases in Pacific

Projects in Capital Area Also Urged in $28,751,000 Request.

Intent on maintaining control of sea areas strategically important in American national defense, the Navy Department, with the active support of President Roosevelt, yesterday asked Congressional authorization for the establishment of air bases in the Pacific and for long-needed additions to existing naval facilities.

Asking an expenditure of $28,751,000 in identical measures introduced in the House and Senate, the program carried provisions for permanent additions to more than a score of naval stations in the Pacific and on the East and West Coasts.

Of exceptional importance are clauses calling for construction work, valued at $6,520,000, at Guam; Kodiak, Alaska; Kaneohe Bay, Hawaii, and "auxiliary seaplane facilities, Fourteenth Naval District," probably referring to Midway Island.

The largest single item would authorize the expenditure of $8,485,000 for a drydock at Pearl Harbor, T. H.

If approved all projects must await appropriations in some future bill.

Projects Planned Near D. C.

Additions to existing stations near the National Capital include construction of a magazine building, costing $35,000 and expenditure of $100,000 in land for safety zones, at the Naval Proving Ground, Dahlgren, Va.

A $400,000 barracks and a $250,000 aircraft and engine overhauling building at the Marine Corps Flying Field, Quantico, Va.; a $450,000 dispensary building, a $375,000 officers' school building, improvement of water supply at a cost of $190,000, and a $280,000 general storehouse at the Marine Barracks, Quantico.

The building program, marking the first effort by the United States to construct fortifications in the Pacific since the signing of the Washington Treaty establishing a "status quo" in Asiatic waters, was sent to Congress by Secretary of the Navy Swanson.

His letter officially transmitting the proposal was made public by Chairman Carl Vinson of the House Naval Affairs Committee, who is the author of the billion-dollar naval expansion bill, which already has passed the House and is now pending in the Senate.

Vinson Aims for Speed.

Vinson said plans called for immediate enactment of the program so a deficiency appropriation bill carrying funds to begin work at Kodiak and Midway Island could be rushed through Congress before adjournment.

Although the proposal for legislation at this time came as a complete surprise, naval activities have been underway in Alaska for some time. During the past winter six patrol planes have been stationed at Kodiak.

Besides the authorizations for work in the Pacific and at stations near the National Capital the measure lists the following proposed developments:

Naval Training Station, Norfolk, Va., mess hall and galley building, $450,000; trade school building, $350,000.

Naval Air Station, Pensacola, Fla., land adjacent to Corry Field, $6,000; auxiliary landing fields, $225,000.

Fleet Air Base, Coco Solo, C. Z., personnel building, $2,016,000.

The Agricultural Adjustment Administration reported yesterday it had paid out $169,767,047 in benefits to farmers and administrative expenses during the July-March period of the current fiscal year. Checks are now being mailed to farmers at the rate of about $4,000,000 a day. Expenditures by States included Maryland, $538,443; Virginia, $1,262,418.

Dramatic Rescue of Passengers From Sinking Airliner

Festival Brings Folk Dances of Lithuania Here

Chicago Group to Perform 'Suktinis' to Music of 'Kankles.'

The folk richness and color brought to America by more recent immigrant groups will be illustrated at the fifth annual National Folk Festival by Lithuanian dancers and singers from Chicago.

Two scenes from the home country of their parents will be presented by the Chicago troupe—an agricultural scene, during which the singers tell of the pretty maiden who raked hay so nicely, and a festival scene, during which fast Lithuanian quadrilles will be featured.

Music for the agricultural scene will be furnished in part by the kankles, a zither-like instrument which dates back to paganism. The kankles was used by early Lithuanian seers who changed sagas and folk songs throughout their country, and is today enjoying a popular revival.

Suktinis, the national dance of twirls, will be performed, as will also be "Lengvos Kojos," the "light on the feet" dance, the Dzuka dance of southern Lithuania, and a number of others.

The group is being sposored by the Lithuanian Society of Chicago and will be under the leadership of Vytantes F. Beliajus, young Lithuanian, who has done much to keep folk offerings of his ancestors alive in this country. So well has Beliajus been received by dance and musix experts that his work has had a wide influence on other immigrant groups of the nation. He is now editor of "Lore," a folk magazine published in the Chicago Park District.

The National Folk Festival will be held at Constitution Hall May 6, 7 and 8 under sponsorship of The Post.

Children to Get Holiday

Elementary school children in Washington's public schools will be excused from classes to attend the National Folk Festival matinee a week from Friday in Constitution Hall, the Board of Education ruled yesterday.

Dr. Frank W. Balluo, superintendent of schools, recommended the action, explaining that arrangements were being made for 1,500 boys and girls of elementary school age to attend the program.

Children will be excused upon presenting to the school principal a letter of consent from their parents.

The board also approved Dr. Balluo's recommendation that Parent-Teacher Associations in the schools handle ticket sales for the children.

Only elementary school children will be excused from school Friday. Many junior and senior high school and college students will attend the Saturday afternoon program.

Soldier in Va. Jailed as Baby Is Abandoned

ner expressed fear that her daughter might have met with foul play.

"She never would have deserted the baby," sobbed Mrs. Szenftner. "We both loved the baby.

"She said she was going to marry a boy named Arthur, who did something or other at Fort Myer. I seem to remember she knew an Arthur. They saw a lot of each other. Some bad men must be holding her. She'd never part with the baby as long as she is alive."

The infant, husky and well proportioned, was found bouncing around Tuesday in the truck in North Carolina. A. W. Cline, chief probation officer of the Juvenile Court at Winston-Salem, N. C., took charge of the case as search was pushed for the mother. The baby was taken to the Forsyth (N. C.) Hospital by Watson Tuttle, truckman, who said he found the baby in his vehicle. He had no idea how the child got into his truck, he said.

A note pinned to the baby's clothing said: "Lenox Hill Hospital, New York. Born March 2, 1938, Roland Lowell."

It was this clue that led to Mrs. Szenftner, who said her foster-daughter had left home with the infant two weeks before to marry a Fort Myer soldier. Rita worked for $5 a week in a Fifth avenue dress shop, Mrs. Szenftner said. The soldier sent Rita $20 to make the trip.

"Rita is red-haired," said Mrs. Szenftner. "She is so pretty and so smart she had many admirers but she liked that soldier best."

Travelers' Aid Society workers in Philadelphia said Rita and the baby were there on April 10, and left the next day.

Recklessness Made Grounds For Firing Here

D. C. Employes Who Peril Others Are Now Subject to Dismissal.

District employes who endanger themselves or others by disregarding established safety practices "may be discharged when circumstances warrant such action," it was revealed yesterday.

All municipal employes received this notice in the official bulletin published by the safety committee under the District government.

Heads of various departments received notice that "all inspectors, foremen, and other supervisors in charge of working groups or construction gangs of workers, will be held strictly accountable for all 'preventable' accidents involving employes under their supervision."

The program, it was explained, is in co-operation with the National Program of Health and Safety, sponsored by President Roosevelt, and the Federal Interdepartmental Safety Council, organized by the Secretary of Labor.

The District Commissioners yesterday indorsed the broad program of health and safety initiated by E. J. Bunker, safety inspector, in charge of the safety section, and E. S. Dawson, inspector of claims, of the District. The order embraces all construction, maintenance, motor vehicles and other activities of the District government.

The bulletin, entitled "D. C. Safety Log," also listed the various accidents reported by the different departments.

Bar Group to Pay Respects to Green

The District Bar Association last night named a committee to represent it at the funeral of Frank Kay Green, marshal of the United States Supreme Court, at 10 a. m. today, in Holy Trinity Church, Georgetown. Members of the committee are Robert F. Cogswell, G. Bowdoin Craighill, Leslie C. Garnett, Henry R. Gower, Wilbur L. Gray, Nelson T. Hartson, Francis W. Hill, jr., John E. Laskey, Paul E. Lesh, Frederick S. Tyler and Charles F. Wilson.

Mr. Green died Tuesday at Emergency Hospital. He was 61, and had served the Supreme Court longer than any other present employe. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

With all the furore about spies that's going on, it's comical to discover that a young American not only has charge of the household staff at the Japanese Embassy, but also sleeps there.

* * * *

Mrs. Hugo Black . . . tot made it.

One reason why Justice Black looked so nervous and harassed during his early weeks on the Supreme Court bench was that he had a chair which squeaked every time he shifted his position. Now he has a new chair, and he's looking better.

* * * *

The rumor that a few Americans prominent in Washington's social life are suspected of accepting "foreign gold" for propaganda—much of it merely conversational—and for occasional "reports" has been confirmed by a high government official.

Off the record, he named one man positively, not an official.

"—foreign gold for a patriot"

Recently this important official was invited to address a select high-grade group at lunch. His remarks were to be confidential and strictly off the record.

"I'd like to come," he said, "but I regret that I can't, because Mr. So-and-So will be there. Anything I said would be known at the German Embassy by 3 o'clock."

* * * *

Such propaganda is so subtle as to be almost imperceptible . . . It is well flavored with lofty patriotism and 100 per cent Americanism . . . It aims to show that this country's interests would be most wisely served by taking certain positions and doing certain things—which would play into the hands of certain foreign powers.

* * * *

A feminine tourist got the shock of her life the other day . . . She was admiring the facade of the Supreme Court building when suddenly she espied a young man wearing nothing but a pair of shorts on the roof above the frieze, looking just like a Greek god, almost.

* * * *

Fearful lest it might be another impious assault on the high court, she sailed straight in and reported the phenomena to the uniformed guardians . . . (A DAR must protect th republic.)

It developed that some of the court attaches, starved for sunshine after a long legalistic winter, have taken to spending most of the noon hour sun-bathing on the court roof under Washington's warm April sun . . . They've been chided and hope Chief Justice Hughes won't hear of it.

There's just a ghost of a chance that the SEC probe of the Richard Whitney bubble may bring J. P. Morgan again to a Washington witness stand, and the Capital is prepared for an influx of midgets.

Maybe another midget on J. P.'s lap would dispel fear, restore confidence.

* * * *

Incidentally, a Morgan partner's assertion that his "conservatism" made him begin to wonder a little about the Richard Whitney loan of $500,000 for 90 days, after it had run for three years, brought Washington its smile of the week.

"If that's conservatism," wisecracked a reporter, "then I'm a conservative too."

POTOMAC PIFFLE: If Franklin Roosevelt, jr., plans to broadcast for a hair tonic, he'd better do it before his hair goes the way of Jimmy Roosevelt's . . . A telephonic voice asked a young matron in Alexandria the other day if a new child might join the neighborhood's play group. "We'd like to see you first," said the young matron. Next day the newcomer showed up; it was Mrs. Black, wife of the Justice. Her child got in O. K.

C. H. Wilson, Formerly Of District, Dies in N.Y.

Charles H. Wilson, patent attorney formerly of Washington, died Tuesday at his Yonkers, N. Y., home according to word received here yesterday. He was a brother of Dr. Edward C. Wilson, 2733 Connecticut avenue.

A graduate of Georgetown University Law School, he was an examiner in the United States Patent Office here from 1900 to 1905. Besides his brother, his wife, Mrs. Agnes E. Wilson, two daughters, Miss Angles Irene and Miss Mary Jane Wilson, and two sons, Donald and Malcolm Wilson, survive. Funeral services will be held today at his home.

Join in Life Of U. S., Yale Is Entreated

University Will Perish Unless It Does, Says President.

A warning that "Yale will disappear, if Yale becomes isolated from the life of the Nation" was expressed by Dr. Charles Seymour, president of the university, at the sixty-fifth annual banquet of the Yale Club of Washington last night at the Hotel Raleigh.

American universities must relate themselves to the public service or they may suffer a decline similar to that of the monasteries of the sixteenth century, Dr. Seymour declared.

Yale is in no danger of sharing this fate, he indicated, pointing out that one of the aims of his university is "to produce citizens who shall serve the state, to teach young men to use their learning with a sense of social responsibility."

Reed, Douglas Speak.

Associate Justice Stanley Reed and William O. Douglas, chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, also addressed the nearly 150 Yale alumni and guests. Sir Ronald Lindsay, British Ambassador, who holds an honorary degree from Yale; Dr. C. T. Wang, Chinese Ambassador, a graduate of the Class of 1910; Attorney General Homer Cummings, Class of 1891, and Senator Alva B. Adams, of Colorado, Class of 1896, were at the speakers' table. Eugene Meyer, Class of 1895, president of the club, presided.

Dr. Seymour stated that not in the past 30 years had undergraduates shown so great an interest in political and economic questions as at the present time. "Whether this interest will last after they leave college depends more on the nation than on the university," he added. Entrance of college men into Government service, he indicated, can be achieved if "the attitude of Government" encourages it.

The noted historian, who was elected president of Yale 14 months ago, held a course in the liberal arts "should be at the basis of every profession, including Goverament service." Men going into the Government, he said, "should be trained for citizenship" rather than in "a narrow course in office-holding."

Fears Specialization.

Maintaining that too great specialization is dangerous, Dr. Seymour stated that "what a boy studies is less important than how he studies." A man is a liberal, he said, "not because of his opinion but by virtue of his process in arriving at that opinion."

Necessity of building up the teaching staff for greater individual instruction was stressed by Dr. Seymour. He said that 16 new members of the faculty would be added this year, and expressed the hope that the university would eventually be able to increase its faculty by 60 men.

Douglas, who was a Yale professor before coming to Washington, asserted that recent steps taken by the SEC "to cut down the paper work and expenses of small business" were in recognition of "the increasingly difficult time" small business has experienced in obtaining money for capital expenditures.

Quotes President.

He then quoted a letter received yesterday from President Roosevelt, in which the President congratulated the commission for its recent move.

"You are well acquainted with my pride in the securities legislation as one of the major accomplishments of my administration," the President wrote. "Of course, I could never sanction steps which would in any way weaken the protection which these statutes afford to a nation of investors. For that reason I am particularly gratified that you have taken these helpful steps within the framework of the statute."

Douglas declared that "democratic government to compete successfully with its virulent competitors must be mobile, bold and intelligent. Its strength lies in its ability to keep pace."

Pointing out that "large areas can be served dynamically by administrative government that has power and discretion to deal directly with current problems," Douglas said, "this calls for trained men whom the universities must provide.

Justice Reed told his audience that academic freedom in the social sciences is "not so easy" to preserve, but, he said, "we expect that freedom to be maintained" under Dr. Seymour's presidency.

Guests at the speakers' table, in addition to those mentioned, included: Wayne Chatfield Taylor, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury; Canon Anson Phelps Stokes, of Washington Cathedral; Dean Acheson, former Undersecretary of the Treasury; F. L. Belin, Robert Lincoln O'Brien, president of the Harvard Club; F. M. McConihe, president of the Princeton Club, and Laurence Benet.

Post Staff Photos.

Patriots Pay GrantHonor on 116th Birthday

Meeting at the Grant Monument in Union Square, patriotic organizations and a handful of survivors of the Grand Army of the Republic paid tribute yesterday to President Ulysses S. Grant on this 116th birthday.

Principal speaker was the Rev. Dr. Charles H. Butler, chaplain of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, who traced the career of Grant as a soldier throughout the Civil War, and paid tribute to the generous terms of surrender he allowed Gen. Lee at Appomattox.

"How different later history of the world would have been if other victors had been as magnanimous to the vanquished," Dr. Butler observed.

He took as examples the stern peace terms imposed on the French by Bismarck at the end of the Franco-Prussian War, and the Treaty of Versailles.

Veteran, 90, Is Present.

Perhaps the oldest veteran present was 90-year-old John M. Kline, commander of the Department of the Potomac, G. A. R. He stood erect in the searing sun while the man who commanded the Army in which he fought was praised.

The exercises were held under auspices of William B. Cushing Camp, No. 30, Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War, assisted by the Cushing Auxiliary, No. 4.

Guests of honor included survivors of the G. A. R., the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States and the Dames of the Loyal Legion.

Ceremonies Outlined.

The assembly was called by Camp Commander Faye E. Palsgrove. The United States Army Band played the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" and "The Star-Spangled Banner." Presiding officer was J. Earle Palsgrove, camp patriotic instructor, and Percy S. Parker, of the Camp Color Guard, presented the colors.

Wreaths were placed by Mme. Cantacuzene, granddaughter of Grant; the Women's Relief Corps, Department of the Potomac; Cushing Auxiliary, the Ellen Spencer Mussey Tent, No. 1, Daughters of Union Veterans; Ladies of the G. A. R., William B. Cushing Camp, and by A. C. Oehmler, past department commander for Col. U. S. Grant 3d, grandson of the general.

Sen. King Warns Government Run on I.O.U.'s Faces Trouble; Trade Board Picks Directors

1,000 Members Attend as Nine Are Elected for 3-Year Terms.

More than 1,000 members of the Board of Trade, gathered at the Mayflower Hotel last night to elect new directors, heard Senator William H. King, (Democrat), of Utah, warn that "we're running today upon Government I. O. U.'s" and that a decline in value of public securities might bring "catastrophic results."

Predicting that by the end of the year the national debt would total nearly $40,000,000,000, the Utah Senator declared he wished "there were more organizations pledged to economy and fewer urging expenditures."

The ten directors selected last night, who will serve three-year terms, are Samuel J. Prescott, James E. Colliflower, Lanier P. McLachlen, Lloyd B. Wilson, Robert V. Fleming, Benjamin M. McKelway, Karl E. Jarrell, Marcy L. Sperry, John Saul, and E. C. Graham.

The directors will meet Saturday morning to elect officers for the coming year. It is expected that Francis G. Addison, jr., first vice president, will be named president, succeeding Edward F. Colladay, who delivered an informal final report last night. Addison is president of the Security Savings and Commercial Bank.

Senator King, in commenting on the local situation, said he was not in favor of the business privilege tax, but that the people of the District had rejected both the income and the sales taxes.

Engineer Commissioner Dan I. Sultan presented the Trade Board's awards to owners and architects of buildings constructed during the past two years that were considered exceptional by the organization's municipal art committee. Architects honored were James W. Adams, for remodeling a residence at 3509 M street northwest; George L. Howe, for remodeling a residence at 3314 O street northwest and another residence at 1339 Twenty-ninth street northwest; Edwin L. and Lois B. Taylor, for a residence at 4630 Hawthorne lane northwest; Schreier and Patterson, for residences at 18 Duvall drive, Westmoreland Hills, Md., 112 Lexington drive, Woodmoor, Md., and 113 and 115 Pierce drive, Woodmoor, Md.; G. E. MacNeil, for residences at 3040 Foxhall road northwest, and 4636 Garfield street northwest; Frank G. Beatty, for residence at 901 Woodside parkway, Silver Spring, Md.; Louis Justement, for multiple family residences at Sixteenth street and East-West Highway, Silver Spring, Md.; Homer J. Smith, for low-rent dwellings constructed for the Alley Dwelling Authority; Arthur B. Heaton, for construction of "Colony House," 4244 Connecticut avenue northwest and a bank building at Twelfth street and Maryland avenue southwest; Porter and Lockie for building at 734 Fifteenth street northwest; Delos H. Smith, for memorial to Early Settlers of the District.

President Colladay sketched briefly the activities of the Board of Trade during the past year and pointed out that the organization now has the largest membership in its history—more than 4,000. He announced that Edgar Morris would take over the chairmanship of the Greater National Capital Committee from Lloyd B. Wilson. Colladay also asked the members to vote on Saturday "for the right to participate in national and local government."

Morris announced that John Reilly would head the drive to obtain funds for the Greater National Capital Committee. The goal is set at between $55,000 and $60,000.

Argo Lodge of B'nai B'rith Initiates 550 to Membership

Over 550 new members were initiated into Argo Lodge of B'nai B'rith at impressive ceremonies last night at the Jewish Community Center. An audience of a thousand filled the auditorium.

Dr. Ivy A. Pelzman, president of the fraternal order, complimented Edward C. Ostrow, membership chairman, for the most successful membership drive in the organization's history.

The initiatory team was composed of Morris Geweirz, H. M. Goldstein, Abe Shefferman, Seymour S. Guthman and Jerome J. Swartz. Following the ceremonies, Isidore Herschfield spoke briefly, discussing the United Jewish Appeal which begins this week.

Rabbi Ephraim Fischoff, director of the Hillel Foundation at Cornell University, was the principal speaker, talking on "Jewish Survival in an Age of Chaos." He urged a program of positive Judaism for members of B'nai B'rith. This should include, he said, support of relief work overseas, aid in the rehabilitation of Palestine and participation in work of B-nai B'rith in combatting anti-Semitism and race prejudice.

Rabbi Fischoff also referred to the Jewish cultural center at Cornell and the work of the fraternity in promoting tolerance and good will in colleges.

Airport Ready To Close Road, Pay Arlington

D. C. Terminal Has Check for $25,000 to Finance Substitute Highway.

A $25,000 check will be delivered to the Arlington County Commissioners as soon as Military Road crossing Washington Airport is turned over to the terminal for elimination, Samuel J. Solomon, airport manager, said yesterday.

Explaining that the funds will be spent for construction of a substitute highway, he stated, "I'm only waiting for the War Department to effect the transfer before handing the money to the commissioners."

Earlier in the day he appeared before the House Public Buildings and Grounds Committee to urge expansion and development of the present airport as a national airport.

Clarence D. Chamberlin, famous trans-Atlantic flyer who now operates a 27-passenger biplane based at Capital Airport near Bladensburg, also said Washington Airport should be retained as a commercial landing field.

D. C. Students Voice Appeal To End War

2,000 Join in Rallies on Campuses of Capital Universities.

With mass meetings and religious service, nearly 2,000 Washington university students yesterday and last night asked the world to stop going to war.

Joining student peace demonstrations throughout the country, collegians of George Washington and Howard universities gathered at mass meetings—which they called "strikes"—to hear student orators and members of Congress assail war as a means of settling international differences.

One thousand Georgetown University students, assembled before an improvised campus altar last night, made a spiritual plea for world peace. They inaugurated the first Catholic Student Peace Day observance in Washington.

Sounds Keynote of Call.

"Tonight, we and they, united by kindred spirit, proclaim our love for our native land and our solemn effort to maintain those principles on which alone true peace can be built."

The impressive outdoor service was staged on the flood-lighted esplanade of the White-Gravenor Building, with the Georgetown Glee Club and R. O. T. C. Band furnishing the music.

At the conclusion of the program, the Very Rev. James P. Sweney, S. J., vice provincial of the Maryland-New York province of the Society of Jesus, was the celebrant at benediction of the sacrament.

Peace Charter Read.

Walter B. Connolly, Merrick debate medalist, read the papal charter for peace. John W. Nurre, prefect of the Sodality and president of the senior class, declared that while the Catholic Church "did not countenance total and unconditional pacificism," on the other hand, "it does not look with complacency on modern warfare."

George Washington University students were given opportunities to demonstrate for peace at meetings in the morning and last night. A comparatively small number turned out for the gatherings, whose members carried placards bearing such slogans as:

The students were addressed by the Rev. Charles L. Carhart, of Concordia Lutheran Church, Twentieth and G streets northwest, and by Representative Teigan, of Minnesota. Simon Rottenberg was student leader of the demonstration.

A mass meeting of Howard University students yesterday morning was told by Representative Coffee, of Washington, that the responsibility for peace rested more heavily upon student shoulders than upon any other group.

Almada's Fine Catch Features Nats' 5-2 Victory

The Washington Post Sports

18 WASHINGTON: THURSDAY, APRIL 28, 1938 ***

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

There used to be a fellow named Clyde Milan who was the yardstick by which Washington fans measured the talents of all centerfielders. And ten years later, Sammy West came along to usurp Milan's place in the fond memories of Griffith Stadium customers. When the topic ran to outfielders who could drag basehits out of the air, Milan and West were mentioned in the same breath.

POVICH.

But today, Washington fans are hailing a new hero. Melo Almada has moved up alongside Milan and West as a slick genius in centerfield. The fleet Mexican lad has been providing a daily thrill at Griffith Stadium with his seemingly impossible catches. They have been the rule with him.

For Griffith Stadium customers there has been no greater sense of relief than the realization that Almada is out there in centerfield when a ball is heading that way. The Mexican covers the ground like some ghost and he has a sure pair of hands. The applause that he evoked yesterday when he deprived Bobby Doerr, of the Red Sox, of a hit was the loudest demonstration of the year at the Washington park.

As far as the Griffith Stadium fans are concerned, Manager Bucky Harris can forget about his other centerfield candidates and rivet Almada to the job. The Mexican has been no power on the attack thus far this season, but if his batting average were credited with the hits he chokes off from the opposition, he would be batting in the neighborhood of .800.

At the rate Almada has been fielding, he could be batting .000 and still rank as an indispensable asset to the Nats. And the Mexican's feats in centerfield while startling in one sense are not exactly surprising. Ever since he came into the league four years ago he has been a sensational ball hawk.

Bucky Harris' well laid plans for alternating his center fielders against left-handed and right-handed pitching have been kocked completely awry by Almada's performances. The Nats have had two disastrous experiences with Almada's substitutes, and Harris is now in a mood to leave Almada in the regular line-up until ice skating becomes a popular sport in Hades.

Harris is not disposed, either, to check off Almada as an offensive asset. Despite his anaemic hitting of 1938, which dates from the start of the training season, the Mexican never has been regarded as a set-up at the plate. Last year, after joining the Washington club in June, he was a considerable power at bat for the Nats, hitting .330 for the first four months of the campaign.

Not in years has the Washington baseball outlook taken on such a roseate hue as it now owns. The Nats have moved into second place only a half-game out of the lead by a demonstration of sound baseball. Bucky Harris' pitching staff has exceeded his most hopeful expectations. In only three games has he been forced to use a relief pitcher.

He found a capable one yesterday in Elon Hogsett who was both at ease and effective when the Red Sox threatened to tie the score in the last inning. DeShong's performance in his first start of the season was encouraging. Monte Weaver has justified all his glowing training camp notices. Wes Ferrell beat the Yankees. Pete Appleton won his only start impressively.

And the Nats have been winning despite the fact that Zeke Bonura has not been hitting. The big fellow has contributed two important home runs to the Nats' cause, but he has not swung into stride. On that score, however, Harris is unworried. He is confident Bonura will start to hit, and theorizes to the effect that good hitters will always get their share of hits."

Harris' plan of alternating Ossie Bluege and Buddie Myer at second base, according to the type of pitching, has been amazingly successful. Myer, apparently due for one of his finest seasons, has been effective against right handed pitching, and on the defense has been brilliant. Bluege, with plenty of rest, has outshone Myer on the days he has been assigned the second base job.

Any misgivings that the Nats had not accomplished much when they beat the Athletics three straight to get a flying start, vanished the other day when those same A's rose up and smote the Yankees. Except for a bit of ill luck the Nats would have two victories to show for their three games against the Yankees instead of two defeats. And when they came back to take two out of three from Boston here lately they licked a pretty good ball team.

Dettweiler Leads Keefer Cup Tourney

Congressional Ace Takes One-Stroke Lead at Halfway Mark.

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

Two consistent rounds of 40 over Chevy Chase's lengthy layout yesterday earned Helen Dettweiler a one-stroke lead at the half-way mark in the play for the Mrs. Frank R. Keefer Cup. The Congressional star deducted a 2 handicap from a gross 80 for a net 78.

A stroke behind with net 79's were Mrs. L. G. Pray, Manor, woth 86-7. 79. Mrs. R. P. Huff of Kenwood, 95-16, 79, and Mrs. T. J. Johnson, Army and Navy club champion, with 90-11, 79.

Miss Dettweiler, winner of the Phyllis Keeler Miller Memorial tournament last week, who also holds the District and Maryland State titles, moved another step towards the role of the city's outstanding woman golfer of all time.

Plays Steady Golf.

She played steady golf, with no real bad holes. Only two sixes dotted her card, compared with a trio of 3's.

Mrs. Walter Stokes, defending champion, required 89 strokes and deducted a five handicap for an 84 and a six stroke deficit of the leader. Mrs. Bishop Hill, host club champion and former winner, was 91-6, 86.

The 80 by Miss Dettweiler was six strokes better than the next best gross score. Mrs. Pray's 86 was next, with Mrs. Betty Meckley a stroke back, with 87. Marion Brown, Manor ace, required 92 strokes.

Bracketed with net 80's only two strokes back of the pacesetter, two members of the Chevy Chase grst team champions, Mrs. J. W. Beller, with 90-10—80, and Miss Louise Claytor, with a like score. Mrs. G. F. Hussey, Army and Navy, was also 80, with 89-9.

Four Are Deadlocked.

Four more were deadlocked with 81, including Mrs. J. O. Ryne, Congressional, 89-8; Mrs. H. J. Simmons, Manor, 90-10; Mrs. Merrill Lord, Columbia, 94-13, and Mrs. J. W. Ludewig, Army and Navy, 95-14.

Mrs. K. S. Giles, of Indian Spring, and Mrs. L. O. Cameron, of the host club, were 89-7 and 92-10, respectively.

The tournament will end today with the final 19 holes. The Congressional star has been playing the finest golf of her career lately and is an odds-on favorite to add the Keefer Cup to her lengthy list of titles. She is virtually assured of the gross prize, whether or not she wins the net cup.

Yesterday's results, pairing and starting times for today's play:

Nats Depart For 2 Games

Will Meet Athletics in Philadelphia Series.

Only a half game out of the league lead, the Nats entrain this morning for Philadelphia, where they battle the Athletics in a two-game series today and tomorrow.

Wes Ferrell, winner over the Yankees in his last start and unbeaten thus far this season, will be Bucky Harris' pitching choice today. Monte Weaver will face the A's tomorrow. Manager Connie Mack is expected to send George Caster to the mound.

Clark Griffith refused yesterday to post a $500 purse for a footrace between Ben Chapman, of the Red Sox, and George Case, Washington rookie. Griffith had agreed to give $200 to the winner, but refused Chapman's demands for a $500 purse. They may reach a compromise at $300 in which case the race would be staged here when the Red Sox return on May 28.

Chapman, however, has stipulated that he be given the entire purse, win or lose. "I've beaten everybody in this league racing," said the Red Sox outfielder. "If Case beats me, we'll stage another race in Boston and he can have the entire purse."

The Nats' rookie is willing to run Chapman without compensation unless he wins.

Elon Hogsett's success in a relief role yesterday has stamped him as a relief pitcher exclusively. Manager Harris, who had planned to start the lefthander against certain clubs, has abandoned that idea.

Al Simmons went hitless yesterday but he contributed a fielding play in the fifth inning that evoked prolonged applause. It was his catch of DeSautels' line drive to left centerfield—a one-handed stab.

The finest hit of yesterday's ball game had to do with nothing whatsoever on the score. It was a three-bagger by Buddy Lewis, a ringing sock high over Centerfielder Cramer's head. But it occurred with two out and none on in the fourth inning, and Lewis was stranded on base.

Lizana Is Victor In British Net

Bournemouth, England, April 27 (AP).—The defending singles champions, Anita Lizana, of Chile and Henry Wilfred (Bunny) Austin, of England led a parade of favorites into the quarter-final round of the British hard court tennis championships today.

Recovered from an ankle injury she suffered yesterday, Senorita Lizana defeated Gem Hoahing, of China, 6—0, 6—4. Kay Stammers defeated her British compatriot, Freda James, 4—6, 8—6, 8—6, in another feature of the women's division.

Austin, who had reached the quarter-finals yesterday, will face Henri Bolelli, of France tomorrow. C. M. Jones and Don Butler, named Monday to Great Britain's Davis Cup team, both won their matches today. Jones defeated M. D. Deloford, 5—7, 8—6, 7—5, 4—6, 6—4 and Butler disposed of J. S. Olliff, 6—1, 6—4, 8—6.

Giants Take Double Bill From Phils

Wilson's Boys Lose 7-3 and 11-6; 21,829 Fans See Games.

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 27—The Giants mowed down the futile Phillies 7 to 3 and 11 to 6 in both ends of the year's first big-league doubleheader today to stretch their winning streak to seven straight and climb into a tie for first place in the National League. A crowd of 21,829 turned out to see them do it.

Harry Gumbert pitched a six-hitter in the opener, running into serious trouble only in the eighth when Chuck Klein clouted a homer with a mate aboard. Cliff Melton, who relieved Bill Lohrman in the fifth frame of the nightcap, received credit for the second game, his third victory of the season, when the Giants put on a six-run spree in the seventh to win.

Klein also whacked a homer in this game with two on, while connecting for four straight hits, but his stickwork was undone by the Phils woeful pitching, with Wild Bill Hallahan and Syl Johnson getting their ears pinned back.

Yanks Beat Macks, 9 to 2

Unleash 16-Hit Attack; Ruffing Halts Foe.

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, April 27.—For the first time this season, the New York Yankees managed to win two games in a row today by walloping the lowly Athletics, 9 to 2, on the strength of a 16-hit attack and airtight hurling by Rufus "the Red" Ruffing.

Ruffing gave up eight hits, fanned four and allowed just four runners to pass second base. The only time he was in trouble came in the second frame, when Dario Lodigiani smashed a homer with a mate on base. He fanned the rookie second sacker twice after that.

Harry Kelley started for the Muckmen but lasted less than an inning as the Yanks sewed up the ball game with a three-run splurge in their first chance at bat. Tommy Henrich set the pace with three hits, one of them a homer. He and Myrll Hoag, who hit safely twice, each batted in three runs.

Vaughan's Home Run Wins, 6 to 5, for Bucs

Slugging Shortstop Depopulates Loaded Bases in Seventh Frame and Pirates Nose Out the Chicago Cubs.

By the Associated Press.

Pittsburgh, April 27.—Floyd (Arky) Vaughan, 1935 National League batting champion, unwound his big bat for a home run with the bases loaded in the seventh inning today and brought Pittsburgh's Pirates a 6-to-5 triumph over the Chicago Cubs.

The slugging shortstop completed a perfect day at bat, three hits and a base on balls in four tripes to the plate, by picking out Larry French's fast ball with the count 3 and 2 and parking it in the second tier of the rightfield stands. It was his second homer this season, and both brought the Pirates from behind to victory.

This broke up a nicely pitched game for the Chicago southpaw, who had scattered four hits in the six previous chapters, although Pittsburgh already had chalked up one run in the rousing seventh.

Bill Brubaker walked to start the festivities, went to third on Pep Young's single to deep leftfield and scored on Pinch Hitter John Dickshot's fly to center. Then Floyd Jensen singled and John Rizzo walked to fill the sacks ahead of Vaughan.

Mace Brown received credit for his third victory in a relief role as a result of Vaughan's bingle, although he served only two innings on the mound today.

The Cubs shelled Cy Blanton hard from the start and took a two-run lead in the fourth on a home run over the leftfield score board by Joe Marty and two hits, a walk, and some loose play.

Another run came in the fifth on Stanley Hack's triple and Rip Collin's single, and the fourth in the sixth on a walk and two singles.

Even after the Pirates added a clinching run in the eighth as Bill Brubaker walked stole second and came home on Pitcher Bob Klinger's scratch single the Cubs kept coming.

With two out in the ninth, Hack knocked a smart grounder through short, which Vaughan and Jensen both muffed, to reach third. Billy Herman doubled him home.

Helen Wills Moody Arrives in England

London, April 27 (AP).—Helen Wills Moody, full of confidence and loaded down with 25 racquets, arrived today and prepared to practice at Wimbledon tomorrow.

After glancing over the English tournament schedule, Mrs. Moody, seven times winner of the American and British singles championships, decided she probably would play in the Chiswick Park and St. George's Hill competitions. She also will play in the Wightman Cup matches June 10 and 11 and the British championships starting June 20.

Chisox Beat Indians, 6-3

Tribe Suffers First Loss Since Opening Day.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, April 27.—The Cleveland Indinas suffered their first defeat today since opening day as the Chicago White Sox fell on Mel Harder for four runs after two were out in the seventh inning and won, 6 to 3. The Indians had won six straight games.

Trailing, 2 to 3, going into the seventh, Pitcher Thorn Lee started his own rally with a single. After Jack Hayes also singled, Mike Kreevich drove them across with the tying and winning runs on a triple to center and Hank Steinbacher, rookie rightfielder, clinched it with a homer that scored Kreevich ahead of him.

Steinbacher also singled twice to feature the Chicagoans' 11-hit attack and ran his season's batting mark to .520 with 13 hits in 25 times at bat.

Hal Trosky homered in the second inning for the foremost of Cleveland's seven hits off Lee, who was the first White Sox hurler to go the route this year. Julius Solters' double led to another run in the fourth and Trosky scored again in the fifth after being hit by a pitched ball. Marv Owen's fumble, a safe bunt and a double play bringing him around.

The victory gave the Sox an even split in the two-game series.

6,000 Fans See Redsox Lose Again

Crowd Applauds Almada for Almost Impossbile Performance.

By Shirley Povich.

Answering distress signals raised by Jimmy DeShong in the eighth and ninth innings yesterday, two Nats gallantly rushed to his rescue and beat off the obstreperous Boston Red Sox who were threatening to win the ball game. Washington won, 5 to 2, before 6,000 customers.

DeShong, making his first start of the season, was in complete command until the eighth inning when the Boston club trailing 3-1, rapidly hammered one run across the plate, and put two other runners on base. DeShong was in need of help and it was not long forthcoming.

Bobby Doerr, of the Red Sox, lashed a drive toward short centerfield and Boston runners began scurrying around the bases. Mel Almada broke toward the ball, but it appeared only a futile gesture. None among the 6,000 in the stands imagined that Almada could make the catch. At best, he might come close. And then, in some manner, the fleet Mexican reached the ball with a last desperate plunge, the white sphere plunking into his gloved hand only inches from the grass, for the third out.

Almada Saves Day.

That play by Almada, incidentally, evoked the most prolonged applause heard within Griffith Stadium since the season started.

But DeShong was in trouble again in the ninth. He walked DeSautels and pitched a single to Peacock with none out in the ninth. When he pitched two balls to Roger Cramer, Manager Bucky Harris felt constrained to remove DeShong, called in left-handed Elon Hogsett from the bull pen.

In Hoggsett, DeShong found a brilliant rescuer. With utter unconcern for the two-ball handicap he had inherited from DeShong, and undismayed also by the fact that the Red Sox inserted the right-handed Eric McNair to bat for Cramer, the old southpaw bent to his task, made McNair pop up, gave Joe Vosmik the same dose, and then rid himself of the spectre of Jimmy Foxx by forcing that worthy to ground to Ossie Bluege, leaving the Red Sox runners stranded.

Until he began to stagger in the eighth inning, DeShong had pitched a superb four-hit game, and in the fourth inning had contributed a triple that figured in two important runs. Ultimately, the Red Sox made seven hits to the Nats' nine.

Bluege Cracks McKain.

Ossie Bluege was the hero of the early innings, when the Nats reached the left-handed Archie McKain for all of their five runs to wipe out a 2-0 lead held by the Sox. Finding Stone and Travis on base in the second inning, Bluege pumped a two-bagger against the left centerfield wall and scored, himself, a moment later on Rick Ferrell's single to left. That made it 3-1 in favor of the Nats.

DeShong personally knocked McKain from the box in the fourth. After Bluege drew a walk, the Nats' pitcher sent a line drive to centerfield that Roger Cramer played poorly on the hop and it bounded to the centerfield corner as Bluege scored. DeShong followed Bluege across the plate a bit later when Joe Cronin's relay of the ball from the outfield was wide of the plate and rolled against the backstop.

The Sox nicked DeShong for a run in the first inning when Vosmik singled and ultimately scored on Cronin's single past Lewis, but in the next six innings they were held to two hits by DeShong. Vosmik opened the eighth with a double to left and Foxx scored him with a single. It was in this inning that, with DeShong wobbling and two runners on base, Almada raced in to catch Doerr's drive and choke off any ideas Boston had of tying the ball game.

Georgetown Nine Scores Win No. 20

Joe Judge's 9 Records Fine Performance After Loss to Terps.

By Jack Munhall.

More than 2,000 fans watched the husky right-handed ace dole out seven hits to the previously unbeaten Owls and easily extend the winning streak he began two years ago.

But though Petroskey hurled splendidly and contributed a two-run circuit smash to the proceedings, his mates must come in for a large share of the credit for Georgetown's third victory of the season and its twentieth in 21 games since 1936.

For these same Hoyas hitters who have been swinging somewhat futilely all season stepped out yesterday to give the best batting exhibition of the local collegiate season as they swatted a pair of Owl hurlers for 17 hits, including two homers, a pair of triples and a double.

Williams Hit Hard.

The Hilltoppers wasted no time in convincing Temple that its consecutive triumphs over Villanova and Ursinus feazed them not the least by hopping on Jack Williams, a fast right-hander, for two runs in the first inning. And as further proof of their uncontested argument, they swatted Williams from the box in the second, and then went to work on Lefty Kadany, his successor, to finish the inning with six runs.

They added two more in the third when Petroskey exploded a homer to deep leftfield with Joe Mellendeck aboard, and wound up their scoring with a pair in the sixth and a single tally in the seventh.

Meanwhile, Petroskey was having little trouble with the Owls, who sort of folded up after Johnny Cavadine had hit the first round-tripper of the game in the second inning to cross the plate behind Harry Bassin. Mike yielded single hits in the first, third and fourth innings, two in the fifth and one each in the seventh and ninth.

Nolan Saves Shutout.

In the fourth frame a great fielding play by Centerfielder Tommy Nolan saved Petroskey's shutout and a double play which Mike started himself in the seventh assured it. Nolan, who also awakened from his batting slump with a double and two singles, halted a promising Temple rally when he made a running catch of Kucker's line drive and doubled Mettola at first with a great throw to Bassin. There were no outs at the time and Kucker's ball was so hard hit that Mettola was on his way to third, content that it wouldn't be caught.

Petroskey engineered his twin killing with Owls on second and third bases and none out. He speared Catcher Coine's liner with one hand and threw to Cavadine to double Nemchek, who had singled to open the seventh.

Besides Nolan and Petrosky, Bassin, with a triple and two singles; Smitty Nau, with the same, and Mellendeck, with a brace of singles, were Georgetown's batting leaders.

Central High Trackmen Win Meet With Terp Frosh, 59-58

Led by Wilbur Barr and Dan Hoadley, who scored 10 points each, Central High's trackmen opened their outdoor season in highly successful fashion yesterday at College Park, where they eked out a 59-58 victory over the strong Maryland freshmen outfit.

Smarting under a recent lacing administered by Episcopal High, the freshmen were eager to regain lost prestige, but met unexpected opposition from last year's inter-high champions. The Centralites won 6 of the 13 events, and compiled enough second and third places to capture the meet.

Elated by the exhibition of his charges, Coach Hardy Pearce eagerly anticipated his team's triangular meet Tuesday with Washington-Lee High and Eastern, at the Central Stadium. The Little Generals, with Jimmy Milks heading the star-studded aggregation, recently captured a conference meet, and likewise are looking forward to meeting the Centralites.

The freshmen, with Bill Murphy, a Tome Institute product leading the way with victories in the 100-yard and 200-yard dashes, were outstanding in the spring events, but the high school boys balanced these triumphs with wins in the field events.

Blair Nine Beats Landon Prep, 12-1

Behind three-hit, ten strike-out pitching by Tom Duvall, who was making his first start of the season, the Blair nine yesterday defeated Landon Prep, 12 to 1, on the Blair diamond.

A feature of the game was a home run with the bases loaded in the first inning by Jim Donnelly, of Blair. Landon's only run came as a result of a triple by Cunningham.

Gallaudet's Runners Lose

In a closely contested track meet yesterday afternoon, Johns Hopkins University of Baltimore nosed out the Gallaudet track team. The Blues made a race of it all the way, depending on their superiority in the running events to bring them through, and at the end of the 220, which Lowman, of Gallaudet, won, they were only five points behind the invaders and expected big Alden Ravn to come through with his specialty in the discus. Ravn, however, was only able to take second place after Sharretts, of Johns Hopkins, had made a prodigious heave with the disc to set a new Hotchkiss Field record of 130 feet. Thereafter, Johns Hopkins went on to win at will, the final score being 66½ to 59½.

Ahearn Goes to N. Y. For Summer's Talent

Goldie Ahearn, Turner's Arena matchmaker, will leave this morning for New York, where he plans to close out for a couple of big matches this summer at Griffith Stadium.

First to occupy Ahearn's attention will be the title fight between Sixto Escobar, world bantamweight ruler, and Joey Archibald, current fistic rage. Ahearn will talk turkey with Lou Brix, Escobar's pilot, and Al Weill, Archibald's manager.

General Nine Beats Devitt

Carl Leatherwood pitched and batted Washington-Lee High School's nine to a 9-1 victory over Devitt Prep yesterday at Ballston.

Scattering three hits in holding the Prep hitters in check, Leatherwood drove out a triple and three singles to pace the Generals' 14-hit attack off Zimple.

Simpson and McQuinn also figured prominently in the winning offensive. McQuinn enjoyed a perfect batting day, with four singles in as many trips, while Simpson smacked a triple, homer and a single in five attempts.

Ray Fleming's 73 Paces Field In Bowling Loop Golf at Manor

Ray Fleming, Manor Country Club golfer, shot a four-over-par 73 over his home course yesterday to pace a field of 74 members of the Country Club Bowling League in their annual outing. The contestants included Volney Burnett, Harry Pitt, Martin McCarthy, Dr. H. L. Smith, Louis Fuchs and several others of the city's leading linksmen.

Fleming's round, fashioned from an out nine of 37 and back nine of 36, the latter only one over par, bested Volney Burnett, who won the Maryland State Amateur championship last year over the same course, by a stroke. The latter paired nines of 37. Max Taylor, host club ace, was next with 76 while Fuchs had 78.

The net winners were topped by a pair of Manor aces, Don Walker, with 79—13—66, and Tom Dennis, 84—18—66, while three bracketed at 70, including J. S. Giles, of Indian Spring, 84—14; W. C. Hackman, Beaver Dam, with a like score and Walter Romer, of the Four Corners course, with 91—21.

Max Taylor and Earl Clary, of Indian Spring, topped the Blind Bogey winners, the former with 74—4—70 and Clary with 80—8—72. Pitt, host club champion, with 82—2—80; Phil Brosseau, of Argyle, 94—14—80, and W. O. Wooley, of Congressional, 98—18—80, finished in a tie for second.

The Manor linksmen, winning a majority of the prizes in the links affair, made it Manor's day as the No. 1 bowling team from the Norbeck Club again topped the golfing bowlers.

I'LL BET THOSE OLD WHISKIES YOU MADE 30 OR 40 YEARS AGO WERE PRETTY SMOOTH TASTING.
NOT AS SMOOTH AS MY "KESSLER'S PRIVATE BLEND" TODAY—IT'S THE FINEST WHISKEY I'VE MADE IN MY 60 YEARS OF EXPERIENCE.
"My Best in over 60 years" says JULIUS KESSLER
Far back in the 1870's, Julius Kessler sold his first few barrels of whiskey, delivered them by mule-pack over the Rocky Mountains to Leadville, Colorado.
Forty years later, he was known as "America's Whiskey King"—a title he still enjoys. During his sixty years of experience, Mr. Kessler has made and sold over a billion gallons of whiskey. He is, without doubt, the greatest living authority on whiskey today.

It is said that several of them are thought to be Kentucky Derby and Preakness talent for next year . . . in answer to inquiry, reserved seat tickets for the Preakness can only be obtained from the Maryland Jockey Club, Pimlico, Md. . . . prices range from $1.10 to $2.75 . . . but I understand the coming race is a sellout in the reserved sections . . . from 1873 to 1899 the Preakness was worth only "about $1,000" to the winner . . . the 1938 winner will get upward of $60,000 . . . there were 173 named on the original list for the race this year, but only 77 paid the second entrance fee . . . I haven't checked closely, but I believe that with A. C. Harry Thorpe, track superintendent at Charles Town, reports that the turns on the West Virginia oval have been banked . . . M. C. Hazen, District Commissioner, will be represented in racing there again this year . . . his colors will be carried by Mary Ellen and Worth Owning . . . I hope the latter lives up to that name . . . Lone Miss, the hard-running mare who used to race for Don Yates, has dropped a foal . . . Herb Simmons, Bomar Stable rider, will resume his saddle career at Pimlico . . . he suffered a broken arm in Florida last winter . . . W. Huff, Washington, D. C., apprentice jockey, is the son of Nick Huff, a fine jockey a decade or more ago . . . Maurice Peters, who will ride Dauber in the Kentucky Derby, picks Dauber to win the Kentucky Derby, naturally . . . Willie Booth, trainer for the Denemark Stable, has announced the marriage of his daughter, Loretta, to Louis Peters, of Long Island, N. Y. . . . I doff my 9¾ hat to Short Grass, of the National . . . I hadn't been in the office for several days . . . in my typewriter I fond a note which read, "Walter—Mike says he is waiting for you at Dick's Grill" . . . A Staff Correspondent.

Havre de Grace, Md., April 27.—Using the shortest possible route, along the inside rail, Jockey Al Shelhamer made every post a winning one today with Teddy Weed, a speed son of Teddy, in the Shenandoah Valley Purse, the day's outstanding event. At a $12.80 mutuel, the colt looked more like a rose than a weed. He led Irish Moon to the pay-off station by a length and a half, with Bar Fly third and a neck farther back.

Roman Lady, Dorothy Rock and Fair Company, among the "also rans," are eligible for the $7,500 added Pimlico Oaks. Teddy Weed's owner and trainer, H. J. Bundscho, probably wishes he had recognized his colt's ability soon enough to name him for a big race or two.

Teddy Weed did his stuff before a crowd of 8,500, enjoying some of the best weather of the meeting. The winner's time was 1:43 4-5 for the mile and 70 yards over a lightning fast oval.

Polly Fair Pays $61.

Polly Fair, to the tune of a $61 mutuel, surprised in the opening race for 2-year-olds. After having run some poor races, the Polydor filly came through with a closing rush that shoved Miss Omar, a first-time starter, into second money by a neck. Our Chuckie was third in the field of 11. Jockey Sterling Young rode the winner the 4½ furlongs in 0:55 2-5.

In a tangle to the stretch, Golden Vein was worked clear soon enough to come up on the outside and win the day's second event that drew a dozen claiming sprinters to the post. Early Times and Lady Maryland, the latter grouped in the "field" betting, followed the winner to the wire. As if any of the customers cared, Cornwallis and Wise King finished in a dead heat for fourth position.

The day's second long shot scored in the third race. Phantom Fox, who has been imitating slow motion in recent races, suddenly came to life to win the race by a length and a half and bring his backers $35.80 for each $2 investment. Durwrack came like the wind to be second and Patient Saint was third in the mile and a quarter test.

Smith Pilots Winner.

Jockey Al Shelhamer took a lead over Sonny Workman, ten winners to nine in the battle for the $500 prize offered by the track for the meeting's top rider, when he piloted Siam, Bomar Stable star, to victory in the Oakton Handicap. The finish was a thrilling camera affair, with Siam out-photographing Conquer, the odds on favorite. The lightly-weighted Sun Mica was third, beaten a length and a half. Conquer ran Red Jack into defeat to get to the front and Jockey Maurice Peters put up a great, if futile ride the remainder of the way. Siam brought a $10.60 payoff.

Another photo finish marked the sixth race, but the favorite wasn't even close enough to get in the negative. Tutticurio was declared the winner by a nose over Count Tetrarch, with Achieve, carrying most of John Public's cash, third. Tutticurio, finishing courageously under Jockey Young's direction, returned $11.50 for the usual deuce.

Eddie Smith, Washington jockey, added another seventh race to his string by keeping Balapin in motion long enough to win by half a length from a charging Oddesa Boy. Bounding Count was third to the $45.10 shot.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

It was with an eye to the box-office that Matchmaker Goldie Ahern signed a promising young Irishman to meet a popular Jewish boy Monday night, for the two nationalities, blended in the battle-pit, have coined money since fighting was brought in off the street and elevated to the status of a full-fledged and accepted sport.

George Abrams is the Jewish boy involved, and Johnny O'Boyne, a broth of a lad from Boston, will uphold the Shamrock's end of the arument; and regardless of the outcome, Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn figures to be on the winning end.

Experience as a fighter taught Ahearn the value of matching gladiators from the two races whenever possible, for every Irishman has his own following, and Jewish people are notorious supporters of lads with the Star of Zion on their fighting trunks.

It was such a healthy financial practice that when Irish opponents became scarce Jewish boys took Irish names unto themselves and fought their fellow countrymen. Thus, Paddy O'Brien, fighting in the main event at the local club, might be Abe Cohen, son of the neighborhood grocer, and Kayo Murphy probably was Izzy Finkelstein. It was good business.

Ahearn discovered it was more profitable to box Irishmen than fighters of other nationalities early in his career as a lightweight, and this probably accounts for his three 12-round bouts with Honey Boy Finnegan, of Boston. Finnegan was sensational, and later went on to better things and bigger gates in his home town and around New York, while Ahearn had his own following, and the bouts netted both tidy sums.

They drew between $6,000 and $7,000 each time they went to war, and received a fair slice of the receipts for their end. Nor was Ahearn loath to box Andy Bowen, brother of Referee Ray Bowen, with the latter publicized as Scotch-Irish. That feud extended over four engagements, one at Ardmore, two at Berwyn and the last in a midsummer brawl at Fort Myer.

The Ardmore Arena, incidentally was burned down the night after their fight there on Thanksgiving night, as Ahearn explains.

"Because they wouldn't let the countrymen living around there crash the gate."

Since those lush days the matchmaker has held fast to the theory that an Irishman and Hebrew can draw under the most adverse conditions, and has put them in together whenever possible. At the moment Ahearn is looking for some good Irish boys to match Abrams and Lou Gevinson, and when he finds them prosperity is going to hit boxing with a couple of bangs.

O'Boyne, incidentally, hails from the same section that spawned Dan Carroll, Finnegan's manager, Jimmy Maloney and numerous other ringmen of note. A fierce but friendly rivalry still exists between Carroll and Johnny Buckley, O'Boyne's manager, and the man who piloted Jack Sharkey to the world heavyweight title.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—POLLY FAIR, $61.00, $30.60, $13.90; MISS OMAR, $21.30, $12.80; OUR CHUCKIE, $4.30.

POLLY FAIR, steadied along on outside to stretch, came with a rush under punishment in final eighth to win going away. MISS OMAR, off slightly raced on the inside of OUR CHUCKIE, took command approaching finish and just missed. OUR CHUCKIE had good speed from start and hung on willingly. ANN MOWLEE was away poorly, went into contention on outside and closed with good courage.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:00. Off 3:01½. Winner, Mrs. P. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PHANTOM FOX, $35.80, $12.30, $6.60; DURWRACK, $7.50, $4.30; PATIENT SAINT, $10.90.

PHANTOM FOX, steadied along to backstretch, improved position gradually and drew out under good handling. DURWRACK, outrun to stretch, closed with belated rush. PATIENT SAINT, allowed to settle into stride, moved up on inside, was blocked turning for home and closed gamely when clear. JAMES BOY came with good speed in stretch and pulled up sore.

FOURTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,500; allowances. The Shenandoah Purse. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:05. Off 4:07. Winner, Tomara Stable's br. c. (3), by Teddy—Starweed. Trained by H. J. Bundscho. Value to winner, $1,000; second, $300; third, $150; fourth, $50. Time, 1:43 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TEDDY WEED, $12.60, $6.30, $3.40; IRISH MOON, $8.30, $3.00; BAR FLY, $2.50.

TEDDY WEED went to front at break, saved ground while opening long lead, but had to be kept to drive to end to stave off closing bid of IRISH MOON. BAR FLY moved up mesmerizingly leaving backstretch and closed willingly. FAIR COMPANY was going well at finish. DOROTHY ROCK was never a factor. ROMAN LADY improved position with rush along backstretch, saved ground thereafter and weakened.

FIFTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000. Grade C Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:36. Off 4:38. Winner, Bomar Stable's ch. c. (4), by Jack Value—Gentlemen. Trained by R. E. Potts. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:46.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SIAM, $10.60, $3.70, $3.40; CONQUER, $2.90, $2.80; SUN MICA, $4.00.

SIAM, not hurried in the early racing, moved up gradually under good handling, came up to engage CONQUER and under pressure briefly got up. CONQUER shook for best as JACK tried to take command, waved ground and held on with good purpose. SUN MICA showed a good effort, but could not better position in closing drive. MASTER LAD could not menace. RED JACK was hard handled after setting early pace.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:10. Off 5:10. Winner, Brandon Stable's ch. h. (6), by Tutti Frutti—Curiosity Box. Trained by T. M. Waller. Value to winner, $700; second, $180; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:48 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BALAPIN, $45.10, $19.60, $7.60; ODDESA BOY, $8.50, $5.20; BOUNDING COUNT, $3.20.

BALAPIN, showing vastly improved form, took command going into backstretch, opened long lead and weakened in closing sixteenth. ODDESA BOY, trailer for half, improved position gradually and came with a terrific rush in closing eighth. BOUNDING COUNT saved ground and closed gamely.

St. Alban's Beats Prep Nine, 12-5

Behind the four-hit pitching of Eric Danielson and Bill Alexandria, St. Alban's defeated the Georgetown Prep nine, 12 to 5, yesterday on the Saints' diamond.

Capt. Bill Adams, with three for five, and Bill Terry, with a single and a homer with two aboard, led St. Alban's 12-hit attack off Cummings and Kelly.

Virginia Netmen Defeat Richmond

Charlottesville, Va., April 27 (AP).—The University of Virginia tennis team won its eighth straight match of the season today by defeating the University of Richmond team, 8-1.

Virginia won the six singles matches and two of the doubles matches in straight sets. White and Stewart defeated Henry and Mahoney, 1—6, 6—4, 6—4, for the only Richmond victory.

C. U. Eleven Wins Over Cavaliers

Cards Score 13 Points in Final Quarter Victory.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., April 27.—Registering two touchdowns in the last five minutes of play to overcome a 7 to 6 lead held by Virginia, Catholic University's football team defeated Coach Murray's eleven, 19 to 7, in Scott Stadium here this afternoon, in a spring practice tilt. Only newspapermen were admitted to the game.

Catholic started with a rush and scored a touchdown in four plays Charlie Montenot taking the ball across after a 30-yard sprint on a mousetrap play. Carlo's try for extra point was blocked by Capt. Acree, of Virginia.

There was no further scoring in the first half, but midway the third quarter the Cavaliers put over their lone touchdown. Harry McClaugherty intercepted a pass and raced 60 yards to Catholic's 5-yard line and in three tries Beveridge went through tackle for the score.

Near the close of the final period, Coach "Dutch" Bergman called Bert Vidnovick from the bench and in a short while he broke through tackle and dashed 77 yards before he was pulled down on the 1-yard stripe. On the first play, Sochon plunged through center for the score.

Cards Trim Reds, 5 to 0

By the Associated Press.

Cincinnati, April 27.—Lon Warneke pitched three-hit ball today, garnered as many at the plate and otherwise helped a rejuvenated St. Louis team win, 5 to 0, over the Cincinnati Reds for their second victory of the year and the first in five starts.

Mickey Owen proved one sparkplug of the Cardinal offense, as he whacked out three doubles, but the return of Ducky Medwick to uniform, apparently fully recovered from an attack of lumbago, likewise provided new impetus for the tail-enders, despite the fact he hit safely but once in four trips to the plate.

Goodman's third inning double, another by Frey in the fifth and Myers' eighth inning single were the lone Red hits permitted by Warneke, who struck out five and walked two while his mates were getting to Grissom, Vander Meer and Barrett for 13.

Maryland's Runs Result Of Homers

Annapolis, Md., April 27.—Navy's fast stepping baseball team continued its winning streak today by defeating the University of Maryland team, 9 to 2, behind the air-tight pitching of big Jerry Bruckel.

Extra base blows marked the game. Both of the Maryland runs resulted from circuit clouts. Cleom Chumbris hit for the circuit in the first and Mike Surgent duplicated in the fifth on a fly ball which Navy's captain, Bill Ingram, misjudged.

Besides the homers, Maryland had three other extra base hits. But Bruckel was master of the situation in the pinches and his teammates gave him brilliant support.

Overgrown Wrestlers Feature Arena's Mat Program

Jacobs Meets Indian Chief

Heavies to Clash on Mat at Arena Tonight.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

A couple of mountains will come to Mohammed Turner's temple of tonnage tonight for the edification and entertainment of his friends and patrons. With the Smithsonian Institution's aid they have been identified as Chief Sanooke, a stray range from the Big Smokies of North Carolina, and Harry Jacobs, a chip off the old Rockies.

It looks like a landslide of wrestling for the customers, most of whom are anxious to see the Rockies' representative leveled off by the son of the Smokies. It is interesting to note, however, that both boys are of villainous temperament, and without a hero in there it is difficult to predict the outcome. It may end with Mohammed Turner's battle-pit badly in need of repairs from the strain of the combatants' combined weight, plus Referee "Cyclone" Burns' nifty 240 pounds on the hoof.

Sanooke met up with gentlemanly Dean Detton in his initial appearance here and succeeded in getting himself disqualified after some 20 minutes of everything but wrestling. The immediate cause of his downfall was his inability to refrain from grabbing Dean in the general direction of his windpipe. Quite a number of the good burghers were righteously indignant at this, but their ire flared even higher at some of Jacobs' antics.

The big fellow, who claims to have been a football star at Southern California as well as a trackman, baseball player and captain of the swimming and wrestling teams, has resorted to everything but mayhem. Worst of all he's gotten away with it. Big Smoky Sanooke may put an end to all that tonight, however, for he's no slouch when it comes to swinging your partner, choking or gouging him.

Jacobs also lays claim to the dubious distinction of being the biggest Hebrew wrestler in the game. He's so big it is difficult to obtain his tent-like clothes, even if he is a retired haberdasher. His size 24 collars are made to order, and he buys them as well as his shirts in Columbus, Ohio. His suits come from Los Angeles, Detroit and his lingerie from Barnum & Bailey.

Dropkick Murphy meets "Satan Schultz in the semifinal. Other preliminaries include Chief Thunderbird vs. Bhu Pinder, and Louis Bacigalupi vs. Ivan Vacturoff.

Members of First Card Grid Team To Attend Dinner

Members of the first football team that ever went on the field at Catholic University are coming from near and far for the fifth annual Cardinal Athletic dinner, to be held in the Shoreham Hotel Sunday night, May 1, at 7 o'clock.

Only a few of them left, since the team had only the prescribed 11 members—and no substitutes—and 4 were killed in the World War, on the battlefields of France, the old-timers are scheduled to get a great reception.

John J. Daly, local newspaperman, who will be toastmaster of the evening, was captain of C. U.'s first football team and the first game they played was against the University of Maryland when "Curly" Byrd, now Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the university, was captain of the Terrapins. Naturally, President Byrd will be a guest of honor at the dinner and will tell some of the humorous incidents of that game—when even the bystanders were prevailed upon to play as substitutes for C. U. as one by one of the Brookland team got "knocked out." Those were the days of straight football—and the forward pass had not come into existence.

Bees Lose To Dodgers

By the Associated Press.

Boston, April 27.—The Brooklyn Dodgers snapped their four-game losing streak today by belting the Bees, 13 to 2, with a 17-hit attack at the expense of an assortment of four Boston pitchers, headed by Lou Fette.

Freddy Fitzsimmons, going the route for the Dodgers, allowed only six hits, fanned five and walked but two. He pitched one-hit, shutout ball for six innings and then coasted in.

Browns Nip Tigers, 7 to 2

Buck Newsom Gets Out of Several Holes.

By the Associated Press.

St. Louis, April 27.—Gabby Street shook up the St. Louis Browns' batting order today, Buck Newsom hurled a good game despite eight bases on balls and the result was a victory over the Detroit Tigers, 7 to 2.

Seven of Newsom's walks came in the first five innings. In the second the bases were jammed with Tigers, all there because of the pitcher's wildness. But Newsom pitched out of these tight spots and won his third straight game of the season, allowing only four hits.

Every Brown got at least one hit. Beau Bell's third inning single, which scored Don Heffner, was the first safety in 17 times at bat for the outfielder rated as one of the Brown's heaviest hitters.

Wilson's Linksmen Beat Anacostia

Wilson High School golfers jumped above the .500 percentage mark in the Metropolitan Scholastic League yesterday by handing the Anacostia linksmen a 9-to-0 shutout over the Army and Navy course. Donohue, playing No. 2 man for the winners, was extended to the final green by Clemings, of Anacostia, in the only tight match of the day.

Bogart (W.) defeated Tawney, 8 and 7; Donohue (W.) defeated Clemings, 1 up. Best ball, Wilson, 5 and 3.

Ritts (W.) defeated Plancos, 8 and 7; Skinker (W.) defeated Smith, 6 and 7. Best ball, Wilson, 8 and 7.

Anacostia forfeited final 3 points.

Joe Cronin, fighting manager of the Red Sox, is a vastly improved ball player over last season . . . He looks 100 per cent better at the plate, oozing confidence and hitting for longer distance as witness his three consecutive doubles Wednesday . . . After dismally fanning on his first appearance at the plate . . . Cronin, however, pulled a questionable bit of strategy in that game which he lost, 6-4 . . . In the eighth inning he sent in Gaffke to pinch-hit for Catcher DeSautels, who had hit a homer in the third and slammed the ball hard every trip to the plate . . . Gaffke was an easy out . . .

Wheat Prices Tumble After Early Upturns

Lighter Rust Damage and Rainfalls Are Factors.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, April 27.—Despite intermittent upturns, Chicago wheat prices developed an unmistakable downward trend today, and especially at the last almost equaled season bottom records.

Indications of unlikelihood of severe rust damage to the United States winter crop became an outstanding feature as the day neared an end. Excellent rains, both Southwest and Northwest, added momentum to price declines. Cables said grain trade confidence abroad had been shaken by the British government's huge secret purchases of food supplies.

At the close Chicago wheat futures were ⅝@1⅛ cents lower compared with yesterday's finish, May 80⅞@81, July 79⅞@80; corn ⅛@⅜ down, May 58¼@58¾, July 60@60¼; oats ⅛@⅞ off; rye showing ⅛@1⅛ drop, and provisions unchanged to 5 cents setback.

Failure of Re-election Halts 'Battle of Proxies'

Lansing, Mich., April 27 (AP).—William Loeb, jr., of New York, who announced a month ago he was soliciting proxies in an effort to reorganize the Reo Motor Car Co., failed of re-election to the company's board of directors today, and a threatened "battle of proxies" did not materialize.

To succeed Loeb, Earl W. Goodnow, of Lansing, was elected. Ray Potter, of Lansing, and Carlton Higbie, of Detroit, were re-elected directors. It was announced that successors to Frank A. Vanderlip, jr., and Charles G. Sinclair, of New York, as directors would be named at a future meeting.

Ingersol Rand Dividend.

New York, April 27 (AP).—Directors of Ingersol Rand Co. today declared a dividend of $1 on the common stock, payable June 1 to holders of record May 9. Previous payment was $1.50 on March 1.

Steel Activity Is Unchanged At 32 Per Cent

However, April Business Is 10% to 25% Below Previous Month.

New York, April 27.—In its weekly survey of the steel industry, the Iron Age said today that April steel business has been disappointing to all producers, and has run from 10 to 25 per cent below that of March. The review states that ingot production for the industry as a whole remains at last week's average of 32 per cent, but that there has been wide fluctuations by districts.

"The Wheeling-Weirton district leads the country with an average rate of 68 per cent, a gain of 11 points over last week, brought partly by demand for the plate and sheet bars. In the Chicago district there has been a rise of 4 points to 34 per cent caused chiefly by the receipt of a few fall orders. This intermittent operation accounts in part for district fluctuations.

Building Projects Aid.

"Building construction projects recently awarded, for which steel is now being specified, have given aid to some mills. In the past week about 10,600 tons of reinforced bars have been awarded, including 4,235 tons for the United States engineer at Los Angeles and 1,150 tons for a sewage disposal plant at Baltimore. New projects out for bids call for about 7,000 tons. Structural steel lettings totaled about 14,800 tons. Aside from 2,800 tons for a bridge over the Potomac River at Hancock, Md., and 2,100 tons for a seaplane hangar at North Beach, N. Y., the awards were in small lots.

"An automobile company has issued inquiries for bumper stock for 1939 models, the first that have been reported for the new cars. No appreciable improvement in buying of steel by the automobile industry is expected before July, when material for the 1939 cars will be required. The industry is believed to have passed its peak of production on 1938 models.

"Railroad buying is confined to a few rail orders. The Illinois Central has purchased 8,700 tons of rails and accessories, the Wabash will buy 3,750 tons of rails if court permission is given, and the Erie has taken bids on an indefinite quantity, but probably will not buy more than 15,000 tons. Despite the availability of Government loans, it is not expected that many railroads will borrow money to buy equipment, at least not until traffic is definitely headed upward.

"Steel scrap appears to have hit a bottom at Chicago, but prices continue downward at Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, where 50 cent reductions have occurred this week. However, there is very little mill interest, partly because of low steel production and partly because of large inventories of ore. The Iron Age scrap composite price has declined to $11.92.

New York, April 27.—Stocks looked firmer in slack trading and United States Government bonds rallied from their setback of yesterday. Commodities also developed a steadier tone, and dollars drooped from their effort to gain on sterling. May wheat closed five-eighths of a cent lower at 81 cents a bushel.

Stocks opened from a fraction to 2 points higher and then struggled feebly through the remainder of the trading to hold their gains.

First-hour sales of 160,000 shares accounted for more than a third of the day's business, which wasn't much better than 400,000 shares. Final prices were generally higher, but under the best of the day.

Airplane stocks were given a good play, after a few days of profit-taking rest. Some fair-sized gains were recorded on reports of high operating rates, in spite of the skepticism in some quarters over the possibility of important foreign orders for planes. Douglas, United Aircraft, Glenn Martin and Boeing responded with a 1 to 2-point advances.

Rails Neglected.

Rails were apathetic both toward conferences at Washington looking toward a Government lending program and some agreement with labor that might involve a cut in wages, and toward the current traffic reports. Carloadings for last week, according to reports from leading roads, were down slightly from the previous week and ran more than 30 per cent under a year ago. Utilities were somewhat more favorably regarded, as Wall Street thinks the force of the depression will compel a return to fair play and common sense on the part of the utility persecutors in Washington.

Steel preferred rose initially and the common looked firmer. Bethlehem made a nice gain and most of the steels improved. American Can recovered a large part of the previous day's loss. Loew's preferred duplicated the year's high on a rise of over 4 points. Revere Copper 7 per cent preferred sank 10 points on the first sale in weeks. Cannon Mills sank more than 3 points. Albany & Susquehanna, an inactive issue, drew a bid at a new low record level.

More Co-operation.

The stock maket was favorably affected by the regular dividend on United States Steel Corporation preferred shares and the comparatively good (for these times) profits report covering first quarter than it was by the news that some 16 well-known businessmen had signified in writing to President Roosevelt their intention to "cooperate" with the Government in promoting recovery. It would indeed be difficult to find a businessman, big or little, who is not anxious to do what he can help to help his own business and the general welfare. To say in a body that they wish to help is far different from saying that they approve of present policies of the Administration, that their confidence has been restored, or that they are optimistic. Granted that they are cheerful, some of their stockholders may be pardoned for having a bit of a doubt.

Persecution Complex.

It may nevertheless help to have such a show of amity, if for no other reason than that it may lay some of the dust that seems to have got into the President's eyes, causing him to see things in the light as well as in the dark. If businessmen have been accused of being in a bad psychological condition in which they imagine the President is trying to harry them over the cliff to destruction, the Chief Executive in his turn seems to have raised the question a time or two of whether the depression were not real, but merely a hideous picture painted by malevolent businessmen bent upon frightening the New Dealers out of their wits and destroying confidence in the Administration—no matter what the cost to the businessmen themselves. Many businessmen doubtless would be willing to try their best to forget the President if only he would try to forget them. Markets still have hope that relations are likely to improve.

Trade at Standstill.

Statistics on industrial activity gathered by the Federal Reserve Board are the last word on the question as to whether the country had any of the usual spring rise. It did not, but it may congratulate itself on the fact that in March and early April the brakes held and no further ground was lost. The Federal Reserve Board's industrial production index for March, adjusted for seasonal variations, was unchanged at 79 per cent of the 1923-1925 average, which means nevertheless that the actual state of business is the lowest it has been since 1932. A decline in factory employment took place last month, and a further decline probably will be reported for this month. The sharpest declines in any direction were shown in money rates, which alike reflect slack business and the deliberate attempt of the authorities to crush down interest rates, mainly as an aid to the Treasury.

Can't Do Everything.

Life for a corporation executive in these piping times of new deals from a five-suit deck is about the same as that reported for the Ozark mountain woman who protested her inability to keep the still going, do the work about the cabin, hoe the corn, chop the wood, shoot the varmints, catch the fish, feed the mule, attend camp meeting, keep her pipe lit, find paw's fiddle and nurse the twins—all at about the same time. John A. Brown, president of the Socony-Vacuum Oil Co., observes in his yearly report to stockholders: "The governments all want us to pay higher taxes and provide more employment; the employes want more wages; those who sell to us want us to pay more; those who buy from us want to pay less, and the stockholders want more dividends. These are normal and natural desires, and we try to meet them."

Profits.

A good proportion of the leading industrial corporations has reported for the first quarter and early estimates of a sharp decline in profits were well justified. According to the preliminary summary of the Sun the first 200 companies showed aggregate net income in the first three months of about $96,736,000. This is a decrease of 56.5 per cent from the profit reported for the first quarter of 1937.

Cities Service Votes To Reduce Its Common

Dover, Del., April 27 (AP).—Cities Service Company at its annual meeting voted to reduce its common stock from 37,804,394 shares to 3,745,567 shares and exchange one of the new for ten of the old shares. The par value was fixed at $10 a share instead of no par value.

W. Alton Jones, first vice president, explained the plan as a move to create capital surplus to be used to write down the carrying value of certain assets.

General Motors Reports Sharp Decline in Net

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 27.—General Motors Corporation reported today a net income of $8,264,413 for the first quarter of 1938, equal after preferred dividend requirements to 14 cents a share on the common stock. This compares with $44,864,166, equal to 99 cents on the common, for the corresponding period of 1937.

During the first quarter, total pay roll disbursement was $69,755,936, compared with $100,075,137 the corresponding period last year. Compared with a normal work week of 40 hours, Sloan said the work week in the first quarter averaged 23.5 hours. Net sales for the quarter amounted to $250,512,587, compared with $336,819,901 the first quarter of 1937.

Westinghouse Electric.

New York, April 27.—Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co. reported today net income of $2,031,230, equal to 76 cents a share on the combined common and preferred stocks, for the March quarter of 1938, compared with $5,341,512, or $3 a share on the two classes of stock in the corresponding quarter of 1937.

Directors declared a 50-cent dividend on the common stock and 75 cents on the preferred, both payable May 27 to stockholders of record May 10. On February 26, dividends of $1 each on the common and preferred were declared and a total of $6 each was paid in 1937.

Standard Brands, Inc.

Standard Brands, Inc., and subsidiaries reported for the first quarter of the year net profit of $2,353,002, which compares with $2,885,492 in the comparable 1937 quarter.

Standard Cap & Seal Corp.

Standard Cap & Seal Corporation reported consolidated net income for the three months ended March 31, of $155,509, equivalent to 53 cents per share on the common stock. This compares with consolidated net income of $179,951, or 64 cents a share for the first quarter of 1937.

McGraw-Hill Co.

McGraw-Hill Publishing Co. and subsidiaries reported net profit of $174,499, equal to 29 cents a share, for the March quarter, compared with $316,126, or 52 cents a share, the corresponding quarter of 1937.

Ruberoid Co.

Ruberoid Co. reported a consolidated net loss of $193,758 for the first quarter of 1938, compared with a net profit of $132,655, equal to $1 a share, in the March, 1937, quarter.

Rustless Iron and Steel.

Rustless Iron & Steel Corporation, of Baltimore, reported a net loss of $62,651 for the first quarter of the year. This compares with a net income of $171,021 in the corresponding 1937 quarter, which was equal, after preferred dividend requirements, to 20 cents a share.

Curb Stocks Rise In Light Trading

New York, April 27 (AP).—Oils predominated in gains which dotted the curb market today. Early advances, however, were pared by profit-taking near the close. The late dealings also tended to even up a few which had dipped.

Aluminum Co. of America was up 2 at 72. Gainers of a point or more included: Gulf Oil at 37; Humble Oil, 68, Lion Oil, 22⅛, and Sherwin Williams, 88. Electric Bond & Share was unchanged at 6⅝. Down a point or more were American Gas & Electric at 25; Creole Petrolum, 21⅛; New Jersey Zinc, 54, and United Shoe, 61½.

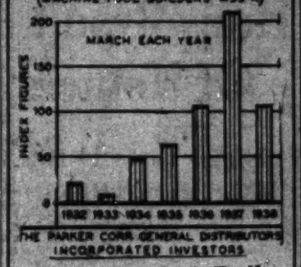
Railroad Aids Farm Settlers

New York, April 27 (AP).—In his annual report to stockholders made available today, W. P. Kenney, president of the Great Northern Railroad, outlined the co-operation the line is giving to the United States Resettlement Administration in locating farm families in the Northwest.

"To bring to the attention of farmers the profitable lands available in Minnesota and eastern North Dakota," Kenney remarked, "the company is conducting an intensive campaign through its agents and by the distribution of literature.

"The company is co-operating with the Government and it is expected that many of these families will find permanent homes in Great Northern territory, where the farm population is definitely on the increase." Kenney said the crop conditions for 1938 "are quite promising."

New Tool Orders Gain 41% in March



Boston, Mass., April 27.—New machine tool orders in March were up 41 per cent from February orders, but only about half the total of a year ago. A large part of the increase in March over February was due to foreign orers.

Complete Dairy Farm

This is not only a thoroughly equipped dairy milking 44 cows with District of Columbia inspection, but is also one of the finest cropping farms in Maryland. 250 acres of excellent chester loam soil which has been cultivated by one family for over 50 years. The constant grassing and distribution of stable manure from all stock including dairy cattle for the last 50 years has constantly enriched the soil until this farm is known as one of the finest and most productive in the State.
There are eight fields, all fenced and well watered. All land clear and in a high state of cultivation except 9 acres woodland.
Very attractive home, large rooms, fireplaces, oil burner, hot-water heat, all modern improvements, in first-class condition, beautiful shade trees, lawns and shrubbery.
Barns, dairy, wagon sheds, silo and all other outbuildings necessary to operate a farm of this kind, all in good condition.
Two good tenant houses and also two other houses for other labor.

PRICE $45,000.

Reason for selling is to close an estate. For further information call Rockville 155, J. VINSON PETER.

Bob Burns Says—

I believe our court system is the finest in the world and a man could always get justice if the case was tried honestly and fairly, but when lawyers start pullin' in witnesses to prove their point, anything can happen.

One time down home a man was arrested and accused of breakin' into my Uncle Orchie's house and robbin' him. When the trial come off, Uncle Orchie was called as a witness and the minute he looked at the prisoner he says "That's the man that come into my room that night."

The prisoner jumped to his feet and he says "Judge, these people are trying to frame me—how in the world could this man recognize me when he kept his head under cover all the time I was in his room."

Job-Hunters.

Young Washingtonians between 15 and 24 years of age who are looking in vain for their first jobs number 2,411, according to figures released this week by the National Unemployment Census.

The unemployed "new workers" are about evenly divided between men and women. In addition to the 15-24 age group, 1,235 would-be workers of over 25 years reported themselves as first job seekers or as persons who had not acquired a regular occupation.

Of the District's "partly unemployed" class, 7,537 are colored and 4,610 are white, a breakdown of the census figures showed. The largest age group of partly unemployed is that from 25 to 34, which includes 3,738 of the 12,000 part-time workers.

The Federal Club, composed of Government officials, Tuesday held its annual dinner and dance at the Roosevelt Hotel. The club was formed in 1920 by the Assistant Secretary of the Navy Franklin D. Roosevelt, and R. C. Leffingwell, Assistant Secretary of State.

The program, under direction of Ulysses Butler, included a Highland Fling by Misses Myra Pettenger, Mary Paterson, Beatrice Conrath and Margaret Gourlay; a tap dance, by Miss Anne O'Connor, and a violin solo, by Miss Ida Giltner, accompanied by Lloyd Swanson. Dr. Herman Stabler, chief engineer in charge of the conservation branch of the Geological Survey, presided.

Guests included Dr. Willis Ray Gregg, chief of the Weather Bureau, and Mrs. Gregg; Dr. Addams McAllister, chief of the Bureau of Standards, and Mrs. McAllister; Lawson Moyer, chief examiner of the Civil Service Commission, and Mrs. Moyer; Commander and Mrs. Harold Biermeier; Charles A. Jaquette, chief of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, and Mrs. Jaquette; Dr. and Mrs. E. C. Crittenden, and Ralph E. Day, chairman of the arrangements committee.

8,000 Applicants.

More than 8,000 applicants for jobs, many "unknown to any relief agency" are on the waiting list of the District WPA for investigation, Miss Elizabeth McHugh, director of intake and certification, told a luncheon meeting of the family welfare committee of the Council of Social Agencies on Tuesday. The committee discussed need of relief to tide WPA workers over the period between application for work and receipt of first pay checks.

Speakers included Otto Cass, deputy administrator of the District WPA and Miss McHugh. Discussants included Miss Alice Hill, director of the public assistance division of the Board of Public Welfare; Mrs. Walter Ufford, chairman of the Southwest Neighborhood Council, and Mrs. Harry Benton, chairman of the Board Members Council.

Cass said there has been little change in the actual number of persons working on WPA jobs during the last three years. In December, 1936, he said, 10,640 persons were employed on Federal and local projects in the District; 12,135 in April, 1937, and 11,616 in April, 1938.

Open competitive examinations for positions of farm manager and assistant farm manager in the Bureau of Prisons, Department of Justice, was announced yesterday by the Civil Service Commission.

The former position pays $2,900 a year, and the latter $2,300. Persons must have certain specified experience, or a combination of education and experience, and applicants must not have passed their fifty-third birthday.

Applications will not be accepted later than May 16, if received from States east of Colorado, and May 19 if received from Colorado and States westward.

New hunting and trapping regulations, published yesterday, provide for a closed season throughout the Territory on martens. The regulation, signed by Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, will take effect in 90 days.

Death of Major Scogin, U.S.A., Announced Here

Maj. Clyde W. Scogin, 48, Dental Corps, U. S. A., died Tuesday in Denver, the War Department announced yesterday. A native of Bloomington, Ill., he was graduated from the University of Denver in 1915 and entered the Army during the World War. Maj. Scogin, who was a graduate of the Army Dental School here and the Medical Field Service School, Carlisle Barracks, Pa., was attached to the office of the attending surgeon from July, 1924, until August, 1925, and then was on duty for four years at Walter Reed Hospital. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Anne M. Scogin, of Denver.

America Winning Struggle to Curb Deaths in Traffic

Chicago, April 27 (AP).—Americans are winning their ceaseless struggle to curb sudden death on streets and highways, according to the National Safety Council's report.

Traffic fatalities were reduced in March for the fifth consecutive month after mounting steadily for five years. March deaths numbered 2,180, compared with 2,790 in the same month in 1937.

In the first quarter of the current year, 7,100 persons died as a result of motor vehicle accidents in contrast with 8,650 in a similar period last year.

Settlement Given $50.

A purse of $50 to help finance the new headquarters of the Southeast Settlement was presented by Miss Gladys Peterson, representing Epsilon Sigma Iota Sorority, it was announced yesterday.

Security Tax Levied On Dismissal Wages

Social security taxes must be paid on dismissal payments to employes, the Bureau of Internal Revenue ruled yesterday.

Any sum given an employe upon termination of his employment is part of his wages, the Bureau held. Vacation and sick leave pay are included in wages. The dismissal pay question arose as result of a contract between an unidentified company and a labor union which provides that the company cannot dismiss certain employes unless it pays them a sum equal to a certain number of weeks' wages.
